A.—The letters were not directed at all; I used to write by the man who brought his letters, and he knew very well where to convey the answer. There were several Brahmons, any one of whom would write—I can mention the names of one or two of them—one or two letters were also written by Mangeea.

Q.—In this letter, what is the meaning of the expression—"In the month of Kartik, Juepoor ko kam hosee saf?" in the translation of this letter, the passage was rendered—"the business at Juepoor will be done effectually—or (the phrase may according to the writer's intention mean) you will certainly become again administrators of affairs at Juepoor"?

A.—There is a Bhuttu astrologer, at Agra, to whom the horoscope was shown, and he told us that the month Kartik was fortunate for us—that as we were administrators of affairs, formerly at Juepoor, so we should become again in that month.

No. 15 of Deosa Papers.

Q.—In whose handwriting is this letter? and to whom was it written?

A.—It was written by me, and I sent it to Mangeea.

Q.—In this letter is written—"you tell me to beware of strangers. Be at ease on this point; to the best of my judgment, I will never make imprudent disclosures, but for the will of Purnmeshur there is no help. In the letter to my uncle you have written in the same strain: there was no call for this, but if you really think me so very indiscreet and foolish, what can I say, that may avail me." What is the meaning of this passage? and who wrote the matter, to which you thus replied?

A.—The meaning of the term strangers is—that rogues and vagabonds should not be allowed to approach, and practice deceit and fraud to obtain money; and this was written in answer to a letter from Mangeea. I am not sure, whether Mangeea wrote the letter or some one else, but it came from that place.

Q.—In this passage—"you write for the khureetu; by this time the copy of it will have reached you." What khureetu is alluded to? and who is the person that would have received the copy of it?

A.—A khureetu that my uncle wrote in his own name, and despatched to the Lord Sahib; copy of which was sent to Mangeea.

Q.—What did the khureetu contain?

A.—It contained an account of our troubles and difficulties. My memory does not enable me at this time to enumerate all its contents.

Q.—Both these letters are in your handwriting. One of them is dated Bhadon Soodi 6th (29th August 1835, No. 8, Deosa Papers) and says—"The urzee in the name of the Majee Sahib has been forwarded, and you shall have a copy of it sent hereafter"—and the other written on the 12th Soodi Bhadon, six days after the former (No. 15), expresses an expectation that the copy of the khureetu will have arrived: the inference to be drawn from these two letters is, that they both refer to the same document of khureetu.

A.—One drawn up in our name went also; the copy of that may not have been sent, and that of the other may have gone.

No. 12 of Deosa Papers—Copy of Khureetu.

Q.—Whose handwriting is this?

A.—It is my writing.

Q.—Is this the copy, concerning which you said in your letter of the 6th Bhadon Soodi, that an urzee in the name of the Majee Sahib has been sent; that a copy of it should be forwarded; and that you and Babajee had sat down together and composed an admirable address?

A.—Yes, this is the copy.

Q.—How did it enter into the heads of you and your uncle to write an urzee or khureetu in the name of the Majee Sahib?

A.—It was done in conformity with the contents of the three notes that came from Deosa, which I mentioned yesterday—I did not know who wrote the notes.

Q.—Are the contents of this copy of urzee or khureetu perfectly accordant with the directions given in the three notes of which you speak ?

A.—All that those notes contained are inserted, and there is something more in it also.

Q.—Whose servant is Mangeea Poorohit ? and with whom does he live ?

A.—He is the servant of my uncle and father. The servants of one are the servant of the other. He remained with my father at Deosa.

(The deposition of Mangeea Poorohit is read to Futih Lall).

Q.—From this it appears that Mangeea wrote according to the instructions he received from Sungheejee ?

A.—What can I know about that ? I am not informed on that head.

No 43 of Agra Papers.—Letter of Chimun Singh.

Q.—Are you acquainted with the handwriting of this letters ?

A.—I do not know it.

Q.—This letter was found in your house : have you heard its contents before ?

A.—No, I have not : a vast number of papers were brought away from our house.

Q.—Are you acquainted with Chimun Singh and Juwahir, Singh ? and are you familiar with the hands they write ?

A.—I have some acquaintance with Chimun Singh, but I have never had occasion to acquire a knowledge of his handwriting and am ignorant of it.

No. 4 of Agra Papers.

Q.—Who wrote this letter ? Did you ever see it before, or hear it read ?

A.—I don't know the hand, and I never before saw the letter, or heard it read.

No. 24 of Agra Papers. Petition of Rooga Budarun.

Q.—In whose handwriting is this paper ?

A.—In that of my uncle Hlookum Chund,

No. 17 of Agra Papers.

Q.—Who wrote this letter ? and to whom did it come ?

A.—It appears to have been written by Mangeea, but it was not received by me ; it will have come to my uncle.

No. 19 of Agra Papers.

Q.—Who wrote this letter ?

A.—Mangeea wrote it ; his name as the writer appears in it. The letter came to my uncle.

Q.—Have you seen it before ?

A.—I have not.

Q.—Has your uncle seen it ? and did he ever answer it ?

A.—It came to him, and he probably answered it. The letters that came to me I replied to, and those which came to him he answered.

No. 8 of Agra Papers.—Letter of Juwahir Singh, son of Chimun Singh.

Q.—In whose handwriting is this letter ? Have you seen it before, or heard it read ?

A.—I do not know the handwriting, and I never saw it before, nor has it ever been read to me.

No. 33 of Agra Papers.

Q.—Do you know this handwriting ?

A.—It looks something like Mangeea's hand, and the letter appears to have been written by a Brahmun.

No 35 of Agra Papers.—Letter from Duya Ram Bhattacharf.

Q.—Do you know whose handwriting this is ?

A.—I never saw the letter before, and do not know the handwriting.

No. 31 of Agra Papers.

Q.—Read this note. Who wrote it ? Are you acquainted with the handwriting ? Did you ever see the paper, or hear it read ?

A.—I know not the handwriting. Never saw the note before, and am entirely ignorant on the subject of it.

Q.—In this is written—"The business has been only half done." What business was but half performed ? Look at the date—Jeth Soodi 10th (6th June)—what event occurred at Juepoor two days before, or Jeth Soodi 8th ?

A.—I do not know.

Q.—What ! are you not aware that at Juepoor Mr. Blake was killed, and the Agent to the Governor-General was wounded ?

A.—The whole world is aware of these circumstances, but I do not know exactly whether they occurred on the 8th or the 10th.

Q.—Now that you do know the date of their occurrence, say according to the best of your judgment, what business do you think is alluded to in this note as only half accomplished ?

A.—I do not at all know.

No. 39 of Agra Papers.

Q.—In whose handwriting is this letter ?

A.—This is the writing of Mangeea.

Q.—Did you ever see this letter before, or hear it read

A.—Never.

Q.—In this is written—"And they say the present period is fortunate. The fifth month (of the natal year) also, is said to be favorable : in that month, therefore, all will be accomplished." What is the meaning of this ? Whose fifth month is alluded to, and on whose account is the period said to be fortunate ?

A.—I never saw this letter and know naught about it. I did not write it. Ask the question of those who may have read the letter.

Q.—When does the anniversary of the birth-day of your father Sunghee Jotha Ram occur ?

A.—I do not know.

Q.—The question was asked of Sungheejee, and he answered, that it fell on Magh Budi 14th. The outbreak at Juepoor occurred on the 8th of Soodi Jeth, which date is included in the fifth month of Jotha Ram's natal year. Consider this with reference to the passage in the letter which is before you, and explain the meaning of the words that have been read ?

A.—I have represented that I do not know the meaning of the passage.

The Note bearing the handwriting of Jotha Ram, which was found among the papers of Deewan Umur Chund is shown to Futih Lal.

Q.—In whose handwriting are the words inserted above this note?

A.—I do not know.

Q.—Whose hand does the writing resemble?

H.—I do not know.

Q.—Is it at all like that of your father?

A.—He and I never had occasion to correspond, or to read each other's handwriting.

NATANEE-KA BAGH, JUEPOOR.

Minutes of the continuation of proceedings in the trials of the Jueporee Prisoners.

Saturday, 23d of July 1836. Ten o'clock A.M.

The Members of the Court are all present, as are also Lieutenant Colonel Speirs and Captain Thoresby, Political Agents.

Noticed.—That heavy rain, which seriously impeded communication with the City, prevented the Court from sitting yesterday as had been intended, and that the same cause has occasioned a late meeting this day.

Prisoners.—Sunghee Jotha Ram, Sunghee Hookum Chund and Sunghee Futih Lal, Sravugees, being introduced, are seated in chairs placed conveniently for the purpose.

For the information of the prisoners the warrant constituting the Court is read, and this is followed by the address to the Court, recorded in the commencement of the former trials.

The charges on which the prisoners are arraigned are then read aloud twice over.

Charges preferred against Sunghee Jotha Ram Sravugee.

Jotha Ram Sravugee arraigned on the following Charges:

First Charge.—Having, when sojourned at Deosa, in Chuet, Buesakh and Jeth 1892, wickedly and maliciously countenanced and encouraged a conspiracy, having for its object the overthrow of the existing administration of the State of Juepoor, by means of a highly criminal and atrocious nature.

Second Count.—Having conspired to and abetted the employment of measures of violence and bloodshed, in order to effect the overthrow of the existing administration of the State of Juepoor, in Jeth 1892; one of the measures designed and contemplated, being an attack to be made on one or more of the gentlemen attached to the British Agency then at Juepoor, which criminal design was actually executed on the morning of the 8th Jeth Soodi 1892, (4th June 1835) when one Futih Singh, alias Futih Dom, at the instigation of Deewan Umur Chund Sravugee and others, assaulted and severely wounded with his sword the Agent to the Governor-General of India.

Second Charge.—Having, when sojourned at Deosa, to serve his own purposes, sanctioned and urged the execution of measures devised by, or to be effected through, persons in his confidence at the capital of the State, although he well knew that the designs meditated were of an atrociously violent and highly criminal nature; from which measures resulted the attempt made upon the life of the Agent to the Governor General of India in front of the Surdkee Deorhee, near the Place at Juepoor, on the morning of the 8th Jeth Soodi 1892, (4th June 1835,) and the sanguinary tumult by which that act was followed.

Charges preferred against Sunghee Hookum Chund, and Futih Lal.

First Charge.—Hookum Chund, brother of Jotha Ram Sravugee, and Futih Lal, son of the said Jotha Ram, arraigned,—For having wickedly and maliciously countenanced and participated in the designs and counsels of conspirators in the country of Juepoor, to effect, through, means of a violent and criminal nature a change in the administration of the State in Jeth 1892, or about that period of time; the treacherous assault made upon Major Alves, Agent to the Governor General, at the Surdkee Deorhee, on the morning of the 4th of June 1835, and the subsequent riot and bloodshed which took place in the City of Juepoor on the same day, having been portions of the plans formed by those conspirators: the said Hookum Chund and Futih Lal being at that time subjects of the Juepoor State, although residing, temporarily or otherwise, at Agra, within the territories of the British Government in India.

Second Charge.—Having aided and abetted the design and object of the plot, in execution of which were perpetrated in the City of Juepoor the atrocious and sanguinary acts of the 8th Jeth Soodi 1892 (4th June 1835), by falsely, maliciously and wickedly attributing the origin of the aforesaid acts to the machinations of Thakoor Rawul Buerree Sal, Thakoor Lukshmun Sing and others.

Jotha Ram declares that he was not at Juepoor at the time alluded to, and desires only to have justice done him in the investigation.

Hookum Chund observes that he has only one wish, which is, that guilt may be proved upon those who are really criminal.

The note bearing the autograph of Jotha Ram upon its front, which was found amongst the papers of Deewan Umur Chund, is placed upon the table (vide Appendix No. 1.)

Depositions * as to the way this note was taken out of the bag of papers when its contents were examined, read in Court.

Jotha Ram avers, that he did not write the words attributed to him, and knows nothing about the note; that forgeries are very common at Juepoor, and there are people who can imitate to a nicety the handwriting of any one; that all those whose names are mentioned in the deposition, are servants of him† and are not to be believed. He then attacks the Court, collectively and individually, in which he is joined by Hookum Chund, and the proceedings are interrupted during some time.

Hookum Chund addressing Captain Thoresby says, when the Bura Sahib and you intimated to me that a Punchat was to be assembled, I agreed, and asked to have five or ten great Sirdars upon it; did you see only these persons whom you could appoint members? Were there no others? Afterwards, he observes to Colonel Speirs, there are the Rajas of Juepoor, Joudpoor, Ooduepoor, Beekuneer, Kurulee, Jesulmer, Boondee, Kota and others; these all know the way in which the disturbance of the 4th of June took place, and if you will do us justice the magnanimity of the Company will be acknowledged and appreciated.

Both of them join in saying that it is not known who wrote the body of the said note, therefore, in merely ascribing the superscription to Jotha Ram nothing is proved.

Moona Lal Sravugee is called into Court, but the prisoners Jotha Ram and Hookum Chund refuse to hear his evidence, therefore as he has been examined before* by the Court, he is desired to withdraw.

* Appeared in record of trial of Deewan Umur Chund and others.

† Meaning Ruwul Buerer Sal. They are Raj public servants.

The same proceeding repeated with Hur Lal Sravugee.

Deposition of Deewan Umur Chund regarding the note in question is read, (vide No. 2 of Appendix).

Witness.—Fasur Das Sravugee, an Officer of the Juepoor Treasury, (examined in the former trials.)

Shown the note and asked if he recognises the handwriting of the lines superscribed; produces the letter of Jotha Ram which he before brought with him, and strives hard to evade giving a more decided answer than an averment of the strong similarity as to the writing between the two papers, at length, an answer free from any comparison with that or any other paper being insisted on, he declares that the hand of the superscribed lines exactly resembles the handwriting of Jotha Ram.

Witness.—Suda Sookh Sravugee (examined in the last trials)—deposes that the lines upon the upper part of the note are in the handwriting of Jotha Ram; he has no doubt on the subject.

Witness.—Sivu Lal, Sravugee, Peshkhar of Dewanee, formerly under Jotha Ram—deposes that the two lines are in the handwriting of Jotha Ram; does not recognise the hand in which the body of the note is written; the hand of Jotha Ram is familiar to him; this has been written by him.

The Sunghees put no question to the above witnesses.

Witness.—Dhun Singh, Chobdar, servant of Jotha Ram at Deosa—deposes that at Deosa a separate tent was appropriated to the Toshuk Khanu, and when the tent was struck a hut supplied its place. Mangeea Poorohit and Vishnu lodged in the Toshuk Khanu. At meals Mangeea and a few more used to attend Jotha Ram, but deponent never was near enough to hear the subject of their conversation.

Witness.—Nund Lal Kutareo, Sravugee, servant of Jotha Ram at Deosa—deposes, that all he can say is, that Mangeea and Vishnu used to read and write for Jotha Ram at Deosa. They frequently conversed with him privately, but deponent never learned the subjects of their discourses.

Witness.—Munneea, Sravugee, was retained by Jotha Ram at Deosa; had no opportunities of learning what was going on; Mangeea and Vishnu resided in the Toshuk Khanu; can tell nothing more.

Witness.—Qusim Ulee, servant of Jotha Ram at Deosa—does not know whether Mangeea or any one else did or did not convey letters or their contents to Jotha Ram; nor can he tell if they ever wrote. There were about two hundred servants of Jotha Ram at Deosa. Mangeea and others used to visit a well in the neighbourhood, and such information as they obtained from travellers they communicated to Jotha Ram, and Chand Singh and others; they did this in order to please their master, cannot say if messengers ever came from Agra or other place; never went into the Toshuk Khanu; to write was forbidden; does not know if strangers ever gained admittance; to speak in the ear or whisper was prohibited; there was a Dufadar near the guddee of Jotha Ram, and two Sentries stood a few paces distant from it; when Sunghejee went to his meals there was a Qunat put up, but one side was open, and a Sentry was looking on; several of Jotha Ram's servants were in attendance when their master took his meals. Nund Lal, Bijue (Vishnoo) Ram and Mangeea were there; the truth is that deponent's duty was to be in waiting near the bestead of Jotha Ram after midnight; can tell what took place at that time, but did not approach unless sent for at any other time of the day or night; there were between 70 and 90 Sipahs in the service of Sunghejee at Deosa, and one of those generally came to call deponent when he was wanted: the Sipahs went about unarmed and were included among Sunghejee's servants.

Witness.—Mangeea Poorohit, servant of Jotha Ram at Deosa—acknowledges that his former depositions (No. 2 of Appendix) are in conformity with facts. Letter (No. 9 of annexed copy of Letters) from Gyau Chund, is put into his hands and he is asked for whom it was intended;—answers, for Sunghejee: cannot tell who wrote it: it was addressed to deponent, but the contents were intended for Sunghejee: it was not in his power to have a note written to Budaranjee (as requested in the letter), and the letter was not read to Sunghejee: there was nothing to write about in answer: Ram Koonwur (mentioned in the letter) was a Brahmun: the information Ram Koonwur gave was that he sent his blessing and so forth, nothing of importance: he said the letter came from Bence Duttu Brahumun, but deponent is not acquainted with any man of that name Ram Koonwur, or some one else, was the bringer of the letter: if an answer was written, does not recollect any thing of it: did probably write something in reply: the letter came from Juepoor. Formerly deponent was one among eight servants who were in constant attendance upon Jotha Ram, and used to see Budaranjee (Raoop) when they went to the palace. Ram Koonwur will have brought dry tobacco, beetle-nut, cloves, cardamums and black pepper; those are the things alluded to in the letter.

Q.—In this letter is written—"this time your enemies are the whole word." Whose enemies are meant?

A.—The enemies of Sunghejee.

Q.—Whose identical handwriting is requested?

A.—That of Sunghejee, and it was required to be sent for the satisfaction of Budaranjee. (At this point of the examination, Jotha Ram says in rather a low tone, but loud enough to be heard distinctly by witness and several others who were near him, "Too dure mut murba se"—don't fear to die, at the same time Hookum Chund by stretching out his leg touches with his foot the stool upon which Mangeea is seated.)*

Q.—"It appears probable that he will come to Juepoor before me"—what is the meaning of this passage?

A.—He has written at random; how should I know the meaning? The letter was never read by me. I know not whether the writer was one or two days in writing it. I also used to write any thing, whether true or false; in the way that I read the letters which came, I was wont to answer them.

Q.—"You write about the Bukhsheejee; I tell you do not place a single grain of trust in that man." In passage who is the Bukhsheejee? and what had been written concerning him?

A.—I know nothing about the Bukhsheejee, and if there was any thing written I don't remember it. The witness, who appears to be in the last stage of a rapid consumption, and has answered the questions put to him with much difficulty, especially since the words were spoken by Jotha Ram which have been quoted, is now so much exhausted as to be scarcely able to speak; there being therefore no prospect of any information being obtained his further detention before the Court he is dismissed.

The time of the Court is again occupied for about three quarters of an hour with listing to many observations and abrupt addresses made by Jotha Ram and Hookum Chund, in which there appeared to be few points of sufficient importance to be recorded, Jotha Ram asserted that the note, the superscribed lines of which are attributed to him, was a forgery, that it could not be proved he ever read or wrote at Deosa, without formal permission obtained from the Officer in charge of the Detachments of Troops there—that he is entirely ignorant of every thing concerning the letters seized, and if his servants depose aught to the contrary of this, they are not worthy of credit, as they are now in the power of others—that every one, indeed, is now against him, and no testimony tending to criminate him in any way ought to be received.

* Vide Trial of Deewan Umur Chund and others.

* Witness was seated with his back to the prisoners and in front of them.

Afterwards Hookum Chund made a more formal speech, the purport of which was to explain that he was residing quietly in his house at Agra, when Mr. Man el, taking him quite by surprise, surrounded the place with about a hundred men, and then searching for every written document that was to be found, carried off the whole of his papers, amounting to nine maunds weight. That after this, his person was at liberty for nearly two months before the papers were examined, and had he been conscious of any guilt, was it at all probable that he should have remained in his house at Agra, when the sure mode of safety by flight was at his option.

The Court now announce an adjournment in the first instance to 7 o'clock on Monday morning, and subsequently, on account of one of the members being unable to attend until after the performance of prescribed observances, consequent on the demise of a member of the royal family of his state, to 7 o'clock on the morning of Wednesday the 27th instant.

Wednesday, 27th of July, 1836. Eight o'clock A. M.

The Court being assembled, the prisoners under trial are introduced and proceedings commence.

Thakoor Chand Singh, who commanded a detachment of Suwars, on the part of the Raj, at Deosa, called before the Court and examined. Deposes:—I arrived at Deosa on the 6th Buesakh Budi (18th of April 1835,) and came on duty upon the 8th ditto—had my own tent pitched near the tent of Sunghee Jotha Ram on the latter day, and subsequently, always remained present. Sungheejee had from fifty to a hundred servants, and none of them were denied admission to him. It was directed that inkstand and paper should not be taken into his tent, and I can testify that he was not supplied with these articles openly, and I never heard that they were conveyed to him privately. His Goomashtas Manglee Ram, Vishnu Ram, and others, used to write in the Toshuk Khanu near his tent, and they were continually in communication with their master. On the occasion if the Palkee arriving from Agra and letters being found on it, the Risaldar and I jointly sealed up the letters in an outer envelope, and transmitted them to the Bura Sahib. The letters were not opened at Deosa. A Dufadar and two Sentries of the English Risalu were on duty near Sungheejee: they were placed to observe him, but were not to restrain him from conversing as he pleased with his servants. As long as the Captain Sahib staid at Deosa, two sentries were outside the tent but near it: after the departure of the gentleman (21st April), a Dufadar and two Sentries remained inside the tent; the Dufadar sat down, and the Sentries walked to and fro in the tent; they were in the tent day and night: the Sentries of the Raj detachment were posted outside the tent, to which there was a Qunat attached which prevented their seeing the interior of it. The Raj people were not permitted to approach the Qunat of the tent. This is the arrangement that was made, and which remained in force. I was accustomed to visit Sungheejee daily in the evening, and, if there were any call for it, I went oftener. Manglee and Vishnu Ram used to write very frequently in the Toshuk Khanu: they so employed themselves at all times, both when the Purdu of the doorway was up or when it was down, for reading and writing were not prohibited to them. At the times that I visited Sungheejee, he was always seated upon his Guddee.* Manglee Ram and Vishnu Ram would confer with their master, after which they would go and sit down to write. The Dufadar and Sentries were placed to observe Sungheejee, in order that he should not abscond, and that his person should be protected. He never wrote in my presence (without permission), but I cannot answer for his never having had the opportunity of writing secretly; I never saw him write thus. The camp was outside the town of Deosa. It was forbidden that strangers should be allowed to enter his tent, but his own attendants had free ingress to it. When Sungheejee ate his meals he was attended by several of his servants; the Sentries could keep him in view at such times. The place where he used to eat, was at the distance of about twelve places from the tent, and it was surrounded by a Qunat which was open on the side towards the tent. His own servants brought him water whenever he required it. There was another Qunat fixed for purposes of purification, and when Sungheejee went within it, a sheet was suspended in the doorway. The tent was a large Hindoostanee two-poled one, which was surrounded by a wall or Qunat attached to the fly.

Thakoor Chund Singh having given the foregoing depositions retires.

The following letters are placed upon the table, and it is proposed that they be read for the information of the Court, when the prisoners will have an opportunity of objecting to any of them for reason assigned, or making observations on the circumstances under which they were found or, if they choose, in explanation of their contents.

Letters produced and read. One written by Hookum Chund, intercepted and taken from the carrier at the village of Manpoora between Agra and Deosa.

Of those seized at Deosa.—No. 1, from Hookum Chund. No. 2, from Futih Lal. No. 3, from Hookum Chund. No. 4, written from Juepoor. No. 5, written from Juepoor. No. 6, from Futih Lal. No. 7, from Futih Lal. No. 8, from Futih Lal. No. 9, written from Juepoor. No. 10, written from Juepoor. No. 11, written from Agra. No. 12, in handwriting of Futih Lal. No. 13, from Hookum Chund, also No. 14, No. 15, from Futih Lal. No. 16, unfinished letter No. 17.

Of those found in the house of Hookum Chund at Agra, as numbered at Agra.—No. 7 and 12, from Juwahir Singh, son of Chimun Singh. No. 43, from Chimun Singh. Nos. 4, 5, 6 and 7, from Gyan Chund, son of Deewan Umur Chund. No. 11, 13, 14, 15 and 17, written from Deosa by Manglee Poorohit.

During the perusal of the foregoing letters Hookum Chund and Jotha Ram have made many observations of an unimportant nature regarding them; have taken into their own hands and examined the originals of several of them, and have referred to their explanations concerning particular letters, given before the Agent to the Governor General, when they were questioned respecting them in December and January last.

The Court now adjourn,—to meet again about 7 o'clock to-morrow morning.

Thursday Morning, 28th July, 1836.

The Court assemble a few minutes before eight o'clock and the prisoners having entered take their seats.

The perusal of the Agra papers is resumed.

* Witness explained that previous notice was always given of his approach.

Nos. 33 and 29, from Deosa, No. 24, alleged petition of Roopa Budaran, No. 45, alleged petition of Deewan Umar Chund and others. Nos. 39, 28 and 19, from Deosa. No. 27, in the handwriting of Hookum Chund. The way in which this paper was brought forward by Hookum Chund at Agra, and the reasons there are for concluding it to be a fictitious document, prepared expressly for the purpose of anticipating imputation and exonerating the two brothers from suspicion, whilst at the same time Rawul Buersee Sal, Thakoor Lukshmun Singh, and others, should be insidiously marked out for unhesitating accusation, as if the previous knowledge of matters possessed by the correspondents naturally forced them upon such conclusion, are explained to the Court.

Thakoor Jutun Singh being called, deposes, * that he was present at Agra when Hookum Chund complained to Captain Conolly that one of his papers, a letter of some importance had been consigned to a wrong bag, that is, had not been put into the bag appropriated to what were, on first perusal, judged to be the most important documents found; and said that the Raj deputies must have made this arrangement intentionally, and that it was treating him unfairly. Search was made the next day for the paper to which he alluded, and this letter, No. 27, was the one he selected.

Extract from the examination of Sunghee Hookum Chund before the Agent to the Governor-General and others in January last, bearing upon the circumstances connected with this letter are read.

Hookum Chund remarks, that there were multitudes of letters in his house at Agra, when his papers were seized, and that the special letter to which this was an answer, must be somewhere among those which did not attract observation. Cannot say why this was not forwarded to Deosa. Often letters are written and not despatched.

No. 35.—A note in the handwriting of Duya Ram Bhattacharj, read and exhibited.

Other letters of Duya Ram are shown, and the writing is compared; the wrong, the exact similarity of the hands is obvious at first sight, as is generally remarked.

Hookum Chund declares that the note in question was not written by Duya Ram, then says that he knows nothing about it, and that its contents need no explanation.

Extract from examination of Hookum Chund in January last, touching this note read. No. 31.—A note found at Agra, produced and read.

Hookum Chund avers that this note was not among his papers originally, but was introduced surreptitiously by one of the Raj deputies, and appeals to the depositions that were taken at Agra on this subject. These are brought forward and read.—Vile Appendix No. 4, for abstracts of them.

Witness.—Chutoor Bhoj, called before the Court and examined,—deposes, that he was in the room at Agra, and sitting at the table upon which the papers were undergoing examination, when the note in question turned up. Conolly Sahib took the papers out of a bag, signed them, and then passed them along the table, to be looked at and separated by the persons appointed to that duty. Three papers were attested and shoved over by Mr. Conolly, and with them came this note, which was first seen and taken up by witness, who was one of the inspectors; he gave it to the Thakoor Jutun Singh to return to the gentlemen for signature. When it had been signed and was about to be put into the bag of important documents, on accounts of its matter, and the date upon it which was mentioned, Hookum Chund called out—"let me see it"—and declared that it could not have been found among his papers. Depositions were then taken on the subject. Deponent remembers well that he was the person who took up the note from the table, and gave it to Jutun Singh to place before the gentleman for signature. In the course of the inspection, which lasted many days, several small papers were accidentally passed upon the table without having been noticed by the gentlemen in the way this was, and were subsequently returned for signature.

Witness.—Thakoor Jutun Singh—deposes, that he sat next Captain Conolly at the examination of papers, and received the note, afterwards disputed, from Chutoor Bhoj, to present to the gentleman for signature. Hookum Chund made no objection at the moment, nor until it had been mentioned that it was an important document, and its date had been alluded to, when he seemed to become aware suddenly of its nature, and then he declared that it was not amongst his papers, and accused the Raj deputies, especially Seeta Ram Mootsaddie, who has been long attached to the Rawal, of having introduced it fraudulently.

The prisoners, Hookum Chund and Jotha Ram, have referred frequently, to answers and explanations given by them in December 1835, and January 1836, when they were examined concerning the letters now before the Court, and several extracts have been read from their recorded examinations, it is therefore proposed that the whole of these documents be read over, and the prisoners are desired to make such observations as they please in the course of the perusal.

Examination of Sunghee Jotha Ram at Deosa in December 1835, read aloud.

The time of adjournment having arrived, the Court rise, after signifying that they shall sit again from seven o'clock on the morning of the morrow.

Friday, 29th July, 1836.

The Members of the Court assemble this morning a few minutes after seven o'clock.

The prisoners are introduced and take their seats as usual. The examination of Hookum Chund in January last. In the commencement of the perusal of this document, Hookum Chund and Jotha Ram make many remarks and short harangues, intended to establish the position, that, though these letters were found in the house at Agra, and in the Toshuk Khanu and elsewhere at Deosa, yet it by no means followed that they should be acquainted with the authors of them, or have any knowledge of many of the topics referred to in them, especially as the matter was frequently mysterious; therefore that they could not be criminated by them in any way and were not bound in their own defence to furnish any explanation concerning them. The Court express their opinion as being entirely at variance with what the prisoners are contending for, concerning the responsibility of persons possessed of such documents, under the circumstances with reference to which these must be viewed; and warn the prisoners that they are bound for their own justification to offer full explanation on matters of which it is impossible to consider them ignorant. The foregoing is the substance of the discussion, which was considerably lengthened out by the perseverance of the prisoners. At last Hookum Chund observes, that he kept nothing concealed in his preliminary examination, the reading of which is resumed.

TOWN HALL, NOVEMBER 14, 1836.

Chairman—MR. SAMUEL SMITH.

Croupier—MR. H. SCOTT THOMSON.

About 100 Gentlemen sat down to dinner. After the cloth was removed, the Chairman rose and addressed the guests as follows:

I.—THE KING.

(God save the King.)

Gentlemen,—As loyal subjects, it is our first duty to evince our respect for the Sovereign under whose sway we enjoy peace and freedom, and are enabled to pursue our various avocations undisturbed by fears of foreign or domestic aggression. Gentlemen, I give you the health to the King of Great Britain, Lord Paramount of India, His Majesty King William IV.

II.—THE QUEEN AND PRINCESSES.

(My ain kind dearie.)

Ready as we have shown ourselves to evince respect to our King, we shall, I am sure, be even more eager to prove our devotion to the fair sex. I therefore, without further preface, propose to you the health of the Queen and Princesses of the Royal Family.

III.—LORD AUCKLAND AND THE COUNCIL OF INDIA.

(Rule Britannia.)

Gentlemen,—Let us now approach the land we live in and speak of our local rulers, Lord Auckland and the Council of India. I would premise that this is a private not a public meeting, and that it is desirable to eschew politics as much as possible. I may also observe, that much as the conduct of the Supreme Government has been canvassed in public and in private—the time has not yet arrived when we can form any very decisive opinion of the merits or demerits of the supreme Council of India—at all events we do not desire just now to discuss the question.

If there be no possibility of forgetting even for two hours the Black Act of Lord Auckland's administration, let us at least put in the opposite scale the White Act which abolished the transit duties, and some few other good and several unobjectionable Acts, and then wait with as much patience as we can for the long promised Code, in the hope that it may in some degree compensate for the past.

Gentlemen,—In good faith and in fair hope for the future, I give you Lord Auckland and the Council of India.

IV.—BURKINYOUNG AND ROGERS.

(Should auld acquaintance be forgot?)

Gentlemen,—We now approach the special subject of this day's assembly, but before I enter into it, allow me to detain you a few minutes to explain the nature and particular object of this meeting; this is the more necessary, as since it was first projected, it has somewhat extended its objects.

It is well known to you all that our esteemed friends Burkinyoung and Rogers are about to depart from Calcutta; they have for the last five years, alternately presided over the first, and until lately the only body associated for common council on public objects in which we are all more or less deeply interested. I mean of course the Calcutta Trade Association.

At the last quarterly meeting of the Trade Association, Mr. Burkinyoung the Master, and Mr. Rogers, the Past Master and Treasurer, resigned their offices, preparatory to their departure for Europe.

The meeting unanimously resolved that some suitable tribute of respect should testify the sentiments of the Members on the departure from amongst them of these two gentlemen, who had so greatly advanced the objects of the association, and at the same time won the esteem of the whole society. The Committee appointed to carry this resolution into effect, finally decided that their respected Master and Treasurer should be invited to partake of a farewell dinner with the Members of the Association, and it was subsequently agreed that any friends of Messrs. Burkinyoung and Rogers who wished to join in this tribute of respect, should be at liberty to do so, even if they were not Members of the Association.

A subsequent event took place which I will explain by and bye, as to do so now would distract your attention from the toast I am about to propose, which may be considered the official toast of the evening. This object accomplished, we may then indulge in individual or miscellaneous toasts.

Gentlemen,—I am about to propose to you the health of our two most worthy and highly esteemed guests, who having fulfilled all the duties incumbent on their station, having prospered in business, are now about to revisit their native country, with money in both pockets, and accompanied by the esteem and regret of all the friends they leave behind them; gentlemen I give you

The health of Messrs. Burkinyoung and Rogers, the Past Masters of the Trade Association, long life and prosperity to them in their native country.

Messrs. Burkinyoung and Rogers severally returned thanks.

V.—LORD WILLIAM BENTINCK, by the Chair.

(A March.)

Gentlemen,—I desire to propose one more public toast; which arises very naturally out of and is closely connected with the last.

I cannot speak of the Trade Association and its objects: I cannot contemplate its success, or the benefits it has conferred on society at large, as well as upon the members of the trading community by whom it was established and is supported. I cannot in fact think of the Trade Association in any of its aspects—without also thinking of Lord William Bentinck and his countenance and support of its objects—but for which I might not now be able to congratulate the members on the approach of the seventh anniversary of the Association.

Let us not forget Lord William Bentinck because he is now absent and powerless. Let us rather cherish his name as the paternal patron of the Trade Association with a determination that it shall always merit his early and efficient support of it.

Lord William Bentinck, the Patron and Friend of the Calcutta Trade Association.

VI.—ALEXANDER ROGERS, by Mr. S. Smith.

(A Man's a Man for a' that.)

Having now gone through all our public toasts, I claim your attention to a personal one, to which I am confident of your ready and cheerful applause.

The toast I am about to propose to you will, I am sure, be received with fervor; the applause you will bestow upon it will not be lip deep; it will not be a mere clapping of hands but of hearts.

We have drank health and prosperity to the Past Masters of the Trade Association—my friend Rogers is one of them—but we have spoken of him and drank his health only in his official capacity—it was arranged by the Stewards that that toast should be given as it has been—but it was also agreed that we should afterwards divide the two worthy Past Masters between the Croupier and myself—that we might “serve them up again” cooked in another fashion. They are both excellent subjects and will cut up like turkeys—very good roasted—when boiled they are also very good? then you can grill and eventually devil them, if you like—in every way they are good! But to be serious—we cannot allow them to escape with a joint official toast: we should not be satisfied if they left us thus, and we will not permit it.

After an "amicable suit" with my friend opposite, it has been decided that I am to have the pleasure of proposing the health of my very sincerely esteemed friend Alexander Rogers: it is a grateful task, and would be a joyous one, but that the recollection of his speedy departure damps the pleasure of this meeting, and checks the full expression of those feelings which were I to give way to them would make you all as melancholy as I am when I think of the many losses we have already sustained in our circle of esteemed friends, and that Rogers and Burkinyoung and another are about to depart also; but I must check this feeling or I shall infect you—I will proceed at once to the point.

My esteemed friend Rogers is well known to you all—his career has been a most fortunate one in every respect—few men have, like him, lived so many years in intimate contact with his neighbours—as a friend and man of business—without, as I fully believe, ever having made an enemy. (applause)

All who know him respect him—by those who have the pleasure of his intimacy and friendship, he is beloved and esteemed. He is in possession of all a good man can desire. He is blessed in his family—he has troops of friends desirous to do him honor—he is wealthy, and that wealth must be the sweeter in having been acquired by a course of honorable exertion. May he long live to enjoy, in the bosom of his family, the wealth he has honorably acquired.

He will depart from among us with our best wishes for his happiness, leaving behind him a name and fame, of which any and all of us may be proud—for my own part I can imagine no greater and better reward than after a long and laborious life spent in India, to be able to quit it; as my friend will, accompanied by the regrets, good wishes, and esteem of all! He will depart but the memory of his virtues—the stimulus of his example will remain behind—will still dwell with us and be fondly cherished by all who have enjoyed his intimacy or can appreciate his worth. Gentlemen, I give you the health of Alexander Rogers and a long life and happiness to him, whether he enjoys those blessings in his native country or returns to share them with us. (Great applause.)

Mr. Rogers returned thanks in a very eloquent speech, to which we are unable to do justice and therefore will not attempt to report it.

VII.—F. H. BURKINYOUNG, by Mr. R. Scott Thomson.
(O'er the hills and far awa.)

Gentlemen,—The toast I am about to offer to your notice is one, in which I am sure you will cordially join me; it is the health of Mr. F. H. Burkinyoung individually. The tribute of respect which has been so justly paid by our Chairman, to Mr. Rogers, I feel assured is equally applicable to our friend Mr. Burkinyoung.

There are many amongst us, who will join with me in bearing testimony to the warmth and steadfastness of that gentleman's friendship in private life, but it is not on that account alone that I should wish you to dedicate a bumper to his health: Mr. Burkinyoung has, for a series of years, by his talent, industry, and good conduct, tended materially to raise the Tradesmen of Calcutta to their present respected and independent footing, and it is a matter of much regret that he should be leaving us at a time when the tide of his usefulness is just setting in. The Tradesmen of Calcutta owe Mr. Burkinyoung a debt of gratitude, and I am glad to see around me so many assembled this evening to pay him so deserved a mark of respect.

It must be a source of no small gratification to Mr. Burkinyoung to know that whilst he is returning to another and more social country with the fruits of his honest industry that he carries with him the good wishes and esteem of his fellow citizens.

Mr. Burkinyoung returned thanks in a very impressive speech.

VIII.—JOHN HASTIE, by Mr. S. Smith.

(Tudlin hame.)

Gentlemen,—Once more I call upon you to fill your glasses, while I offer you another toast, probably the last I shall propose to-night.

I told you that after the plan of the dinner had been circulated, and all matters arranged, it was announced to us that another much esteemed friend of ours, also a Member of the Association, was obliged to proceed to England, and had joined our friends Rogers and Burkinyoung, in their proposed expedition overland to Europe. Indisposition prevents his presence here this evening.

Mr. John Hastie is well known to you all—and universally esteemed. His absence to-night is much to be regretted for many reasons, but necessity and not his will consents—we must content ourselves by wishing him a speedy restoration to health and return to India—unless indeed he, like his brother, becomes a Member of the British Parliament and a champion of East Indian rights and interests. This I hope and expect, and in the event of success, we must sacrifice our private feelings and wish him to remain where we can hope for little until we are fully represented—either directly or indirectly—Gentlemen, I give you "A speedy restoration to health, and a pleasant journey to our friend John Hastie."

IX.—THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE, by Mr. W. Turner.

X.—MR. CLARKE AND THE CALCUTTA BAR, by Mr. Rogers.

Mr. Clarke returned thanks and proposed

XI.—THE CALCUTTA TRADE ASSOCIATION.

(Money in both pockets.)

Mr. S. Smith returned thanks.

XII.—MRS. ROGERS AND HER FIRE SIDE, by Mr. R. Scott Thomson.

(Green grow the rushes O!)

I have much pleasure in bringing forward the next toast and requesting you to fill a bumper to "Mrs. Rogers and her fire side."

We all know (at least the most of us do) the value of the married state, and can appreciate the happiness of that man who has for a partner one, who possesses all the virtues and qualifications to render it desirable; gentlemen, such a partner has Mr. Rogers:

I have had the honor of that lady's acquaintance for many years, and I can safely say that I never experienced more cordial hospitality or witnessed more genuine domestic felicity than at Mrs. Rogers' fireside; she was the ornament of the circle in which she moved and her departure from amongst us will be long felt by those who enjoyed the pleasure of her society.

I trust that Mr. Rogers on rejoining the partner of his home will convey to her the lively recollection we continue to entertain of herself and family.

XIII.—OUR NATIVE LAND.

(Home, sweet home.)

XIV.—THE LAND WE LIVE IN.

(Tassa ba-tassa.)

XV.—THE LADIES.

(Love's young dream.)

XVI.—THE ABSENT MEMBERS OF THE TRADE ASSOCIATION.

(Days of langsyn.)

BONDING WAREHOUSE SCHEME MEETING.

A Meeting of Subscribers to the Bonding Warehouse Scheme was held on the 7th of November, in the Exchange Rooms—Mr. James Stewart in the Chair.

The following are the Resolutions passed:—

Resolved.—1st. That the original scheme be extended to 2,000 shares of 500 Company's rupees each, instead of 1,000 shares.

2d.—That a provisional Committee be appointed for the purpose of receiving plans and estimates and communicating with the Board of Customs and with Government for the purchase of the required ground, and other matters, and of drawing up Rules for Association.

3d.—That the Subscription, having been filled up to 2,000 shares, be now closed, and a deposit of 10 per cent. thereon be paid up within one month from this date into the Union Bank; in default of which on any shares, such shares shall be forfeited.

4th.—That the following gentlemen form the Committee:—Mr. Willis, Mr. Cockerell, Mr. Bruce, Mr. Braddon, Mr. Wm. Adam, Mr. Colvin, Mr. Stewart, Mr. Wm. Prinsep, Capt. Ouseley, Mr. Seppings, Mr. J. B. Higginson, Mr. John Watson and Mr. Collier.

5th.—That Mr. Wm. Limond officiate as Secretary to the Committee.

There was a little discussion at first as to who had the right of voting, the subscribers on the first list of 1,000 shares, or the subscribers in both the original and supplementary list, which point was decided in favor of the former—and having been so, it is the more creditable to the liberality of the meeting, that an amendment to the first (Mr. Cockerell's) resolution, moved by Mr. Willis, to confine the subscription to the first 1,000 shares be-spoken, was rejected by a large majority. In justice to the mover of the amendment however, we must state that he founded his objections to the increase upon the want of information to shew that a larger subscription was required, and also upon an idea that it was inconsistent with the prospectus put forth, which the public had subscribed; and he also doubted the propriety of letting in men as original subscribers who had reserved their subscriptions till they saw how the scheme would take. Mr. Willis's view of the matter was supported by Mr. Wm. Adam; but the remarks of both were very well answered by Mr. Cockerell, who declared that the object of the undertaking was the general convenience of trade, not to turn a large profit upon the monopoly of a valuable privilege, or to give an opportunity for jobbing in shares; that five lakhs would not enable them to buy the land, which he thought it very desirable to do, and in fact the first idea entertained was to get up a subscription of ten lakhs, but there was then no hope of raising so large a sum; that Government had invited men in the services to subscribe, and at the same time it was the most desirable to have as general support as possible from the merchants. Now it happened, that many of the latter were only upon the second list, though that was not his case; were they to be admitted upon the former by throwing out non-mercantile men? A suggestion from Mr. Stocqueler, that the list should still be left open for people in the Mofussil, Mr. Cockerell treated as preposterous, now that there was no room for them, and besides it was contrary to all usage; the scheme was a local one, and was naturally taken up by persons on the spot; but no secret had been made about it, and plenty of opportunity had been given for distant subscriptions.

Before the Meeting broke up, Mr. Willis took the opportunity of mentioning another scheme, which he was about to bring forward, for a similar association to establish public Warehouses for country goods. He had thought of the plan fifteen years ago, but at that time the agency system stood in the way of its success. The facilities of various kinds it would afford to mercantile operations, he conceived to be numerous,—and we do not think he at all over stated them. A strong disposition appeared in the room to support an undertaking of the kind, introduced under such auspices.—Calcutta Courier.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

At a Meeting of the Proprietors and Subscribers of the Calcutta Public Library, on the 8th November 1836.—

T. DICKENS, Esq., in the Chair.

The following resolutions were carried unanimously: On the motion of Mr. Leith, seconded by Mr. Richmond—That J. Bell, Esq., be elected a Curator in the room of the late James Kyd, Esq.

On the motion of Mr. J. P. Grant, seconded by Mr. Leith—That in consequence of the increased subscriptions the demand upon the Proprietors for the next quarter be reduced to Three Company's rupees.

Since the last Meeting on the 6th August, fifteen new subscribers have joined the institution, and two third class subscribers have transferred their names to the second class. Eight subscribers have withdrawn, four of whom have left or are on the point of leaving Calcutta.—Hurkaru.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

At the Meeting of the Chamber of Commerce on the 23d of November, it was unanimously agreed to thank the Government for the promptitude with which provision had been made for carrying the Sugar Act into effect in Bengal. Two slight alterations only in the Draft of the Local Act, the Chamber think it expedient to suggest—first, in the second section, which now runs thus:—

“And it is hereby enacted, that if any person being in possession of sugar the produce of the said territories, desires to obtain a certificate of origin from the Collector, or Assistant Collector of the Land or Custom Revenue of any District within the said Territories, or from any other officer appointed by the Governor-General of India in Council to give such certificates, such person shall, in the presence of the officer from whom he desires to obtain such certificate, make and subscribe a declaration in the form contained in the schedule hereunto annexed marked A." It is proposed to insert after the words "any person," the words "or his authorized agent," the motive for this being to prevent inconveniences that undoubtedly will arise, if the personal attendance, before the Collector, of the party having the sugar in his possession be in all cases required. The second alteration proposed is a mere verbal one of trifling importance. It occurs in the declaration to be made before the Collector, namely in Schedule A.

"I, A. B., solemnly declare that all the sugar hereunder described is, to the best of my knowledge and belief, the produce of this district of——."

After the blank, the Chamber suggest the insertion of the following words in parenthesis—" (or of such other districts as the case may be)."

Taken all together, the Act and forms of Certificate seem to have given very general satisfaction.—Calcutta Courier.

TS. ANDREW'S DAY.

About 120 sons of St. Andrew, with some score of guests from the banks of the Thames, the Shannon and the Dee, assembled at the Town Hall on the 30th Nov., to do honor to the memory of the pious Saint.

Mr. Leith was in the Chair, with Sir Edward Ryan and Sir Benjamin Malkin on his right and Sir John Grant and Mr. Dickens on his left.

Captain Hope officiated as Croupier, and Messrs. D. Macfarlan, J. Mellis, W. F. Fergusson, J. C. Wilson, R. S. Thomson, W. Storn, A. H. Sim, and W. Spier, acted as Stewards.

The greatest hilarity prevailed. The Chairman and Stewards were most successful in their arrangements for the evening; so much so that there were few deserters from the groaning board until the small hour approached.

We regret our inability to do justice to the wit and eloquence which abounded at the ends and sides of the table: there were no orations, nor set speeches but many very lively sallies and some soul-stirring appeals to the best feelings of human nature.

Several public guests, who would, we are told, have otherwise been present, were prevented by illness or deaths intervening. General Allard was to have been present, but he did not arrive in time. He only reached town on Thursday morning.

We annex a list of the toasts.

AGRICULTURAL AND HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY OF INDIA.

A General Meeting was held at the Town Hall on the 9th of Nov.

Present.—The Hon'ble Sir E. Ryan, Kt., President, in the Chair.

The Hon'ble Col. Rehling,	Nawab Tohowar Jung,
Wm. Storm, Esq.,	Jos. Willis, Esq.,
A. Dobbs, Esq.,	C. Hutchins, Esq.,
A. Grant, Esq.,	Mr. J. W. Masters,
H. M. Low, Esq.,	and
John Allan, Esq.,	John Bell.

Visitors.—G. A. Prinsep, Esq., Dr. McClelland, and J. W. Payter, Esq.

The proceedings of last meeting were read and confirmed.

The President opened the business of the meeting, by referring to the death of Mr. Jas. Kyd, one of the Society's brightest ornaments.

Sir Edward Ryan proposed, seconded by the Secretary, and unanimously

Resolved,—That this meeting record with sentiments of sorrow and deep regret the loss which the Society sustains by the death of their late respected fellow-labourer, Jas. Kyd, Esq.

When the first meeting of this Society was held on the 14th of September, 1820, a list of the names of 38 gentlemen who had signified their wish to be members was delivered in by the founder Dr. Carey, in which was that of Mr. Kyd.

Of these 38, only two are now left to commemorate the event, viz. Dis. Marshman and Wallich.

Ever since that period until the late melancholy event, which forms the subject of this minute, Mr. Kyd steadily adhered to the interests of the institution. His innate modesty, while it prevented him for a long time from taking a very prominent part in the Society's proceedings, did not lessen his zeal, and in many useful schemes and suggestions we find the name of James Kyd, intimately associated.

Even until within a few days of his death, and when unable to leave his couch, he was engaged in reading and selecting papers for the Society's transactions, and displayed, in conversing with the Secretary, as much real interest in the welfare of the Society, as he could have done, had he been dictating his last will.

The following gentlemen proposed at the last Meeting were duly elected by ballot.

W. Money, Esq.,	Maharajah Dhewaj,
M. P. Edgeworth, Esq.,	Matachund Bahadoor,
J. Furlong, Esq.,	Rajah of Burdwan, and
A. Freeman, Esq.,	Dr. Robt. Wight.

Honorary Member.—Dr. Charles Hufnagle.

Proposed by the Hon'ble W. H. Melville, and seconded by Sir E. Ryan.—J. P. Grant, Esq.

Proposed by Mr. Bell, and seconded by Sir E. Ryan.—Baboo Rajkissen Mookerjia, of Hazareebaugh.

Proposed by Mr. Bell, and seconded by W. Storm, Esq.—Robt. Smith, Esq.

Proposed by W. Cobb Hurry, Esq., and seconded by John Bell, Esq.—J. W. Payter, Esq.

The Secretary brought to the notice of the meeting that the 15th instant had been fixed for the first show of vegetables, with a view to encourage early peas and cauliflowers, but from the enquiries he had made, and through the appearance of the native gardens, it was hopeless to expect any.

Resolved. That the exhibition which was to have taken place on the 15th instant, be postponed until Wednesday the 21st of December next, when the grand shew will be held in the Town Hall.

The President here observed, that in connexion with the subject of Cotton, which would engage the attention of this morning's meeting chiefly, he held in his hand a paper written by the Secretary, in answer to one which had very lately appeared in the papers of this Presidency—issued by Dr. Lush, Supt. of the Botanic Garden, Bombay Presidency, the nature of whose essay was likely to distract the attention of agriculturists.

Sir E. Ryan then proceeded to read Mr. Bell's remarks, leaving out extracts, already familiar here, to the Members, but which were of necessity introduced to support Mr. Bell's arguments against the theory of Dr. Lush.

The thanks of the meeting were offered to Mr. Bell, and the paper was ordered to be printed in the Society's Transactions.

From Capt. A. Watt, dated Allahabad, October 6th, in reply to the Secretary's letter of the 29th of Sept., intimating his ready compliance with the Committee's request to receive, and forward, on behalf of the Society, the varieties of American and Egyptian Cotton seed, despatched from Calcutta by the Steamers, on the 10th and 12th of October.

N. B.—This seed was forwarded to Allahabad, under the advice and instruction of the Agricultural Committee, based on a Resolution to address Government on the subject of applying free carriage of parcels from one part of India to another. Confidently hoping that in a matter which so intimately concerned the future interests of the state, some trifling temporary sacrifice might be made in seconding the efforts of the Society to introduce generally a better quality of cotton; but the Committee were mistaken in their estimate. The cause of disappointment is explained in the two following communications.

From G. J. Siddons, Esq., Post-Master General, to the Secretary, dated Oct. 17th, forwarding a copy of a letter addressed by that functionary to H. T. Prinsep, Esq., Secretary to Government, General Department, on the subject of Mr. Bell's application on behalf of the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of India, to be permitted the privilege of transmitting parcels of Agricultural seeds free of banghy charge from one part of India to another, which application had been preferred to the Post-Master-General for his opinion as to the expediency of complying with it.

Mr. Siddons, as Post-Master General, enters into some official details which it is unnecessary here to state;—the sum of them is however, that, as a matter of course, the grant of free banghy carriage would be accompanied by some extra expense to the Post-Office; but Mr. Siddons very properly observes, that the greater part of the charge would be on parcels of cotton seed forwarded from Allahabad to places more remote. Mr. Siddons, in the latter part of his letter, throws off the official mantle, and as a member of the Society, advocates, in a most noble manner, their cause, thus:—

" Were I permitted to look upon the question otherwise than as especially connected with the interests of this department, I would submit that the extra expense to be incurred for additional baggy burdars, would not be so considerable as to bear comparison with the important results of general good likely to arise out of the grant of the privilege which the Society solicits.

" The Agriculture of the country would be encouraged and extended,—the local mercantile produce would be improved in quality,—demand for quantity would be augmented in proportion to that improvement and the Customs Revenue would be increased," &c.

From H. T. Prinsep, Esq., Secretary to Government, General Department, dated October 19th, acknowledging the receipt of Mr. Bell's letter of the 5th, intimating that the Right Honorable the Governor of Bengal, having called upon the Post-Master-General, to state his opinion on the question alluded to in the foregoing communication, " finds that it will not be possible, consistently with the rules and interests of the department, to grant the desired accommodation. His Lordship is thus reluctantly compelled to withhold compliance with the wishes of the Society in this respect."

The Secretary had, in consequence of this unlooked for disappointment, addressed letters to many influential and public spirited Members in upper India, soliciting their co-operation to relieve Captain Watt, of the supplies of cotton seed, and to distribute it as widely as possible. The societies of Meerut and Lucknow, it is hoped, would also avail themselves of this opportunity to second the views of the Calcutta institution, in an object so important to all India.

The following abstract will show the manner in which the cotton seed has been disposed of at Calcutta. Distribution of 20 bales of Upland Georgia cotton seed, 15 ditto of New Orleans ditto, and 10 ditto of Sea Island ditto, viz.

From Dr. Wallich to the Secretary, dated 17th of October, forwarding an extract of a letter from Captain Jenkins, under date the 7th idem, with a sample of cotton taken from a cotton laden boat, coming from the Muttuck or the Bursunnaputti's country and which Capt. Jenkins describes, as much softer and finer, than what is usually found there.

From James Willis, Esq., to the Secretary, dated Nov. 8th, reporting on the quality of a specimen of Cotton, brought from Moulmein by Sir E. Ryan, who had received it from Mr. Blundell, the Commissioner there.

Mr. Willis reports upon the cotton under great disadvantage. In the first place the sample was too small, and the Secretary was unable to describe the character of the cotton; but Mr. Willis prosecutes his enquiry with his usual acuteness and decided accuracy, and feels disposed to distinguish it as the produce of American (South) seed and especially that of the Pernambuco kind.

Mr. Willis describes it as a shade inferior to some specimens of the same description which he had before examined, as produced at Malacca, Penang and Moulmein, but not materially so, and he imagines this to proceed from neglect or some other cause, which cannot of course be known, until explained by Mr. Blundell. Mr. Willis values this sample, with reference to the rates quoted in the English market in July last, at 9d per lb. at least, perhaps more.

Mr. Willis further observes.

" If I be mistaken as to the species of the plant whence this produce arises, and if it be from any indigenous seed, then the quality is so much superior to any thing which I have usually seen from any indigenous cotton plants from any part of India, that I am quite delighted to find so excellent a commodity, and so hopeful an example of what may result from the full and free exercise of British skill and capital in this kind of cultivation on the Eastern shores of the Bay of Bengal."

From Dr. Wallich to the Secretary, dated the 23d of October, forwarding specimens of shawl wool in different states, received from Mr. Hodgson, Resident in Nepal, without advice.

From J. Vaupell, Esq., Secretary to the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of Western India, dated Bombay, 28th September, acknowledging Mr. Bell's letter of the 12th of August, with parts 1 and 2, vol. 3, of the Society's transactions, &c.

Mr. V. encloses a few of the seeds of the Nankin cotton, and a pamphlet on silk, lately issued from the press by one of the Bombay Society's members, Dr. Lush, Superintendent of the Botanic Garden, Dapooree.

Memorandum.—The pamphlet contains nothing new, being a mere compilation of official reports and opinions by Commercial Residents and others on this side of India, most of which have been already published in the transactions of the Calcutta Society.

From D. McLeod, Esq., of Seonee, to the Secretary, dated the 11th of October, who in reference to the foreign acclimated sugar-cane says:—" Captain Sleeman has already informed you that he has perfectly succeeded in introducing the Otaheite sugar-cane into these territories; and through the active exertions of that officer, a supply was sent to this place amongst others, three years ago, and I am happy to state that some of our principal cultivators have now considerable plantations of it, so that I make no doubt that it will rapidly extend."

From James Anderson, M. D., Secretary to the Agricultural and Horticultural Society at Beerbhoom, to the Secretary, dated 27th (query) October, intimating the formation of a branch society at that station, to which he had been elected Secretary, and enclosing a copy of resolutions passed at the first meeting.

From Captain Thomas Leach, dated 14th October, forwarding a box containing 250 cigars made from the real Sandoway tobacco, brought round by O. K. Robison, Esq., and presented at the meeting in September last.

PRESENTATIONS.

From Thomas Bras, Esq., six seeds of the recently discovered extraordinary "cote cabbage," one of which is described as sufficient food for 100 head of English sheep per diem.

The Secretary had planted two of the seeds, but they have not vegetated as yet, although a fortnight since.

From R. W. Chew, Esq., a bottle of Virginia tobacco seed, 4 mangosteen plants, 4 woodnee plants and 1 durian plant.

Mr. Bell had given over to Dr. Wallich 2 of the woodnee and the durian plant, the others are in Mr. B.'s garden at the service of any member who takes an interest in rearing rare fruit trees.

From Mrs. W. Fairlie Clarke, a parcel of yellow or Swedish turnip seed, just sent out by that lady from England, for the use of the Society.

From Mr. P. C. Thomson, a parcel of Italian rye grass, and a new vegetable, called "cheno podium quinoom."

From Mr. Gibbon, a parcel of huskless oats.

From Captain Fergusson, of the Henry Tanner, a variety of flower and other seeds brought with him from Sydney.

From W. Cobb Hurry, Esq., a bottle of bamboo rice or seed.

Sir Edward Ryan presented the trunk of an immense bamboo which he had brought from Moulmein.

Mr. Bell presented a single pod, (the first which had ripened) of cotton produced from the Egyptian seed, received from Mr. Waghorn and planted in Mr. B.'s garden on the 28th April last, (six months and ten days.)

Mr. G. A. Prinsep and Mr. Willis pronounced it to be very like the Sea Island.

The President being obliged to retire before the business of the meeting had been concluded, the Chair was taken by the Senior Member, Joseph Willis, Esq.

The thanks of the Society were then ordered to be offered for all the foregoing communications and presentations.

JOHN BELL, Secretary.

Town Hall, Wednesday, 9th November, 1836.—Hurk.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE ASIATIC SOCIETY.

Wednesday Evening, the 2d November, 1836.

The Honorable Sir Edward Ryan, President, in the chair.

Mr. G. F. McClintock, proposed at the last Meeting, was ballotted for, and duly elected a Member.

H. Walters, Esq. C. S., J. M. Bramley, Dr. Drummond, Nawab Fatahwar Jung Bahadur, and Shah Qabir-ud-din were proposed by Mr. James Prinsep, seconded by Sir Edward Ryan.

Dr. Jackson was proposed by Dr. Pearson, seconded by Sir Edward Ryan.

Read a letter from Mr. Vincent Tregear, acknowledging his election as an associate member.

Read a letter from Mr. C. Brownlow, returning thanks for the Society's patronage of the Alif Leila, and agreeing to the stipulation for the deposit of a file of the sheets, as printed, with the Secretary.

Read a letter from J. C. Sutherland, Esq., Secretary to the General Committee of Public Instruction, requesting to know at what price the Society would supply twenty-eight copies of the Naishadha and of the Raja Tarangini, required for the use of the Government Sanscrit College.

Mr. W. H. Macnaghten moved that the books should be given gratis if intended for deposit in libraries, as the encouragement thus given to the study of these works would promote the sole object the Society had in view in completing their publication. The Secretary explained that they were required as class books; that the present application would doubtless be followed up by a constant periodical demand for this and other works; that when he guaranteed the Society against any risk in undertaking to finish the suspended volumes, he calculated on the necessary school demand for many of them as one of the means of repayment; and the prices fixed were calculated only to recover the gross amount expended in their completion: he proposed furnishing them at a reduced price. Sir Benj. Malkin and other members objected to a reduction of price, and it was resolved by a large majority that the ordinary selling price should be charged.

The Secretary submitted a correspondence with the Secretary to the Committee of Public Instruction, relative to the Oriental works deposited for sale at the London Bookseller's, which the Society's English agent from a misconception had authorized to be transferred to the Society's account, and to be sold at reduced prices.

The transfer had been countermanded as soon as known; but the Committee refused to sanction any sales that might in the meantime have been made at the reduced price, awaiting the report of the circumstances from their booksellers.

Read a letter from the Secretary of the Royal Academy of Marseilles, acknowledging the receipt of the Researches and Journals presented last year.

Shah Qabir-ud-din applied to the Society to be allowed the loan, for the purpose of taking a copy, of a very valuable manuscript of the Koran in the Library, depositing 250 rupees, the price at which it had been purchased by the Society.

Resolved.—That he should be permitted to employ kutibs in the apartment to take the copy, but that the volume could not be lent out for such a purpose.

He also requested two copies of the last three volumes of the Alemgiri, of which the three first volumes had been supplied gratis to the Susseram Madrasa by the Education Committee.

Resolved.—That this request be complied with.

Library.

A letter was read from the Secretary to Government, General Department, forwarding for deposit in the Library of the Asiatic Society the undermentioned 95 volumes being a set of the Reports and publications of the Commissioners of Records, of which three copies had been recently sent out (as printed on the reverse of the title page) "for perpetual preservation in some public library of the Bengal Presidency."

Read a letter from Mr. H. H. Horneman, forwarding for presentation a copy of the first number of the Numismatic Journal, on behalf of Mr. John Young Akerman, F. S. A. the Editor.

Meteorological Register for September, 1836, was presented by the Surveyor General.

Second Annual Report of the Statistical Society of London, presented by Dr. D. Stewart.

Literary and Antiquities.

Read a letter from H. T. Prinsep, Esq., Secretary to the Government of India, General Department, forwarding copy of a report furnished to the Government of Bombay from Colonel Chesney, of the proceedings of the Euphrates expedition, in its various departments.

A Memoir on the Antiquities of Bamian was submitted by Mr. Trevelyan, on the part of Mr. C. Masson.

The same member presented also a notice by Munshi Moham Lal, of Uch Sherif, a town near the junction of the five streams in the Punjab, celebrated as the place of sepulture of many Mahomedan saints.

Mr. S. G. Healy presented through Dr. Corbryn, the first of a series of mathematical essays on the use of functions in geometrical analysis.

Physical.

A large fossil fragment of the acetabulum of an elephant was presented by Dr. Spilsbury, found by him at Nigoni, the place where Captain Sleeman discovered the indications of the Nerbudda fossils.

Brigadier Aubury, Engineers, presented on the part of Mr. Swetenham, some incrustated petrifications of leaves from the calcareous springs in the Delra Dun.

A specimen of the red-billed parrot (Psittacus Sinensis) was presented by Dr. Bimlini, and a woodpecker by the curator, both mounted in the museum.

The Secretary read the following extract of a private letter from Dr. W. Griffith, dated Sadiya, Assam, 12th October.

"I have much pleasure in informing you that I have lately completed the arrangement of the collections of the Musci and Hepaticæ made during our late deputation into Assam. The collection of the former amounts to 154 species, or to about an eighth of the whole known number. It includes twenty-seven genera, of which I have ventured to characterise two as new. That of Hepaticæ includes forty-eight species, of which thirty-one belong to Jungermannie alone, and ten genera, of which five appear to be new. Almost the whole of both these collections were made by myself on the Khasiya Hills between Churra Punji and Nanklow, and within a period of seven weeks. Both these orders have hitherto been almost totally neglected by Indian Botanists; and the greater part of the few that have been described seem to have been sent from Nipal by the Honorable Mr. Gardiner. Hence, owing to the impossibility of obtaining advice, and as my situation obviously precludes me at present from consulting the requisite authorities, I have determined on sending the MSS. and drawings to England, accompanied with a complete series of both collections. By the adoption of this plan the stability of my very numerous new species will easily be determined."—Journal of the Asiatic Society for Oct.

* We hope soon to receive from the Tea Committee some account of Dr. Griffith's previous labours. We hear that the several reports of Dr. Wallich, Dr. Griffith, and Dr. McClelland have been some time sent in.—Ed.

MEDICAL AND PHYSICAL SOCIETY.

At a meeting of the Medical and Physical Society, held at the Asiatic Society's Apartments, Nov. 5, 1836.

S. H. Batson, Esq., Assistant-Surgeon, proposed at the last meeting, was balloted for and elected a member of the Society.

A letter from A. Smith, Esq., was read, stating that Dr. H. R. Bond requested to have his subscription discontinued as he was going to Europe.

The following communications were presented :—

A case of absorption of the Mamma following the use of Iodine, by J. Drummond, Esq., Surgeon to the Right Hon'ble the Governor-General.

The result of some experience of lithotomy by F. H. Brett, Esq., Surgeon to the Body Guard.

Two cases of lithotomy, by T. R. Mackinnon, Esq., of Tirthoot.

An account of an Epidemic fever prevailing at Mowadabad, by T. Spencer, Esq., presented by the Medical Board.

Translation of the examination of a native who lately visited Pallee, giving an account of the disease which is raging there and some letters upon the subject from Superintending Surgeon Panton, also presented by the Medical Board.

The following papers were then read and discussed :—

Mr. Drummond's case of Mammary absorption.

Case of extensive disease of the rectum, heart and colon by Dr. D. Steward.

The abovementioned account of the Pallee disease, and some remarks upon sloughing ulcers by Mr. Chapman of Purneah.

Mr. Drummond prefaced his paper by remarking, that in laying this case before the Society he did not wish to detract in any way from the merits of Iodine; so far from it, he considered it a most valuable medicine; but the present was an instance amongst some others in which its employment had been followed by disagreeable consequences. The patient was a young lady who had for some time observed an enlargement and feeling of weight in the body of the left Mamma. She allowed it to continue undisturbed for upwards of a year before she consulted a medical man. When Mr. Drummond first saw it, the tumor was about the size of a hen's egg, placed between the nipple and axilla, and firmly attached to the gland; its surface was smooth, and there was little or no pain in the part. The patient's general health was good. Various remedies were employed for some months without success, and then it was resolved to use Iodine and the Ung. Iodinæ was rubbed on the part night and morning, and ere long the swelling apparently began to diminish; but a closer examination shewed that it was the substance of the mammary gland which had wasted, and not the tumor; in a short time the breast became a flaccid pendulous bag of skin, without gland or fatty matter within it. The catamenia stopped for three months and the general health was somewhat affected. The medicine was of course immediately suspended, and by degrees the patient recovered her health, but the breast remained in the same state: six months afterwards the lady married and was delivered in due time of a son, but no improvement took place in the breast.

The native account, of the Pallee disease stated, that it begins like a fever, with cold and shivering, followed by great heat of body and delirium; on the 2d day swellings appear in the groin and in the neck, and under the ears. The disease goes on increasing till the 3d day, when the patient either dies or recovers. Some die from the violence of the fever before the swellings appear. At first the disease was seen only among the cotton printers, who are musουλmans; it then attacked the rest of the inhabitants, with the exception of the basket makers, cobblers and oil men. The deaths at one time amounted to upwards of 100 per diem. This native assigns the same ridiculous cause to the disease which has been stated in the newspapers, viz. the curse of an insulted Faqueer. He goes on to state that a great many people have fled to Joudpore and other towns and villages of Marwar. As many as 100 carts daily departed from Pallee; and business of every kind was at a stand still. The town formerly contained 12,000 inhabitants, but 3,000 only are now left. It has appeared also at Soojit, a village 10 kos from Pallee, and some of those who fled thither from the latter place died. Some of the neighbouring Takoors forbid the inhabitants of the infected district from entering their territories, whilst the Maha Rajah has permitted them to dwell wherever they please in his country. All the sanitary measures adopted by the people consist in the propitiation of the enraged gods by poojahs and ceremonies. Mr. Panton's last letter (of the 12th October) states, that Dr. Maclean of Beawor has received further accounts from Pallee, by which he is induced to believe that the disease has altered its character, and now differs from the prevailing fever of the country, only in being more severe in its character; but the mortality among those who remain in the town (the greater part having fled) is very great: moreover, animals of all kinds, birds and even fishes, are said to be dying in every direction.

Mr. Chapman attributes the great prevalence of sloughing ulcers in the jail under his care, to the neglect and ill usage of the prisoners while employed at a distance from the station, under the sole management of the native guards, combined with the unhealthiness of the district in which they were employed, inducing in these unfortunate people such a cachectic state, that the slightest scratch or graze from any cause leads to mortification of the part and Phagedenic ulceration.

He speaks also in strong terms of the foulness and contaminated atmosphere of the jail hospitals, and the difficulty of preserving amongst the sick prisoners the slightest attention to cleanliness; all which circumstances necessarily contributing to increase the unhealthiness of those who are imprisoned. The author describes the ulcer as beginning usually by a mere abrasion of skin produced by the friction of the irons, followed by a slight ulcer, with an unhealthy aspect, and discharging a foul lechor, the neighbouring skin as yet remaining healthy. The sore then increases in depth, and extends its circumference, the surrounding integuments becoming hot, swollen and glassy, attended by severe pain, the skin hot and dry, tongue foul, and covered with a thick coat. Thirst and a jaundiced aspect of countenance. Finally the surface of the ulcers bleed from various parts, the feverish and painful symptoms subside, and a state of mental and corporal collapse immediately succeeds. Gangrene now advances, destroying in its progress muscles, tendons blood-vessels, &c., to the very bone. To this state many were reduced in the course of a few days. The number of cases admitted into hospital from 1st of July to 1st December were 164, of which 64 were extreme cases; 2 only of these terminated fatally.

The disease had usually advanced considerably before the patients were brought to Dr. Chapman's notice, and he had seldom an opportunity of seeing them before ulceration had fairly commenced. In this stage, after cleaning them, caustic was freely applied, and over this a poultice of meal and charcoal. The use of the latter, the author strongly recommends: ointments, he has usually found hurtful. At the same time, calomel in small quantities, with opium and antimonials, were exhibited at night, followed in the morning by a draught of gentian, compound tincture of senna, and two or three drachms of Epsom salts: this treatment being pursued until the bad symptoms declined. If the ulcer became insistent, blue pill and opium were given so as to touch the mouth slightly. At the same time concentrated nitric acid was applied to the sore. The diet also was improved—fish, soup, and meat, given to the patients. Sulphate of copper wash was found highly beneficial, when the sore began to put on a healthy aspect. The appearance of hæmorrhage is always to be dreaded, and in an old subject is the certain forerunner of death. Nitric acid, says Dr. Capman, is alone to be relied on in this case, and for arresting the progress of the sloughing ulcer. The author speaks very highly of the employment of Fowler's solution of arsenic, given in doses of six to twelve drops twice daily. He says, it is most valuable in inducing a healthy action, while the ulcers preserve a gangrenous tendency, he considers it far superior to quinine and brandy, or any other tonic stimulants. In these cases it requires to be used with care, however, lest it produce pain in the stomach, restlessness and swellings of the gums and salivation, an effect which sometimes follows its employment.

The subject of Dr. Stewart's case, was an European of pale complexion and scrophulous appearance at 28, subject for some months to bowel complaint. On admission he sought relief from piles, which were of recent formation. These were relieved by puncturing them separately, and discharging coagula in various stages of organization by which he was considered to be cured. The patient had, however, drawn attention for some days to a dull pain in the right side, with difficulty of breathing, a slight cough, without expectoration, a hurried pulse, and a hot, dry skin. Auscultation and percussion indicated no disease of the lungs, and the cough was referred to the stomach and liver. At the same time there was great irritability of stomach, fluid food was instantly rejected. No pain was caused by pressure on the epigastrium, or along the ribs. The stools were watery and slimy, urine scanty, voided with pain. The treatment consisted of repeated application of leeches, (eight or ten,) twice a day mercurial inunction blisters, blue pill, and gentle purgatives. On the eighth day, after the removal of the piles, he had a severe rigor followed by a hot fit, and a similar, though less severe, attack, came on the next night, but they were attributed by the patient to a touch of an old ague. In spite of the remedies used, the patient did not improve, his nights were restless, a hectic flush spread over his countenance, there were frequent slight rigors, a deep scald pain in the right side shooting towards the back, white tongue and depressed spirits.

The urinary symptoms became at this time so severe, that suspicion of calculus in the bladder was entertained; but this was found to be an erroneous impression. Finally, acute dysentery came on, the limbs became dropsical, and the patient died. Doctor Stewart remarks, that if the piles had been of long standing or frequently bleeding, the disease might perhaps have been attributed to suppression of that discharge; but they were quite recent and should be considered rather as a part of the general chain of symptoms. He observes also, that the strumous diathesis of the patient precluded the full employment of mercury in the case. Upon dissection the lungs were found healthy, but the pleura contained several ounces of serum. The heart was smaller than natural, and presented a semi-transparent appearance, produced by a yellowish fatty or gelatinous looking matter contained in the cellular membrane. This substance was particularly remarkable about the apex of the right ventricle and at the base of the organ; on examination afterwards this substance was found to be neither fat nor gelatine. Within the right auricle was found more of the same formation; having however, more the appearance of membrane. The mesentery was studded with tubercles resembling those usually found in the lungs. The internal surface of the stomach was covered with a glairy secretion, and beneath it were found several bright red patches. The small intestines cæcum, and colon were healthy, but the rectum was one mass of disease, in which all its coats participated. The walls were thickened, lymph effused into the cellular tissue, the mucus membrane in the highest degree of vascular engorgement, covered with a coating of coagulable lymph, and beset with numerous ulcers; one of which had perforated the intestine. The liver was slightly enlarged on its anterior surface smooth and glossy, but natural in structure. In the under surface of the right lobe, the walls of which were two lines in thickness and containing considerable quantity of matter. The rest of the viscera were healthy.

Dr. Stewart observes upon the appearances in the heart, that pathologists generally consider that sanguineous concretions occasionally form within the cavities of that organ, and he quotes the authority of Lacnee and Audral upon the subject. From the remarks of the latter he concludes, that the concretion found in the above case, was produced by a morbid condition of the blood itself. Upon the subject of the liver abscess he notices the peculiar thickness of the walls and the perfect healthiness of the surrounding parts, together with the apparent healthiness of its function, although it was more than probable, that the disease had existed for more than three months.

The account of the dissection in this case was drawn up by Mr. R. O'Shaughnessy.

TOWN HALL THEATRE.

THE FRENCH DRAMATIC COMPANY.

THE CHALET.

The French Operatic Company, burst forth on Thursday evening in all its strength on the Calcutta public.

The pieces selected were necessarily confined to such as did not require the aid of scenery or decoration, and a more pleasing and better executed Scenic Concert, looking at the two representations given in this point of view, we have hardly ever witnessed.

THE CHALET, the literary portion of which owes its being to Messrs. Scribe and Melesville, and the music of which is given to M. Adolphe Adam, is a pleasing little piece, and was well calculated to put forth into prominent notice, the musical qualifications of Messrs. Welter and Bonniol. The opera of Monsieur Welter with the air 'Vallous de l'invective,' was a beautiful morceau, and finely executed; it sounded to us as belonging to the Italian school. If it were the production of Monsieur Adolphe Adam, he was, we suspect, indebted to his memory rather than to his invention for this piece of composition. Monsieur Bonniol and Made.

as, as usual, costumée à ravir, acquitted with great merit in their respective parts. These in this little Opera were very pleased. Fleury, Mademoiselle Fleury, Thonon, in the chorus—it is needless to say, was excellent. The Orchestra was under Thonon, and the usual good effluence of this gentleman, were visible in this department.

The next piece, the FOLIES AMOUREUSES, was a sort of musical "pot pourri" or hodge podge, the ingredients of which were very choice, as our readers will incline to think, when we tell them, that the words of the piece, which is in verse, are written for the several musical compositions of the following eminent masters:—Mozart, Cimarosa, Paer, Rossini, Pavesi, Generali, and Steibelt; the piece itself is the production of M. Castil Blaze, who has adapted to the French stage, several of the Operas of Mozart, Cimarosa, and Rossini. The ground-work of the Folies Amoureuses, is of course taken from the Comedy of Regnard. The dialogue, savoured of the racy and vigorous style of Regnard, and the character of Crispin, gave to Fleury, who was admirably dressed, an opportunity of exhibiting some piquant acting. The concerted piece throughout this Opera, were very carefully got up. Messrs. Bonniol and Fleury, among a great variety of other music, sang the well known duett from Tancredi, in which Mad. Schiaroni as Tancredi, and Pizzani, as Argio, were wont to be so effective—Ah se dei malimiei. Fleury was the Tancredi on the occasion, and acquitted himself admirably. We did not, we confess, like our old friend the duett, in this novel shape quite so well as in its Italian costume: it was, nevertheless, an exceedingly well executed morceau. Mademoiselle L' Lemery was in very good voice. The first trio between this lady, Mad. de Ligny and Welter, was beautifully executed; and was at once recognized as an old acquaintance: it was,—Si dira che siete un orso, from the Agnès. Fleury sang a comic scena from the old opera Le Trame Deluse, of Cimarosa—well known to musicians, and commencing with the words, sei morelli, e quatro bazi.

The Duett between Welter and Mademoiselle L' Lemery from the Festa della Rosa of Pavesi, was very pleasing—Io ti vidi, t'ammirai. The lady exhibited her great vocal powers, and, moreover, a considerable degree of archness and plesantry of manner, in her execution of her portion of this duett, and the fine base of Welter harmonized admirably with her clear and glassy soprano.

The quintett from the Nemici Generosi of Cimarosa, was very fine; it was executed by Mademoiselle L' Lemery, Welter, Mad. de Ligny, Bonniol, and Fleury. The old musicians present appeared to be in ecstasy. To such as were not present, we beg to communicate the fact, that this piece, "stanco ma non ferito," was a treat, which they will do well to avail themselves of on the next opportunity presented.

Madlle. L' Lemery sang shortly after this, a Spanish Seguidilla—with a pretty lament at the end of each couplet, ai, ai, ai,—beginning with the words

Plus fraîche que l'Aurore
Qui vient d'éclorre,
La Jénne Laure
A subjugué mon cœur.
Ai, ai, ai.

She is supposed to have gone mad for the occasion. It is impossible to conceive a prettier or more agreeable phasis of insanity than that, thus exhibited by the French Prima Donna. The next air, was from the Elizabetta of Rossini—Vendicar Sapro l'Offesa. This was given with great effect by Mademoiselle L' Lemery.

The duett between Bonniol and Madlle. L' Lemery, dressed en Culotte, was beautiful—che bella vita e il militar from the Donna Soldato of Generali.

The finale was an old friend of the Calcutta musical world; and consisted of Questo Nodo Svillupato, from the Generantola—and aino il pinto e Negato al ciglio from the Gazza Ladra. This morceau was exceedingly well executed, and the curtain fell amidst the well merited applause, and acclamations of a delighted audience. We have now an excellent Operatic company; they have proved themselves strong in every department of Opera; they have in addition to a good tenor, not possessed by the last Company, a female chorus, Mad. Thonon, Madlle. Fleury, and another lady, with the addition also of Mad. Welter. When we say chorus, as applied to these ladies, we mean not to designate them as mere chorus singers, but only to remark, that the excellent understanding, which pervades this company, induces these ladies to officiate in opera in this capacity very much to their own credit, and to the increased effectiveness of the representation presented.

We passed a most delightful evening—such a musical treat we have not for a long time enjoyed. We have not seen the subscription book of late; we trust it is by this time filled. One hundred and twenty subscriptions will ensure the performance of the series of sixteen operas, without a loss to the artistes. Remuneration for their labour can only be derived from any addition to this number of subscribers; and, we must needs say, the deuce himself must be in the Calcutta beau monde, if their love of good music and their Meccenas like attributes as patrons of the arts will not induce them to take by the hand these deserving and accomplished strangers.

Are Briton's sons so good or so cold as not to be tempted by the bill-of-fare we published some time since? and are rupees, Company's rupees, so scarce, that 12,000 of them cannot be marshalled in array on this interesting occasion?!

An Opera was, we ever understood, one of the necessities of life, to the educated English classes. Taking Calcutta, in point of commercial and political importance, Rio Janeiro, Marseilles, Leghorn, Brussels, &c. &c., are not her equals, and yet they must have an Opera. Indigo is up, sugar on the rise—the British Merchant has been heretofore a princely fellow—why should he now, in prosperous times, be less princely than before? However much the salaried and the Covenanted may dread a clipper, for the Calcutta Merchant a clipper has no terrors.

The cutting system may affect others, we trust it will not operate on the mercantile world, and that they will patronize, and not cut—the French Opera!

LA MARRAINE.

LA MARRAINE is an amusing vaudeville. The principal parts are Madame de Nérès and Champnoux.

Madame de Nérès is a widow of nineteen, beautiful and rich, and has a step son of her own age, Edouard. He is in love with his god mother, sic of her filleul, and the denouement, mutual declaration, and the final and fortunate marriage ever attendant on it (in a vaudeville,) is brought about in the following manner:

Champnoux, who for a rustic, exhibits considerable talents for rascality, finds amongst his father's papers, a will of a comrade in arms, by which the comrade bequeaths some 4 or 5 thousand francs a year to Edouard, the son of another comrade, and the interesting step son of Madame de Nérès, provided he marry before he attains his nineteenth year.

Champnoux, who knows as he thinks the day of the birth of Edouard, conceals the will and says nothing about it, until the period in the will mentioned has elapsed, whereby the bequest lapses also, and vests in Monsr. Champnoux himself. This for a clodhopper, is very cunning and admirably disingenuous; fortunately, however, for Edouard, Madame de Nérès, to whom Champnoux communicates this intelligence, has been puzzled with the new fangled Revolutionary names bestowed on the months, during the 9 years of the existence of the French Republic, and by some error in his calculations, the month of Vendémiaire mentioned in the will, has not quite run out, at the period he makes his communication, and Edouard has still 15 days left to get himself a wife pursuant to the terms of the will.

He poor fellow, however, happens to have fallen desperately in love with his god mother, and will not hear of marrying; his respect prevents him from disclosing his passion, and rather than offend his idol, he flies. Coming back to take his final leave, his god-mother, in her agitation at his departure, finds out the state of her own heart, and having in vain attempted to marry him to Cécile, the daughter of her homme d'affaires, she sees nothing left for it but to bestow her own hand on him; and thus the succession to the property bequeathed to Edouard, is secured to him, he having married within the time, a consummation by no means agreeable to Monsr. Champnoux.

The beautiful widow, however, after marrying her dear step-son, merely to secure him his property, somewhat inconsistently makes Edouard, who is nothing loth, resign it in favour of Champnoux, and thus all the world becomes happy and content, saying a certain Monsr. De Godry, the man of business, who being an attorney, is, as a matter of course, sacrificed, as nobody in a vaudeville ever condescends to pity an attorney; and so concludes the MARRIAGE.—Hurkaru.

LE MARIAGE DE RAISON.

LE MARIAGE DE RAISON.—This is a most interesting melo-dramatic performance, (comédie-vaudeville) the joint production of Messrs. Scribe and Varner; breathing throughout feelings of honor and morality, and presenting a set of characters exceedingly well cast. The plot consists in a love match which Mr. De Bremond, an old General Officer of the Grand Army, wishes to bring about between his Son a young Captain, and one Madlle. Luceval, born of high parentage. The Captain is, however, enamoured with Suzette an orphan girl, educated in the House of the General, as femme de chambre to his lady, and who also feels a mutual though unrevealed attachment for De Bremond. The principal interest, at the commencement of the piece, is riveted on the loving pair; but apprehensions are soon created by the positive refusal of old De Bremond to consent to an ill-assorted union, which he considers as derogatory to his rank, and at variance with the rigid maxims of the beau monde. He accordingly determines to give Suzette in marriage to a lame Serjeant, Bertrand, his former companion in arms. Pinchon is the name of a farmer inhabiting a part of the demesne where the General's Castle is situated, and his wife, Mme. Pinchon, is a good specimen of those amiable ladies of bas etags, who, as the French proverb has it, have no objection to wear their husband's breeches, and can manage to do it very good humouredly. Sozette, after all, has no objection to marry the jeune de bois, as soon as she discovers the sterling qualities of her one-legged adorer; where-upon Captain De Bremond, as a matter of course, declares his intention to kill himself; but afterwards changes this romantic determination, into that of bestowing a farm on Bertrand and Suzette, as a dowry to the latter, who accepts of it à grand cœur. The celebration of the nuptials concludes this very pretty piece,—to which the present hasty sketch has, we fear, done but imperfect justice. We can assure those who are fond of a good dramatic entertainment, that they may, on Friday evening, witness a spectacle replete with pleasant variety, and worthy to draw a full attendance.—Calcutta Courier.

THE TARTUFFE.

The Tartuffe, was performed to a very thin audience. Tartuffe, as he called himself, was very nice; but for reasons best known to himself, and wholly inscrutable to us, he chose to Italianise the verses of Moliere, and for the French (u) eue, he invariably substituted the Italian ou (u). We trust this is not a symptom of rattling. After all that has been lately said, in favour of French music and French Artists, we should grieve to see the "grand promoter and supporter of dramatic entertainments in our otherwise joyless city," turning round and setting up for Italianism. This, added to the supreme contempt evinced by Tartuffe for the gender of his articles, leads us to anticipate with some alarm, a diminution of French enthusiasm in this quarter. Be this as it may, this curtailed version of what is called the chef d'œuvre of Moliere went off heavily. It was a recreation at once highly rational, and the audience, rari nantes in gurgite vasto, i. e. (a select body of dilettanti, scattered few and far between the vast ocean of chairs) yawned prodigiously—at length, the curtain dropped, and the busy hum of life was heard again. The audience, like unto the inhabitants in the enchanted city, were once again awakened into animation. The Philire commenced. Fradin appeared, and from this moment all was laughter and enjoyment. Madame de Ligny, Fleury, and the admirable Fradin, excelled themselves. We now take our leave of the French company, till the opening of their new series, in which undertaking they have our cordial wishes for their success.

SUPREME COURT.

THURSDAY, NOV. 3, 1836.

KRISTOPHER MARTIN AND OTHERS versus ROBERT SPANKIE AND OTHERS.

The Advocate-General moved to enlarge a rule obtained in August, relating to the sum paid under the Master's report, in pursuance of the terms of the will, to Peggy Begum. Rule enlarged with leave to add grounds.

IN THE KING versus BEARDSMORE.

Mr. Clarke, appeared to shew cause against the rule nisi for a Habeas Corpus to Mr. Beardsmore, obtained in this case by Mr. Prinsep, on a former day. Mr. Clarke stated that the affidavits forming Mr. Prinsep's grounds contradicted the facts upon which Mr. Clarke relied on the former occasion, when the rule for a Habeas Corpus, to Mr. Beardsmore, moved for by the same party, the mother, was discharged: the learned Counsel then adverted to the filthy state in which the child was found on the former occasion, and stated also, that from the dissolute habits of the mother, and her penury, and precarious mode of life, she was very unfit to have the custody of the child. The present affidavits were not supported as they ought to be by the affidavits of other persons who had not been sworn. Mr. Clarke then contrasted the present cleanly, and wholesome appearance of the child (a very pretty boy, brought into Court by Mr. Beardsmore,) with the squalor, sores, and filth, with which it was disfigured, when entrusted to the care of Mr. Beardsmore.

The learned Counsel then went into the affidavit of Mr. Beardsmore, who stated amongst other things, that Dr. Hutchinson, the father, had on his departure commanded him, to prevent the mother from taking away, or having access to the child, on account of her dissolute habits; he then read an affidavit of a Miss Portner, which went to shew Ann Rose, the applicant, to be of very profligate habits. The law has been stated on the last occasion. It is in the discretion of the Court, whether they will order the child to be committed to the custody of such a mother.

ated, that he would make his friend a porter and her affidavit, she having had Miss Rose in the important office of Hutchinson. The learned Counsel considered a considerable length, that Ann Rose, have the custody of the child, and obtained from the mother by stratagem; the mother and grandmother were then stupefied or intoxicated by some drug, administered on purpose, and when they were in that state, the child was taken away, and placed with Mr. Beardmore. Mr. Prinsep asked for an opportunity to contradict the affidavit of Miss Portner.

The Chief Justice. The Court are of opinion, that this rule must be discharged, nor are we disposed to give Mr. Prinsep further time, to answer the affidavit of Miss Portner. Upon the last occasion in June last, we entered very fully into the question.—I look upon the case as I did when we made the order on the former occasion. I consider her as living in a state of prostitution; she does not state she has any means of supporting this child; and, I am of opinion, that we ought not to take a child from the custody with which we are well satisfied, to give it to the custody of this mother.

Mr. J. Grant and Mr. J. Malkin concurred.—Rule discharged.

IN THE MATTER OF AMOO JAUN AND ANOTHER.

REX versus AGA KURBOLI MAHOMED.

A writ of Habeas Corpus was granted, at the instance of Shuruff Begum, the mother of the children of Amoo Jaun and Mohameel Hussain. The Aga returned, that he was appointed Wasee or Guardian and Executor of Aga Abdool Rojack Chelibe, the father of the children, who was a Mohamedan of the "Sheea sect," that by the Mohamedan law and religion, he was entitled to the custody of the children.

The Aga Kurboli made his return to the Writ of Habeas Corpus, as above stated, and produced the male child in Court; the female child was not produced, as contrary to Mohamedan habits. The Court ordered the children to remain in the custody of the Aga, as Executor of the father.

MONDAY, NOV. 7.

NILCOMEL PAUL CHOWDRY v. GOPEYMOHUN CHUTTOPADIA AND OTHERS.

The Advocate-General appeared to shew cause against a Rule obtained by Mr. Leith, why an attachment should not issue against the defendants for obstructing the process of the Court: he stated that Nilcomel, was one of the celebrated family of Paul Chowdry, and of whose habit of comprehensive and liberal swearing this Court had had some experience.

The Advocate-General then went into the affidavits and stated, that his affidavits contradicted in every particular the affidavits of the other party.

The Chief Justice. The only difficulty we feel as to the course we are to pursue: we cannot decide between the affidavits, and the Sheriff's return supports the facts sworn to in the Plaintiffs' affidavits. The usual course in these cases, when an attachment is moved for against parties, is to bring them down to the Court, and deliver interrogatories to them and upon their answers, we should direct a reference to the Master, and upon his reports, we should either imprison, or discharge them.

The Advocate-General contended, that they had sworn to impossibilities, and that the inconvenience of bringing down the defendants from Santipore near Kishnagur, would be very great, as well as very expensive.

The Chief Justice then stated, that he had an accurate recollection that the Court had granted the Rule nisi; and not as usual a Rule absolute in the first instance, upon the Sheriff's return, and that, therefore, although an attachment was applied, the matter stood precisely on the same grounds as any other rule nisi; and if the affidavits are contradictory, we cannot decide upon the matter, and we must discharge the rule, and Mr. Leith must take his own course. It is quite useless going further into the case unless Mr. Leith you can take upon yourself to say, on the responsibility of Counsels that your facts are not contradicted by the affidavits of the defendants.

Mr. Leith said he thought his facts, at least his material facts, were not contradicted, and the learned Counsel went into certain statements in his affidavits.

Mr. Justice Grant. All that you appear to say, Mr. Leith, is that although your facts are contradicted by the defendant's affidavits, yet that we ought not to believe the defendants; and with that position we will not deal—one affidavit is as good as another.

After some conversation between the Advocate-General and Mr. Leith.

The Chief Justice directed the Advocate-General to continue shewing cause.

The Advocate-General continued, and the Court, after several times interrupting him, intimated an intention to discharge the rule against three of the defendants, who had appeared by affidavit, and to enlarge the rule as against those who had not appeared by affidavit, to give them an opportunity of coming in and shewing cause, and swearing in their own persons.

The Advocate-General then took an objection to the Sheriff's return, which he stated was irregular, in as much as it followed the warrant, and not the writ of execution.

The Chief Justice. All the order we make at present, is to enlarge the rule in order that the parties who have not appeared by affidavit may shew cause; we do not discharge the rule against the others who have appeared.

We make no order as to costs at present.—Rule enlarged for one week.

The Chief Justice. Mr. Advocate-General, I may as well intimate to you now, that unless those three defendants who have not made affidavits, do not come in, or shew satisfactory reasons why they do not, we shall make the rule absolute against them.

IN CALDER v. HALKETT.

Mr. Dobbs moved to make a rule absolute.

The Advocate-General shewed cause. The rule is to shew cause why the petition of appeal of the plaintiff should not be allowed. The learned counsel stated that Mr. Calder had taken one rupee damages, and his costs, and he could not conceive why he now wanted to appeal against his own acts. On the general issue the judgment was for the defendant, but the judgment on the special pleas, was as above stated for the plaintiff. The Advocate-General stated that the plaintiff had entered up his judgment, and he must abide by it, and cannot appeal from it.

Mr. Dobbs. There were two issues; the decision on the special pleas we are satisfied with, we have had our costs, and damages awarded to us; but we wish to appeal against the judgment for the defendant on the general issue, that is, that we had not suffered imprisonment at his hands.

The Advocate-General. They can't appeal against one part of a judgment, and be content with another.

The Chief Justice. Oh yes, they can appeal against the pending of the Court; but, the question is, can you appeal; is the sum above five thousand rupees in the terms of the charter?

Mr. Dobbs. The damages were laid at five thousand rupees, but I think I can shew the Court that you are not bound by verdict, but simply as to whether the matters in dispute were to the amount stated in the charter.

The Chief Justice. Is your appeal against the damages being insufficient?

Mr. Dobbs. No, my Lord, but the verdict has been set aside, so that we have nothing now to do with the damages accorded, but they are laid in the plaint at five thousand rupees.

Chief Justice. There are two difficulties—first, the charter is against you, 33d Section—you had a verdict for five hundred rupees, with liberty to move to set it aside.

The verdict was set aside: now this is under the sum stated in the charter, (five thousand rupees,) unless, therefore, you state it as a specific ground in your petition, that the damages are insufficient, you are in a difficulty in this respect. We have no desire to refuse your appeal. It had better stand over till Thursday at your request, you can search for a precedent in the office.

The Chief Justice subsequently intimated to Mr. Dobbs, that although the matter stood over till Thursday, he could not possibly think, that Mr. Dobbs would appeal, unless he stated as a ground the insufficiency of the damages; which, as they stood at present, were below the sum stated in the charter.

Mr. Justice Grant stated as it was to stand over, he did not think it necessary to give any opinion on the subject.

BONNERGEE V. BONNERGEE.

This, and several other contested motions of no public interest, occupied the rest of the day.

JACKSON V. GHOLAUM GHOUSE.

Mr. Advocate-General, with whom was Mr. Leith, stated that this action was brought to recover damages, and the interest due on the sum of 500 rupees. In 1834, the defendant had entered into an agreement with the plaintiff, who is the Proprietor of the Durrumtollah Bazar, to sell beef in that market, and not in any other markets; the defendant occupied two stalls in the Durrumtollah market for about 6 months, and then went back to the Turretta Bazar, where he now daily occupies a stall. Witnesses were called who proved the agreement, and the subsequent breach of it by the defendant; an attempt was made to set up a special damage to the plaintiff, and a diminution of his profits of the market, in consequence of the defendant not having fulfilled his agreement.

Mr. Clarke, with whom was Mr. Osborne, contended on behalf of the defendant, that no damage had been sustained by the plaintiff, that he had brought three actions already against the defendant on this agreement, and had at one time recovered 15 Rs. 10 annas, at the 2d action, 45 Rs. and at the 3d, 30 Rs. that the costs had amounted to about 1,700 Rs. and that the defendant had already paid the whole of the interest, to which the plaintiff was entitled for three years, the agreement being that the defendant should sell meat in the Durrumtollah Bazar for that period of time; at 6 per cent. the 90 rupees, would amount to the interest due on the principal for 3 years no damage had been proved, no diminution of the profits on the market, but on the contrary the market had greatly increased. The learned Counsel designated these four actions, as a prosecution, and hoped the Court would not countenance such proceedings.

The Chief Justice. This is a very clear case; the plaintiff has proved a contract, and a breach of it by the defendant, and he is certainly entitled to damages. The defendant rented two stalls in the market, and although the market may have increased, and the numbers of the shops and stalls been augmented, yet the plaintiff is entitled to the rent of his stalls from the defendant, so long as the contract is subsisting. He must have a verdict for 14 Rs. 8 annas and the defendant must pay the costs.

NOTE. This is in point of fact an action between Dr. Jackson and Mothoornauth Mullick.

Mothoornauth being the farmer of the Turretta bazaar and Dr. Jackson the proprietor of the Durrumtollah bazaar: the defendant Gholam Ghouse, is a great beef butcher, and it is an object to have him in the market. Dr. Jackson seduced him from the Turretta bazaar, and Mothoornauth Mullick got him back, and hence the four actions, by Dr. Jackson.—Rep.

ROSE V. MORTON.

The Advocate-General, with whom was Mr. Sandes, stated that this was an action of trover for a horse. It appeared by the evidence that a Mr. Shaw, an Attorney, purchased, or agreed to purchase, two horses, from a person called Abdool Salim. The horses were standing at Morton's, and were sent to Mr. Shaw for inspection as it was contended by the defendant, when Mr. Shaw detained them, and sent them to Mr. Rose, the stable keeper, to be put into training for the ensuing Races, for Mr. Shaw. The horses when at Rose's stable, were led out to exercise, when Mr. Morton seized the horse, the subject of the present action, and still detains him.

The defence set up was that the horses were not the property of Abdool Salim, but of Hakim Isaak, a Jew, to whom the horses really belonged, his father or uncle having advanced the money to Abdool for the purchase of the horses, and the son upon his death having claimed them as Executor for the money advanced to purchase the horses. Shaik Ibrahim and Morton were to look after the horses—Abdool Salim came only occasionally to the stables, that therefore the custody and possession of the horses was in Morton, and the property in Hakim Isaak, and consequently Morton had a right to take the horse, he never having parted with the possession, but Mr. Shaw having taken possession of the two horses, under colour of looking at them, and examining them with a view to purchase them.

A witness called for the defence, refused to be sworn, as he was a Jew.

The Chief Justice said, that persons of his persuasion were sworn every day all over the world, and that the man must be sworn. The witness persisted in refusing to take the oath, and the Chief Justice said, I am sorry you persist in this, but if you refuse to be sworn you must be committed. The witness after making some further difficulty took the oath. This witness's name was Joseph Isaak Cohen.

The Chief Justice. Mr. Advocate-General, we will not trouble you to reply. It is quite clear the plaintiff must have a verdict for the horse or the value of it at the time it was sold. The defendant has quite failed in showing the property in Hakim Isaak. The property is quite clearly the property of Abdool Salim: the only question which remains is the right of possession; he has not shewn that Abdool Salim had contracted that the property in the horses should be assigned to Hakim Isaak, or that Morton's possession was any other, than the possession for Abdool Salim; he could not, therefore, have any right to take back the horse, Abdool having sold him.—Hurkaru.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 9.

KISHNOGHUN CHOWDRY V. SHAIK AND OTHERS.

In this case, which stood over from Monday last, the Advocate-General put in the affidavits required by the Court, and the rule for setting aside the judgment in this case was made absolute.

The Advocate General expressly disclaimed imputing any improper conduct to Mr. Graham, to whom the judgment had been entered up.

There were several other motions of no public importance: this we notice, it having some relation to private character, and the former proceedings in the motion having appeared in this journal. We understand that tomorrow Counsel will move for a writ of certiorari to remove the proceedings from the Allipore Foudary Court, in the matter of Mr. James Pattle.

FRIDAY, NOV. 11.

SAWYERS V. FITTS AND OTHERS.

The Advocate-General, with whom was Mr. Leith, stated, that this was an action to recover a horse from Messrs. Cook and Co., the plaintiff is a member of the Medical Board, who has a good many horses for running. A Mr. Atkinson made an arrangement with the plaintiff for the purchase of two horses, Edwy, and a maiden Arab: the terms of the purchase were settled as to Edwy. Mr. Atkinson was to give two thousand rupees, but no time was fixed for the payment. Tempest v. Fitzgerald, 3 Barns and Ald., was cited by the Advocate-General, as to the point, that the possession in the horse was not parted with until the purchase money was paid.

The Advocate-General then went into the circumstances of the case, which our readers will find detailed in the evidence.

The partnership in the defendants and jurisdiction, were both admitted by the defendants.

Derioh Syce. Is a syce in the service of Captain Carter; remembers taking a horse from Barrackpore by the order of the Captain. The horse was called Edoo; he was a palish grey. I brought him to Cook's Livery Stable in Calcutta. The Livery Stable-keeper asked if I had brought a chit. A sahib of the Stables took the chit, and read it; he desired me then to put the horse into a stall and to go away. He then went to the Bengal Club, (Club.) I saw Mr. Sawyers there.

Mr. Prinsep here objected to any conversation of Mr. Sawyers with the syce being received, after the delivery of the horse.

The Chief Justice. Any thing he did there may be taken: the conversation may not. After I saw Mr. S. at the Club, I returned to Barrackpore. I went direct from Calcutta to Barrackpore. I was only once at Cook's Livery Stables. I had received nothing from Mr. Sawyers. I had left the horse at the Livery Stables, before I went to the Bengal Club. Nobody was with me, when I went to the Club. It was 1 o'clock in the day, when I arrived in Calcutta from Barrackpore. I went, when first I arrived, to the Livery Stables.

Cross-examined.—The horse was my master's, (Captain Carter.) The horse had a leading bridle, clothes, and a roller, and they were given to me. I merely left the horse, and took all these away.

Captain Carter.—I know Doctor Sawyers; I recollect a horse named Edwy, that he had. I know Mr. Atkinson; we have not a joint property, but I have a racing interest in some of Doctor Sawyer's horses for this reason. I should have had some racing interest in him for this season had he been trained. I believe he has not been trained; if he were to be trained, I should have a racing interest in Edwy. I heard that Doctor Sawyers and Mr. Atkinson had some treaty about the purchase of the horse by Atkinson; I was not present at the transaction. It was in the latter end of August that I sent him down. I sent a note with him to Cook and Co., (notice to produce this note (A.) was admitted by defendants). The note was: "Messrs Cook and Co., receive Doctor Sawyer's horse Edwy." I should value him for what he was sold at, 2,000 Rs. I should value him at not less than 2,000 Rs. I saw the last witness; he is a syce of mine. The horse had been kept in the stable over which I presided at Barrackpore; but is the property of Doctor Sawyers. I gave no order to bring away the clothes and bridle.

Cross-examined by Mr. Clarke.—I don't think he is now worth 2,000 Rs. I understood he was sold to Atkinson, both from the plaintiff himself, and from Mr. Atkinson. I saw Mr. Atkinson with some thick clothing, (horse,) at the Club. It was to be sent up to Barrackpore to bring down Edwy. I recommended him not to send up such thick clothing, as it would sweat the horse too much. I sent him down with my own clothing, which was returned to me. The sale took place before the horse was sent down. It was in consequence of the sale to Mr. Atkinson that I sent the horse down. I had a racing interest: I was to have no share whatever of the two thousand rupees for my racing interest in Edwy, nor any consideration whatever. Mr. Atkinson, I suppose, meant to run the horse at the races. I gave Mr. A. no advice as to training Edwy; I have no knowledge that Doctor Sawyers gave him any.

Re-examined by Mr. Pearson.—I have not a distinct recollection of having said any thing to Mr. Atkinson about the heavy clothing, but it is probable I may have done so. I recollect that Doctor Sawyers said he was about to sell two horses to Mr. Atkinson. I understood from Doctor Sawyers that the sale of the horse, and payment by Atkinson, were to be a simultaneous transaction. It always is so, unless the contrary is expressed.

Mr. Shaw, examined by Mr. Leith, attorney of the Plaintiff.—I served a letter of demand upon the defendants—(It was admitted by defendants.) The date of the first letter was the 13th of October; I took it myself, and delivered it to Mr. Pitts. I tendered on behalf of the plaintiff, at the same time, a bank note of 250 rupees to pay for any keep due on account of Edwy. I was told that Cook and Company, considered the horse Mr. Atkinson's property, and that he had been mortgaged to them for about nine hundred rupees; the book-keeper then added, that there was a further claim for two thousand rupees!

The Chief Justice.—What does it signify what the debt was—the case can't turn upon it—there is no lien you know.

Examination continued.—I know my own custom. When I send a horse to stand at Livery, I always take away his clothes.

The Advocate-General intimated, that this was his case.

Mr. Prinsep submitted, that the Advocate could not recover on the case he had made. My friend has proved a delivery and sale, without any explanation.

Chief Justice.—Mr. Prinsep you are arguing for a non-suit; the case is a clear case until it is answered. The only delivery proved at present, is a delivery of the horse to Cook and Co. for Doctor Sawyers.

Mr. Prinsep. Well, my Lord, I will go into my case which I think you will find a very clear one. The delivery of a chattel vests the property in the vendee—and the only right the vendor has, is the right to his money; he has no interest remaining in the chattel.

Every body knows that Edwy was the property of Doctor Sawyers, and the delivery of him to Cook and Co., as Doctor Sawyer's horse Edwy, is no delivery on behalf of Doctor Sawyers. But I shall show that the evidence of the syce is erroneous in every particular. The syce went first to the Bengal Club to Doctor Sawyers with the horse. Mr. Atkinson and Doctor Sawyers were present when he arrived, and he was trotted up and down to see that all was right, and then sent off to the stable as the property of Atkinson and to stand at his expense. Cook and Co. at that time held a discounted bill of his for 6,000 Rs. with the acceptance of a Colonel Watson, and Mr. Atkinson owed them, also 2,000 Rs. for other matters, and by two letters gave Cook and Co. this horse and three others, as security for the payment of these debts, Cook and Co. pressing him very much at the time, and Mr. Atkinson being in very great difficulties—Dr. Sawyers, himself, has complained of not having been paid for the horse: there is no proof on the evidence as it now stands, that the property was to remain in Sawyers, but there is distinct evidence, of a sale to Atkinson.

Mr. Atkinson, examined by Mr. Clarke.—I know the horse Edwy.

The Advocate-General.—Mr. Atkinson have you any interest in this case? Yes I have, I owe Cook and Co. money; I shall owe them more money if Edwy is taken out of their hands than I now do.

By Mr. Clarke.—If the verdict goes against Dr. Sawyers I shall have to pay him for Edwy.

Mr. Clarke.—The whole question is, my lord, whether he will have to pay to Cook and Co. or to Sawyers the price of Edwy,—his interest in the event of the suit is therefore affected neither one way or the other.

By the Advocate-General.—Cook and Co. are to take the horse for nothing, I never offered it them, I offered it back yesterday to Dr. Sawyers.

By the Chief Justice.—Cook and Co. seized the horses, and when I wanted to remove the horses they would not let me. I therefore assented to their keeping them as a security.

The Chief Justice.—Then, Mr. Clarke, you may make this person a competent witness, by releasing him from all responsibility as to costs.

Mr. Clarke.—We will then release him.

Another witness was called while the release was preparing.

Mr. Molloy, attorney for defendants, examined by Mr. Prinsep.—I know Dr. Sawyers. I have known him about a year. I saw him about the 26th Sept. on the subject of the horse Edwy, and on another matter relating to Mr. Atkinson. Dr. Sawyers came to me. I was at that time employed by Cook and Co. to sue Colonel Watson for a bill.

The Advocate-General examined this witness to see if any part of his evidence was a privileged communication to him as an attorney.

Mr. Molloy.—Dr. Sawyers came into my office, and asked me what had been done in the matter, of Col. Watson; I told him, and he then told me he had sold his horse Edwy to Mr. Atkinson. The horse stood at Cook and Co.'s long before this conversation.

The Advocate-General, submitted that Mr. Molloy could not be examined.

The Chief Justice. At the time Dr. Sawyers came to you, had you been employed by the defendants on the subject matter of this action?

Mr. Molloy.—Yes, my lord, but the action had not then commenced.—I had then received no instructions on the subject of this action.

Chief Justice. Mr. Prinsep, I think under the circumstances, you may proceed to examine this witness.

Mr. Molloy's examination continued.—My impression was that Dr. Sawyers came as a friend of Mr. Atkinson. He expressed his regret that Mr. Atkinson should have fallen into these difficulties—he distinctly told me that he had sold a horse to Mr. Atkinson for which he had not been paid, and he said he would try to get payment, or get back his horse. Mr. Shaw's letter dated 13th of Oct. was the first notice I had of any action. My conversation with Dr. Sawyers was at the end of Sept. or the 1st or 2nd of Oct.

Cross-examined by the Advocate-General.—I had not the slightest reason to believe that any action would be brought until I received M. Shaw's letter. I was consulted by Cook and Co. as to their recovering their debt from Mr. Atkinson. This was long before I had any communication with Dr. Sawyers. Dr. Sawyers left no doubt on my mind that he had sold the horse; he regretted he had sold the horse, as he wanted him as a trial horse.

Re-examined by Mr. Prinsep.—When I was consulted by Cook and Co. early in September, there was no question whatever at that time of Dr. Sawyers, there was none, until I received the notice of action from Mr. Shaw.

Mr. Strickland.—I am Secretary to the Bengal Club. I know the plaintiff, he is a member of the Club. I know Mr. Atkinson, he was a member of the Club. I was present at a conversation between plaintiff and Mr. Atkinson regarding the horse Edwy. It was early in October. I never saw the horse in my life. When the conversation took place, they came in together into my office at the Club. Dr. Sawyers stated to Mr. Atkinson that as he was unable to pay for Edwy, he required an order from Cook and Company to deliver him up to Dr. Sawyers, which order, Mr. Atkinson wrote. Dr. Sawyers took the order away with him. I saw nothing more. The order was written at my office desk. I never saw Dr. Sawyers and Mr. Atkinson speaking together after that. Dr. Sawyers spoke to me about the horse previous to this: he mentioned to me that he had sold the horse to Mr. Atkinson for 2,000 rupees to be paid in 4 or 5 days, and that he let it run on, or 15 days, at Mr. Atkinson's request. He had had not been paid. I don't recollect his saying any thing more on the subject. The order was written and given on the 3d October.

Cross-examined by Mr. Leith.—I understood Dr. Sawyers to say he expected the money when he sold the horse; but he had given four or five days, and afterwards 15. I did not hear him say he would not or had not delivered the horse till paid for.

Mongulce.—I am a syce in Cook and Company's employ. I know Mr. Atkinson;—here he is. I attended Mr. A's buggy. It was not his own, but Cook and Co.'s. I attended him for about a month and a half, I attended him in the month of August last. I know the race horse Edwy. The horse was taken from the Bengal Club, to the livery stable in the month of August. Yes, I went with the horse. I know Dr. Sawyers, I have seen him at Cook and Co.'s stables. Mr. Atkinson gave the order, and in consequence the horse was taken from the Club. Mr. Atkinson and Mr. Sawyers examined the horse before it was taken of the Club; they were both standing together and the horse was walked up and down. Mr. Atkinson in Dr. Sawyers' presence ordered me to take the horse to Cook's stables, and I went. The syce, who was with the horse, went along with me. The horse was put into a stall at Cook's, and the syce took away the clothes, bridle, &c. He went back to the Bengal Club, I saw him there when I went back. Dr. Sawyers and Mr. Atkinson went to the stable together in a buggy. One of the sahels at Cook's, Georgy saheb, took charge of the horse. There was no letter with the horse, and none was produced. The horse is still there.

Cross examined by Mr. Pearson.—I was with Mr. Atkinson all the month of August. I can't say how long ago it was, but I remember the horse coming to the Club, and having taken him to Cook's. I don't know what month was the month of August.

H. H. Atkinson examined by M. Clarke.—The release to Mr. Atkinson was handed to the Advocate-General and Mr. Leith, and being approved of the witness stated Dr. Sawyers sold the horse to me, that is he was delivered into my hands either on the 26th, 27th, or 28th of August. The negotiation took place several days before, but the contract took place on the 28th at the Bengal Club. The horse was there; he was brought, I believe, direct from Barrackpore. Doctor Sawyers advised me to look at the horse well, before I took him; and after having examined him, either before I told the syce, to go to Cook's stables with the horse immediately after I was contented with the horse, Doctor Sawyers got into my buggy, and we went to Hunter's, and from thence to Cook's; the horse was trotted again at Cook's, and I then, in the presence of Doctor Sawyers, told them to put the horse into a loose box. I was to give two thousand rupees, on the 15th of September, but if not convenient then, I was to have paid it as soon as I could. It was settled before the horse came down, but Dr. Sawyers did not wish me to buy him, unless I was perfectly satisfied with him. I told Dr. Sawyers I was perfectly satisfied with him. The horse had his clothing on at the Club. Dr. Sawyers told me he thought the clothing was rather too shabby for me, and as the roller had a single buckle, he thought I would not condescend to use it. Dr. Sawyers' first application for payment, was the first of October, we had several conversations on the subject before that. I told him I had been disappointed in money I expected. I wrote an order at his dictation, which I did not at all like, but I was compelled. I said I could not, for though the horse was his in an honourable light, yet he was in equity mine, as he had certainly sold him to me. Some thing had passed between Cook and Co. and me, about the horse Edwy. I stated at the time I wrote the order, I did not think Cook and Co. would give up the horse, because they had seized him, and desired me to pledge him over. I had pledged him. I pledged also three others, four altogether, for money owing to Cook and Co. I forget amount but for some considerable amount. (Two letters shown him.) The whole is my hand writing. I cannot state exactly from this the sum I then owed, but it was a large sum a great deal more than 250 rupees; I had given the acceptance of another party for 5,500 rupees; they called upon me for payment, the acceptance was over due at that time, and had not been honoured. They seized the horses for the livery. They seized them, refused to remove them, and made me pledge them for the acceptance which was due. (Another paper shown him). That is my hand writing, the whole of it: yes, it was sent to Cook and Co. I had pledged the horses after the seizure, at least I think so—No, my lord, my memory will hardly carry me so far. They must have seized my horses first of all, but I think that must have been before Edwy was sent there. They must have seized the other horses before, and then have taken security of all four. They had before told me, that if I did not give them the security of all the horses, they would proceed against me. They had given me indulgence for a time, and I had thanked them for it—that was before the pledge.

Cross-examined by the Advocate-General.—The acceptance has been paid; it was Colonel Watson's acceptance and he has paid it through Cockerell and Co. Colonel Watson has securities of mine. I don't want to answer that. A native present, a very wealthy man, has joined me in security to Colonel Watson. The security is the native's acceptance. Cook and Co. detain my horses in consequence of the bills now due, and on account of this cause, Mr. Molloy has forbid the horses to be delivered. I found I could not pay for Edwy on the day appointed. I had been disappointed in my expectation, and promises which had been made to me. What were your expectations when you bought the horses of Dr. Sawyers? I had rather not answer. Well, sir, a native had promised me a large sum of money. I can't mention his name. I assure you, sir, on my word, I don't know his name. My other expectations, were that my friends, at Madras, and in England, would have sent me the money. Why I have, I had a note of hand from Mr. Macdonald in the civil service here. I sent it back to him. I might have discounted it; it was an accommodation. I did not lend him the money, I was in hopes I could have paid. There is one baboo here who had promised; besides my own brother-in-law, has some money. I expected he would send me money; he is in the civil service. I expected my father in England would have sent me the money; he is a man of fortune; he certainly has more than 700 a year. I was in Mr. Chamier's office at Madras, under him. I was an uncoventanted assistant at about 200 rupees a month. My sir-car brought me a native who promised me the money to pay for the race horses. Gowerchurn Takore, I know; he promised me a large sum of money; he is a writer in Mr. Bathie's office. He promised me the money after I had bought the horses. The man I most relied on was the native whose name I don't know. I certainly meant to pay for the horses. Yes, I sent him (Edwy) to Cook's who had already seized my other horses. No, I did not buy Edwy for the purpose of pledging him to Cook and Co. in satisfaction of a debt. Cook and Co.'s debt was the principal one I had other debts. I was led away when I bought the horses, with the hope of paying for them. I bought one of the other three horses from Mr. Harrison, who is in the civil service, a very young man. I undertook to pay him the next day. I should think this was 3 days before I pledged the horse to Cook and Co. I can't swear it was not less than three days before. The other two horses were bought, one from Cook's own stable, that is paid for; the other from Moore, Hickey and Co., of which all is paid, but about 200 rupees. I have always kept my horses at Cook and Co. I have not paid all their standing. I gave Col. Watson 1,200 rupees, I was to give Mr. Harrison 1,200 rupees. Cook and Co. have advanced me money. They said, I understood, "how very extraordinary he should buy of others and not pay us." I am not in Cook and Co.'s power. I am very little in their debt now besides for the horses. None of the horses have been sold.

Re-examined by Mr. Clarke.—I wrote the letter at Dr. Sawyers's dictation. I objected to it, because it was not true; he said no matter, write it, and I will find means to get the horse.

Wm. Anderson.—Edwy has always stood in the same name. I am book-keeper to Cook and Co. We have not had any horses of Dr. Sawyers's standing in our stables Mr. Atkinson was in September indebted to Cook and Co. in 5,600 Rs. and his monthly bills, about one thousand 8 or 900 Rs. sicca, for buggy hire, stabling of horses, &c. Col. Watson paid the 5,600 Rs. through Cockerell and Co. I saw Dr. Sawyers in September at a room in the Club; he told me that he had seen documents, and papers of Mr. Atkinson, from which it appeared to him that Messrs. Cook and Co. need not be afraid they ought to give Mr. Atkinson time. Mr. Atkinson owed him, Dr. Sawyers, money; he was not afraid of losing his money, and they therefore need not be. This was said in September.

Cross examined by Mr. Leith.—I am now intimate with Mr. Atkinson—I am his brother-in-law. The horses were never seized—I mean seized under process of this Court. They were merely detained for their keep: they were also, mortgaged for the acceptance. The horses were not seized at all, they were only detained, when Mr. Atkinson wanted, at Dr. Sawyer's advice, to remove the horses from Cook's to Hunter's. Mr. Atkinson, rather than that we, (Cook and Co.) should trouble Colonel Watson about the acceptance, pledged all the four horses in satisfaction of the bill. The horses stood all four at Cook's long before this pledging.

John Gash.—I am an assistant to Cook and Co. I am in the yard department. I know Edwy. I was present when he was first brought to the stables. Mr. Atkinson told me to take charge of Edwy, which was his property. Doctor Sawyers said nothing. He was present. I saw no letter. Edwy is a racing horse. I don't know that he is not qualified. He is qualified to run for the all Arab stakes and for all cups, &c. not to be run for by maiden Arabs only. He is about nine years old. I can't say what weight he would have to carry.

George Skene.—I am in the breaking-in department in Cook's establishment. No letter was brought or delivered with Edwy, to my knowledge. I have seen Dr. Sawyers frequently in the yard. He never gave any direction about Edwy—he never even went to him in his loose box. He never mentioned any claim on Edwy, never went near him.

Colonel Watson's acceptance put in, and payment of it on the 3rd of November admitted.

Mr. Atkinson's letters to Cook and Company, were attempted to be put in by the defendants.

The Advocate-General objected—they had not been marked. The Court gave leave to recall Mr. Atkinson. He stated that both the letters had been put into his hand, in his examination in chief. He proved them to be entirely his hand-writing.

Mr. Prinsep then tendered the letters to be read.

The Advocate-General waived his objection, and the letters were read. They were in substance, urgent entreaties to Cook and Co. for further indulgence, and an offer to give his horses in their stables as a security. In addition to which one of the letters contained an offer from Mr. Atkinson, to mortgage the three horses then standing with Cook and Co. and Edwy to boot. This letter bore date the 25th of August, and Edwy was delivered to Cook and Co. only on the 28th.

The Advocate-General in reply, stated that he found that the case set up for the defence, furnished him in addition to his own case, with two separate cases, on each of which, he would be entitled to a verdict at the hands of the Court. The learned Advocate-General then went through the evidence at great length: he designated the evidence of Mr. Atkinson, as presenting one of the most extraordinary exhibitions; he declined applying to it the epithet he thought it deserved.

The Advocate-General was about to cite Noble v. Adam

The Chief Justice. No property in any chattel can be acquired by fraud, and no person cognizant of the fraud can profit by it.

The Advocate-General went on, and the drift of his argument was, that there was a contemplated fraud when the horse was purchased; and that there must have been a cognizance of the fraud in the persons who received it, Messrs. Cook and Co.,

The Chief Justice. This is certainly a case not turning upon any nice question or doubtful point of law. If it were clear that possession had been given by Dr. Sawyers, or that he had parted with any property in the horse, the law would have been clear. We are satisfied that no property could have passed under this contract.

We consider the transaction as a fraudulent juggle of Mr. Atkinson to get possession of the horse; as far as Mr. Atkinson therefore is concerned, no property in Edwy was passed. Now as far as Messrs Cook and Co. are concerned, if it were quite clear upon the evidence, that they were an innocent party to the fraud, they ought not to suffer, but they have been guilty of great laches. They ought to have made enquiries, instead of which they took the horse at once in order to secure payment for their debt. The evidence of the defendant himself has settled this point, which was doubtful at the close of the plaintiff's case. The plaintiff must, therefore, have a verdict for two thousand rupees.

Verdict for plaintiff for 2,000 rupees.

IN THE MATTER OF JAMES PATTLE.

Mr. Clarke stated he ought to have moved in this case for a rule nisi this morning, but there was a mistake in the affidavit.

The Chief Justice. Mention it on Monday Mr. Clarke.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER, 14.

Mr. Clarke was about to move, at the instance of James Pattle, Esq., for a writ of certiorari, to remove a conviction of James Hardwicke Patton, a Magistrate, and Justice of the Peace of the district of the 24-Per-gunnahs.

The Chief Justice.—Mr. Clarke, if you state in your affidavit, that this is a conviction under the 53rd of George 3rd c. 155, then the order goes, as a matter of course; but if you go into a special statement of facts, involving the question of the jurisdiction of this Court, then it becomes a question, whether the Court will grant you even a rule nisi, and I understand from Mr. Justice Malkin, before whom you mentioned the matter on Saturday, that you contemplate taking some such course. If Mr. Patton has acted illegally as a Magistrate of the Zillah, a certiorari from this Court, is not the mode of redress. Mr. Pattle has his remedy in another form.

Mr. Clarke stated, that he had two other grounds in addition to the ground stated in Mr. Pattle's affidavit. The learned Counsel stated his second ground to be under the 33d Geo. 3d c. 52, and that thirdly, Mr. Pattle as a British subject, had a right at common law, to apply for, and upon a satisfactory affidavit, to obtain from this Court, his writ of certiorari.

Mr. Justice Malkin. Your affidavit states that the conviction is under the 105th section of the 53d of Geo. 3d c. 155. (We give the section allotted to by the learned judge, as the whole case turns upon it.)

CV. AND WHEREAS His Majesty's British subjects resident in the British territories in India without the towns of Calcutta, Madras, and the town and Island of Bombay, are now, by law, subject only to the jurisdiction of His Majesty's Courts at Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay respectively, and are exempted from the jurisdiction of the Courts established by the said United Company within the said territories, to which all other persons, whether Natives or others, inhabitants in the said territories without the limits of the towns aforesaid, are amenable: and whereas it is expedient to provide more effectual redress for the Native inhabitants of the said territories, as well in the case of assault, forcible entry, or other injury accompanied with force, which may be committed by British subjects at a distance from the places where His Majesty's Courts are established, as in case of civil controversies with such British subjects; as it therefore enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for any Native of India, resident in the East Indies, or parts aforesaid, and without the said towns, in case of any assault, forcible entry, or other injury with force, alleged to have been done against his person or property by a British subject, to complain of such assault, or other injury accompanied with force, not being felony, to the Magistrate of the zillah or district where the alleged offender shall be resident, or in which such offence shall have been committed; and that such Magistrate shall have power and authority, at the instance of the person so complaining, to take cognizance of such complaint, to hear parties, to examine witnesses, and having taken in writing the substance of the complaint, defence, and evidence, to acquit or convict the person accused; and in case of conviction, to inflict upon such person a suitable punishment, by fine, not exceeding five hundred rupees, to be levied in case of non-payment by warrant under the hand of the said Magistrate, and upon any property of the party so convicted which may be found within the said district; and if no such property shall be found within the said district, then it shall be lawful for the said Magistrate, by warrant also under his hand, to commit such offender to some place of confinement within the said zillah or district, which in the judgement of the said Magistrate shall be fit for receiving such offender; or if there shall be no fit place of confinement, then to the goal of the Presidency, to remain there for a period not exceeding two months, unless such fine shall be sooner paid; and it shall be lawful for the said Magistrate to award the whole or any portion of such fine to the party aggrieved, by way of satisfaction for such injury: Provided always, that in all cases of conviction of a British subject, under the provision hereinbefore contained, the Magistrate before whom such conviction shall take place, shall forthwith transmit copies of such conviction, and of all depositions and other proceedings relative thereto, to the Government to which the place wherein the offence was committed is or shall be subordinate. Provided also, that all such fines shall be paid in the first instance to the Magistrate before whom the party offending shall be convicted, and the amount thereof, after making such satisfaction to the party aggrieved, aforesaid, if any, shall be transmitted by such Magistrate to the Clerk of the Crown, or other officer to whom it belongs to receive fines in His Majesty's Court of Oyer and Terminer and Goal Delivery for the province within which the offence shall have been committed; and such fines shall and may be disposed of in the same manner as other fines imposed by such Court of Oyer and Terminer and Goal Delivery: Provided also that all such convictions shall and may be removable by writ of Certiorari into the said Courts of Oyer and Terminer and Goal Delivery respectively, in the same manner, and upon the same terms and conditions, and shall be proceeded upon in the same manner in every respect as is directed in the said act of the thirty-third year of his Majesty's reign, with regard to other convictions before Justice of Peace in the British settlements or territories in India. Provided also, that nothing herein contained shall extend or be construed to extend to prevent such Magistrate from committing or holding to bail any British subject, charged with any such offence before him, in the same manner as such British subject might have been committed or holden to bail if this act had not been passed, to be of so aggravated a nature as to be a fit subject for prosecution in any of His Majesty's Courts to which such British subject may be amenable.

Now there is nothing disclosed on your affidavit relating to trespass, or assaults upon natives, &c. the conviction is merely for forcibly not giving water, or something of the sort, and then the question arises, is this a conviction under the act of Parliament as stated in the affidavit, and was Mr. Patton acting as a Magistrate or Justice of the Peace, within the meaning of the act?

Mr. Clarke. The summons is signed by Mr. Patton as a Magistrate, and Justice of the Peace, and it will appear by the roll of this Court, that he has been sworn in as a Justice of the Peace.

The Chief Justice. State your facts, Mr. Clarke, on which you ground your application.

Mr. Clarke then stated the substance of Mr. Pattle's affidavit.

Schedule A referred to in Mr. Pattle's Affidavit.

JAMES PATTLE, Esq., &c. &c. &c., Ballygunge.

Whereas it appears before me, J. H. Patton, Magistrate of the Zillah of 24-Pergunnahs, and one of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace, that you have directly and indirectly interdicted access to a tank situated at Ballygunge, which has heretofore been the public resort of the neighbourhood for the supply of water, such conduct being in contempt of my authority and in violation of an award of Court, you are therefore hereby required to appear before me in person at my Court House at Allipore on Friday, the 14th current, at 12 o'clock, to answer to the above charge, or depute some person legally empowered to act on your behalf.

Given under my hand and the seal of the Court this 13th day of October, 1836.

(Signed) J. H. PATTON, Magistrate and Justice of the Peace.

[Schedule A., referred to in the following affidavit.]

To JAMES HARDWICKE PATTON, Esq.,

Magistrate of the Zillah of the 24-Pergunnahs.

SIR,—Whereas you did on the 14th day of October, in the year of our Lord Christ, 1836, take the examinations of Bhurreeem Bux Bhisty, Shubraty Khan Khidmutgar, Bissenath Durwan, Kho'laeyar Khan Jemadar, Jummul Burkundaze, and Rukim Ooddeen Burkundaze; and, upon such examinations, did issue a roobacarry of the Foujdarry Court of Zillah 24-Pergunnahs, dated the day and year last aforesaid, whereby you ordered, that a fine of two hundred rupees to Government be taken from the Mooktear (that is to say, one Moonsee Sudder Ooddeen Ahmed,) of the Defendant, (that is to say, Mr. James Pattle,) which said Mooktear was then, and who had appeared in the capacity of Mooktear of the said Mr. J. Pattle and answered the suit as Mr. Pattle himself in person; and, by the said roobacarry you further ordered, that if the said fine was not paid within twenty-four hours, that the Nazir should make his report, when suitable orders would be issued, by virtue of which said roobacarry, order or conviction, the said Mr. J. Pattle was fined, and has been actually compelled to pay to the proper officer of the said Foujdarry Court the sum of two hundred rupees; and, whereas it appears, that the said Mr. James Pattle was not complained against, by, or tried before you on the charge of any native inhabitant of India, but that the charge or complaint was made by one Francis Kirchhoffer, who is not a native inhabitant of India; and, whereas, the said Mr. J. Pattle was not charged before you with, nor convicted of any assault, forcible entry, or other injury, accompanied with force against the property or person of any native inhabitant of India, nor was any evidence adduced before you at the said trial, or investigation of such offence having been committed by the said Mr. J. Pattle; and, whereas, the said trial or investigation took place and was concluded on, and the said roobacarry is dated the 14th day of October last, past; whereas, it appears, by the said roobacarry, that you received in evidence against the said Mr. J. Pattle a certain kufeyut or report of the ~~death of the deceased~~, dated the 15th day of the said month of October, and which must have been made after the said trial was concluded, and all the parties from the same had been departed from the said Foujdarry Court; and, moreover, that the said roobacarry, order, or conviction, was irregular, and illegal; wherefore, the said Mr. James Pattle being resolved to seek a remedy for the great injury which he has received, and sustained by means of the said roobacarry, order, or conviction, we do hereby, on behalf of the said Mr. James Pattle, according to the form of the statute in that case made and provided, give you notice, that His Majesty's Supreme Court of Judicature, at Fort William in Bengal, will, in six days from the time of your being served with this notice, or as soon after as counsel can be heard, be moved on behalf of the said Mr. James Pattle, for a writ of certiorari, to issue out of, and under the seal of the said Court, and to be directed to you for the removal of the said record, or roobacarry, or order of conviction, into His Majesty's said Supreme Court of Judicature, dated this 5th day of November, 1836.

We have the honor to be, Sir, your obedient servants,

HEDGER AND SMAILEY,

Attorney for the said Mr. James Pattle.

(In the Supreme Court, &c.)

WILLIAM SMAILEY, of Hastings Street, in the town of Calcutta, gentleman, one of the attorneys of this honorable Court, maketh oath and saith, that on Saturday, the 5th day of November, now instant, about the hour of 4 o'clock in the afternoon, this deponent received from the interpreter of this honorable Court, a translation of a certain roobacarry of the Zillah Court of the 24-Pergunnahs, which was immediately forwarded to Mr. Longueville Clarke, the Counsel of Mr. James Pattle, to prepare the draft of a notice of an application to this Court, for a writ of certiorari, and that at about the hour of 5 o'clock in the afternoon, the said Counsel sent to the office of this deponent the draft of the notice hereunto annexed and marked with the letter A, with instructions, to have the same served that evening, if possible, in order to save the term which was drawing to a close. And this deponent further saith, that he, this deponent, thereupon engrossed the said notice and proceeded to Allipore, in the Zillah 24-Pergunnahs, in the province of Bengal, for the purpose of personally serving James Hardwicke Patton, Esquire, Magistrate of the said Zillah 24-Pergunnahs, with a notice, a copy of which is hereunto annexed, marked with the letter A. And this deponent further saith, that he, this deponent, arrived at the gate, at the entrance into the compound, or garden of the place of residence of the said J. H. Patton, Esquire, situate at Allipore aforesaid, about half-past 7 o'clock in the afternoon, which gate was wide open, and this deponent, being in his palanquin carriage, drove inside of the said compound. And this deponent further saith, that when he, this deponent, had got inside of the said outer gate of the said compound, about 20 yards, the durwan, or one of the servants of the said J. H. Patton, Esquire, called out to this deponent to stop, which this deponent immediately did, and upon the said durwan or servant coming up to this deponent's carriage, this deponent gave him, the said durwan or servant, his this deponent's card, and desired him to take it in to his master, upon which, the said durwan or servant went towards the house of the said J. H. Patton, Esquire, with the said card of this deponent. And this deponent further saith, that he, this deponent, followed the said durwan or servant slowly towards the house of the said J. H. Patton, Esquire, and that when this deponent arrived under the portico of the house of the said J. H. Patton, Esquire, he, this deponent, was requested by the servants in waiting at the door to remain in his carriage until their master sent for him, and where this deponent accordingly waited for the space of about 8 minutes. And this deponent further saith, that he, this deponent, was then desired to go into their master, upon which, this deponent left his baggage and walked into the house of the said J. H. Patton, Esquire, and delivered to the said J. H. Patton, Esquire, the said notice, a copy of which is hereto annexed marked with the letter A. And this deponent further saith, upon this deponent's delivering the said notice to the said J. H. Patton, Esquire, he, the said J. H. Patton, Esquire, asked this deponent what it was, upon which, this deponent informed the said J. H. Patton, Esquire, that it was a notice of an intended application to the Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari in the matter of Mr. Pattle, upon which, the said J. H. Patton, Esquire, seemed much surprized, and said, if that is the case, I must be very particular, and called out to his servants to send for Sergeant Loyd or Floyd and a karanee. And this deponent further saith, that the said J. H. Patton, Esquire, then went to a table and read the said notice. And this deponent further saith, that the said J. H. Patton, Esquire, after reading the said, notice, got up and walked up and down the room very fast, and seemingly very angry, repeatedly calling to his servants to know if the sergeant and karanee had arrived. And this deponent further saith, that the said J. H. Patton, Esq., asked this deponent, if he, this deponent, was prepared to meet the consequences of coming to his, the said J. H. Patton's house at that time of night, and said, that he, this deponent, had committed trespass and a breach of the peace, and that he, the said J. H. Patton, Esq., could commit him, this deponent, to prison if he, the said J. H. Patton, Esq., thought proper. And this deponent further saith, that he, this deponent, replied to the said J. H. Patton, Esq., that he, this deponent, did not consider that he had committed a trespass or a breach of the peace, that he, this deponent, was in his, the said J. H. Patton's power, and he, the said J. H. Patton, could do with this deponent as he, the said J. H. Patton, thought proper. And this deponent further saith, that he, the said J. H. Patton, again declared, that he, this deponent, had committed a trespass and made a forcible entry into his grounds, and that Lord Auckland himself could not come into his, the said J. H. Patton's, ground without his, the said J. H. Patton's permission, but must wait at his gate and send in his card. And this deponent further saith, that he, the said J. H. Patton, declared that he was certain that he, this deponent, must have been stopp'd at the gate, which must have been shut, and that he, this deponent, must have forced his way in. And this deponent further saith, that upon the arrival of the Sergeant and Karanee, that the said J. H. Patton had sent for as aforesaid, the said J. H. Patton desired the said karanee to read the said notice which this deponent had served upon the said J. H. Patton, as aforesaid; upon which the said karanee read the said notice aloud in the presence of the said J. H. Patton, Esquire, the said sergeant and his deponent. And this deponent further saith, that after the said karanee had read the said notice the said James H. Patton, said to the said sergeant and karanee that he, this deponent, had served him, the said J. H. Patton, with it and asked this deponent if he had not done so, upon which this deponent replied that he had served notice upon the said J. H. Patton, Esq. And this deponent further saith, that the said J. H. Patton, Esq., appeared very angry and said to this deponent, speaking very loud, that he, the said J. H. Patton, considered the said notice as so much dirt and would not attend or pay the least attention to it or to any thing that did not come from the Clerk of the Crown or Mr. Smolett, and that the service of the said notice upon him, the said J. H. Patton, Esq., by him, this deponent, was a disrespect to him, the said J. H. Patton, Esq., as a magistrate, and therefore disrespect to the Government which he represented; that he, this deponent, had got himself into a very serious scrape, and that he, the said J. H. Patton, could by one word send him, this deponent, to prison in charge of his sergeant then present, but would not do so; that he, the said J. H. Patton, should keep the said notice, for the purpose of sending it in to Government, for which purpose he, the said J. H. Patton, kept the said notice, otherwise he would tear it up. And this deponent further saith, that he, this deponent, replied to the said J. H. Patton, Esq., that he, this deponent, did not consider that he had treated him the said J. H. Patton, Esq., or the said Government, with disrespect, and that he, this deponent, was in his the said J. H. Patton's power, and that he could send him, this deponent, to prison; and as to the scarp, he, this deponent, would get out of it the best way he could. And this deponent further saith, that the said J. H. Patton, Esq., appeared very angry and addressed his conversation to the said sergeant and karanee, whereupon this deponent requested the said J. H. Patton's permission to go, which being granted, this deponent left the house of the said J. H. Patton, Esq., at Allipore aforesaid. And this deponent lastly saith, that he remained in the said house of the said J. H. Patton, Esq., for the space of about half an hour, and that upon this deponent's quitting the premises of the said J. H. Patton, he found the outer gate wide open in the same manner as it was when this deponent entered the said premises of the said J. H. Patton, Esquire. r

(In the Supreme Court.)

James Pattle of Ballygunge, in the Zillah of 24-Pergunnahs and province of Bengal, a Senior Merchant, in the service of the East India Company, on their Bengal establishment, maketh oath and saith, that on the eighth day of October last past, a complaint in writing was made to James Hardwicke Patton, Esq., Judge and Magistrate of the Zillah of the 24-Pergunnahs, in Bengal aforesaid, by one Francis Kirchhoffer against this deponent, and to the truth of which said written complaint the said Francis Kirchhoffer afterwards deposed on oath, and in consequence whereof, as this deponent has been informed and believes, one Kurim Bux Bhisty, Shubraty Khidmutgar, Bissonauli Durwan, Khoeaeyar Khan Jemadar, Jumaul Burkundaze, and Ruhim Oodeen Burkundaze, were respectively examined on oath as witnesses, on the 12th day of the said month of October last past, and their several depositions were reduced into writing. And this deponent further saith, that on the 13th day of the said month of October last past, this deponent received a certain summons or paper writing, which is hereto annexed, and marked with the letter A, and that the signature "J. H. Patton," thereto subscribed, is in the proper hand-writing of the said James Hardwicke Patton; and this deponent further saith, that he, this deponent, being much occupied in the discharge of his official duties as Senior Member of the Sudder Board of Revenue, could not, without inconvenience to public service, attend in person before the said James Hardwicke Patton, and that he, this deponent, therefore, gave a certain mooktarnamah, to one Moonshee Sudder Oodeen Ahmeed, by which this deponent appointed the said Moonshee Sudder Oodeen Ahmeed, to appear before the said James Hardwicke Patton as this deponent's Mooktar, and which is according to the course and practice of the Zillah Courts. And this deponent further saith, that his said mooktar did accordingly attend at the said Zillah Court on the fouzdarry or criminal side thereof on the 14th day of the said month of October last past, when a certain charge was made against this deponent for having in opposition and in disobedience of the order, of the said Court, forcibly not given water to the people, the carriers and drinkers of water, from a tank situate at Ballygunge in the jurisdiction of Thanna Tajeerhaut, and of having shut the door of the said Tank with a lock; and this deponent further saith, that he, this deponent, is a British subject and that he has been informed and believes that the said charge or complaint was investigated by and determined on by the said James Hardwicke Patton, in pursuance of the 115th section of a certain act of parliament, passed in the 53d year of the reign of his late Majesty George the third, chapter 155, whereby authority is given to the Magistrate of the Zillah, or district in which certain offences therein mentioned may be committed, to have cognizance thereof, but by which said act of parliament a writ of certiorari is given to remove such convictions and all proceedings relative to the same, to His Majesty's Supreme Court. And this deponent further saith, that the said investigation of the said, complaint was made and took place before the said James Hardwicke Patton, on the said 14th day of the month, of October last past, in consequence whereof the said James Hardwicke Patton, as such judge and magistrate, did make and issue a certain roobacarry or order of conviction of the said Zillah Court on the Fouzdarry of criminal side thereof, bearing date the day and year last aforesaid, whereby, amongst other things, it was ordered to purport or effect the following. (that is to say) "It is ordered that a fine of 200 rupees to Government be taken from the mooktar of the defendant here present, who has appeared in the capacity of mooktar of Mr. James Pattle, and answered this suit as Mr. Pattle in person, and that if the fine be not paid in twenty-four hours, the nazir make his report, when suitable orders will be issued;" and this deponent further saith, that in consequence of such roobacarry, order, or conviction, he, this deponent, has paid the said sum of 200 rupees to the proper officer of the said Court. And this deponent further saith, that he, this deponent, was not complained against by or tried before the said James Hardwicke Patton upon any charge preferred by a native inhabitant of India, as by the said act of Parliament is required, but that the said charge was preferred by the said Francis Kirchhoffer, who is not a native of India but who was, as this deponent has heard and believes, born in that part of the united kingdom of our Lord the King called Ireland. And this deponent further saith, he, this deponent hath not been guilty nor was any evidence offered before the said James Hardwicke Patton, of this deponent having been guilty of any assault or any forceable entry or other injury accompanied with force, against the property or person of any native of India, for this deponent saith that he, this deponent, hath not committed any assault nor was there any evidence adduced before the said James Hardwicke Patton of this deponent's having committed any assault on the person of any native of India or of any other person whomsoever. And this deponent further saith, that he hath not committed any forceable entry or other injury accompanied with force against the property of any native of India or of any other person whomsoever; for this deponent saith that the only charge against this deponent in which the word force is mentioned, is that he, this deponent, hath forcibly not given water to the people the carriers and the drinkers of water from a tank situated at Ballygunge. And this deponent further saith, that he, this deponent, cannot comprehend or understand what the meaning of such charge is, it appearing to this deponent that the word forcibly has been introduced for the mere purpose of bringing the charge within the purview of the said statute of his late majesty, but without being at all relative to the matter complained of; and this deponent further saith, that it appears in and by the said roobacarry, order, or conviction, that a part of the grounds of such decision of the said James Hardwicke Patton was a certain kifayut or report of the Omlah of the Thannah made on and bearing date the 15th day of the said month of October last past, whereas the said trial or investigation took place on and the said roobacarry bore date the 14th day of the said month of October last past. And this deponent further saith, that neither he, this deponent, nor his said mooktar, as he, this deponent, has been informed and believes, ever saw or heard of or were in any way acquainted with the contents of the said kifayut or report, nor was the said kifayut or report, as this deponent has been informed and believes, verified by the oath of any person or persons, whomsoever, but that the same is an exaggerated statement couched in servile and adulatory language, which of itself ought to make it incredible instead of forming the ground work of a judicial proceeding. And this deponent further saith, that the said kifayut or report which the said James Hardwicke Patton has made part of the ground of his said roobacarry, order, or conviction, is a return or reply to a certain purwannah or order issued to one Hajjee Golam Hussain, the acting darogah of the Thannah Tajeerhaut, bearing date the said 14th day of the said month of October last, past, and which said purwannah was directed to be issued in and by the said roobacarry, order, or conviction of the said James Hardwicke Patton, so that the return or answer given to the purwannah directed by the said roobacarry, order, or conviction, is made part of the grounds for making or passing such roobacarry, order or conviction.

Sworn, the 10th November, 1836.

The learned Council having read the affidavits, submitted, that from the several irregularities disclosed, on the face of them in the proceedings of Mr. Patton, he had shewn enough to the Court, to entitle him to his writ of certiorari.

The Chief Justice. The irregularities are not the question: if we have jurisdiction, you have disclosed more than enough, upon your affidavits, to entitle you, not as you ask merely for a rule nisi, but for a rule absolute in the first instance. If it is a conviction under the 53d Geo. 3d c. 155, then you will get your certiorari; if under any other statute, state it, and shew it to the Court, and you will be entitled to your writ.

Mr. Clarke then went to his argument. The learned Counsel stated that he had three grounds, on which he meant to rely, to shew the jurisdiction in the Court, in this matter.

1st.—The conviction was under the 53d of the King; 2dly—by the 155th section of the 33d of Geo. 3d, c. 52, it is enacted that the convictions and proceedings, before Justices of the Peace only, shall be removable by writ and certiorari, into the Supreme Court—but by the 105th section of the 53d Geo. 3d c. 155, the words Magistrate of the Zillah, are introduced, and nothing is said about Justices of the Peace, and the object of the Legislature, in framing this enactment, is evident, by the words of preamble tacked to this clause; they are in substance: whereas up to the time of framing the act, British subjects resident in the territories in India were not subject to the jurisdiction of the Zillah Magistrates, and that it was expedient to provide more effectual redress, in the cases specified in the act, that is; in cases of assault, forcible entry and other injuries accompanied with force, and committed by British subjects on natives of India resident in the East Indies; therefore jurisdiction over such offenders, was given by the act to the Zillah Magistrate. This, therefore, is the only act, under which the Magistrate of a Zillah, has jurisdiction over British subjects. It therefore is the Act under which only Mr. Patton can have convicted in the present instance; he has no jurisdiction over Mr. Pattle, but in virtue of this Act, the conviction, therefore, must be under this Act, and the Act gives a writ of certiorari! It is in vain to say, because he has improperly acted, or exceeded his authority therefore your Lordships will not interfere, because that would amount to a denial of justice. By the provisions of the act, Mr. Pattle, over whom the clause gives Mr. Patton jurisdiction, has his remedy provided him against the abuses of this authority by the person exercising it—he has no other remedy. The commissioner will not take the case; and if your Lordships also refuse to take it because you are not satisfied of your jurisdiction, where I would ask, can Mr. Pattle go for his remedy?—he can find no redress in the superior Mofussil Court, if your Lordships refuse him any in this; and from all this it would appear, that all that a Zillah

Magistrate need do in similar cases, to protect himself in the wrongful exercise of his authority would be, to exceed his authority to such a degree that no Court will take cognizance of his conduct; and thus he would elude the act. The Court will exercise its powers, when the Magistrate has been guilty only of slight transgressions of the act, or where he has not exceeded his authority at all; but when he boldly steps beyond all limits, then the Court will not interfere to check him, because he has trespassed so far. Had the charge against Mr. Pattle been made before the passing of this act, Mr. Patton must have said—"I have no authority, go to the Supreme Court. Mr. Pattle is a British subject, I have no jurisdiction over him!" But since the 55th Geo. 5. c. 155, he does not say that; but he acts under this statute which gives him his powers, and yet the commissioner and this Court both say, when asked to interfere, no; the act of Mr. Patton is so illegal that we will give you no redress whatever. The learned Counsel then stated that his 2d point was, that he had a right to have the proceedings removed in order that when brought up, he might find out, whether Mr. Patton acted as a Magistrate or as a Justice of the Peace, the summons was signed J. H. Patton Magistrate, and Justice of the Peace, and if he acted as Justice of the Peace, the learned Counsel stated, Mr. Pattle was entitled to his certiorari under the 13d section of the 33d Geo. 3d. c. 52, by which section, all convictions, &c. by Justices of the Peace under that act, are removable by certiorari, into the superior Court of Oyer and Terminer and Goal Delivers, i. e. the Supreme Court, within six months after the conviction.

The learned Counsel's third point was, that he had the right to his certiorari at common law. The judges of the Supreme Court, by the 4th section of the Charter, had all the jurisdiction and authority of the Court of Kings Bench at Home, throughout Bengal, Behar, and Orissa. At common law every British subject has an inalienable right to his right writ of certiorari, which right cannot be taken away, even by Act of Parliament. Mr. Clarke then cited King v. Wm. Wright, to the 330th page of his own book. In which it was laid down by Sir Charles Grey then Chief Justice, that this Court, as a Court of Oyer and Terminer had the power to grant a criminal information against any person whatever residing within the Company's territories, (though not otherwise subject to the jurisdiction) in those cases, in which the King's Bench in England could grant a criminal information. It is true this is a certiorari, and not a criminal information, but the principle is the same, in both, at least so long as for the purposes of the present application. The learned Counsel then cited King v. Haines Ist, Ryaa and Moody's Reports and 2d, Burr. 1040. A certiorari does not go, for the purpose of trying merits but in order to see if the Court below, has not exceeded its limits. The jurisdiction of the Court of King's Bench, is only taken away by the express words of a statute; this Court possesses the same powers, and unless taken away by express words of a statute, the common law right of British subjects to sue out their certiorari from this Court, remains as it was introduced into this country, previously to the 13th Geo. 3d. He here cited the King versus Jukes. 3d Term R. 542.

Mr. Pattle would have a right to his Habeas Corpus, if Mr. Patton instead of finding him, had put him into prison. If my friends when they come to shew cause, should succeed, in persuading the Court, that it cannot grant a certiorari, by the same rule the Court could not issue its writ of Habeas Corpus.

The learned Counsel then contended, that his grounds for his application were not slight, but, on the contrary, very full and satisfactory; before he concluded he would make a few observations on the affidavit of service of the notice on Mr. Patton. It was the affidavit of Mr. Smalley; every one knew that Mr. Smalley was of all men pre-eminently mild, bland, and inoffensive, and yet did Mr. Patton tell him, that the service upon him of the notice was a contempt of his authority and an insult, and a contempt of the authority of Government itself. Now these were heavy charges to be made by a civilian high in office; Mr. Smalley naturally felt a wish to exculpate himself, and it was for this reason, that he mentioned the circumstance, in order to account for the notice of these matters in the affidavit of service.

Chief Justice. It is not for us necessary to enter at present into all these statements. Mr. Clarke, had come here with a very slight affidavit of facts, we should have granted your certiorari absolute in the first instance, and almost as a matter of course. The ground on which you make your application, is that the conviction is under the 55 Geo., 3rd c. 155, under which it is quite clear Mr. Pattle is entitled to his writ. Mr. Pattle swears he believes the conviction is under this statute, and that is sufficient—you may take your rule nisi, which is all you ask for.

Mr. Clarke. As this is the state of your Lordship's opinion, perhaps you will give me a rule absolute.

Chief Justice. No, Mr. Clarke, we will give you only what you have applied for. Rule nisi granted.

NILCOMUL PAUL CHOWDRI. v. GOPEEMOHUN
CHATTERJEE AND OTHERS.

Mr. Lieth moved to make a rule absolute.

The Advocate-General put in affidavits, which the Court were of opinion, answered fully Mr. Lieth's case and the order for an attachment was therefore discharged against all the parties who appeared to shew cause against the rule.

The case of Mr. Pattle appeared to excite great interest. The Court was crowded with civilians, many of them high in office.

The Court took motions during the rest of the day.

SAWYERS v. FITTS AND OTHERS

Mr. Prinsep mentioned this case and announced his intention of moving for a new trial.

The Chief Justice told him to mention it on Thursday.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 17.

CHRISTOPHER MARTIN AND OTHERS v. ROBERT SPANISH.

The Advocate-General moved that an alteration be made in the decree in this cause, by which at present the boys and girls admitted as students in the Martiniers' charity were required to be the children of Christian inhabitants of Calcutta. The alteration asked for by the Advocate was that the boys and girls should be the offspring of Christian parents generally, and not restricted to residence in Calcutta. Order granted to vary the terms of the decree, according to the motion of the Advocate-General.

SAWYERS v. FITTS.

Mr. Prinsep moved for a new trial.

The grounds were verdict against evidence, and direction against law. The plaintiff is a member of the Medical Board, and also a sporting character; his evidence was founded on that of Captain Carter, his racing associate, and was to the effect that the horse had been sold previous to the 27th of August. The horse was sent down to Calcutta with a note "please to receive Dr. Sawyers's horse Edwy," the other evidence was that of the syce, and a demand by Mr. Shaw, the Attorney. This was all the evidence for the plaintiff.

The learned counsel then went into the evidence of the defendant, and stated that the case appeared to him to turn on the letter of Mr. Atkinson, dated the 25th of August.

The learned counsel, in answer to a question from the bench, said that he contended that Atkinson had a property in a horse, and cited Basker v. Patten 5th Term reports, in which a horse obtained by swindling was yet so far the property of the swindler, that he could pledge it, and the pledgee recover the horse in an action of trover, and that, even after a conviction for swindling, and the Court, if there had been a jury, ought to have directed them to find whether Cook and Co. had any knowledge of the horse having been obtained by Atkinson by undue means. Now, if ready money is the custom in all horse transactions,—how is it possible for the dealers, Cook and Co., to know that the horse had not been paid for.

The whole question ought to turn upon whether Cook and Co. had notice of any improper pretences made use of by Atkinson to obtain the horse. The case in the 5th term reports, turns upon this, whether the plaintiff, the pledgee, had notice of the swindling, even after a conviction.

Chief Justice.—The whole argument of the case you cite, is that there was a property in the bona fide holder, though no property passed to the fraudulent pledger.

Mr. Prinsep.—After much argument, contended that it was a misdirection to say, that no property passed in the horse to Atkinson, and secondly, that it was a misdirection to say that Cook and Co., had not made due enquiry as to the mode in which the horse was obtained, for they were not called on to make any such enquiry: the learned Counsel then went at great length into the case. Atkinson was living at the Club with Sawyers, a bosom friend almost of the Doctor, and of Colonel Watson, who states himself quite satisfied with Atkinson's circumstances, and tells Cook and Co. they ought also to be satisfied. Edwy was never pledged, he was merely sent to their stable; he owed Cook and Co. only 1,700 rupees, and they held 3 other horses in their stable at the time, more than security for their debt: what could they therefore want with the further security of Edwy? They had the acceptance of Colonel Watson on the bill, they had therefore no motive to doubt the sales of Edwy, nor had they any motive to make any enquiries as to how Atkinson came by Edwy; there is nothing here to create or excite suspicion in their minds, so as to put them on making enquiries. The first pledge of Edwy was only on the 6th of September. Cook and Co. only objected to his removing his horses to the other stables; they thought it very odd, that he did not pay them, and yet bought a rare horse; they thought he was perhaps going too fast, and therefore detained the horses.

Mr. Justice Grant.—I know nothing more calculated to put a tradesman on his guard, than a person in Atkinson's situation, buying horses to speculate on the turf.

Mr. Prinsep designated the conduct of Dr. Sawyers in dictating the terms of the letter from Atkinson to Cook and Co., and his observation "oh! write, and I will find means to get the horse," as a piece of jockeyship. The Gentleman Jockey had the best of it.

The Chief Justice in the course of the argument stated "our verdict was on the ground, that Atkinson having obtained the horse by a fraud, no property could pass; and that as Cook and Co. did not use due diligence and care, they therefore could derive no property in the horse through Atkinson," (this is almost in the very terms of our report,—REP.!)

Mr. Prinsep.—How could Cook and Co., go round and ask of Mr. Harrison or Mr. Sawyers and say, "oh! we have a horse of Mr. Atkinson which has been standing in our stable for the last 10 days; Mr. Atkinson is living as a gentleman, and moving in the best society;

he has, it is true, bought a horse of us, and we have been paid, and yet we wish you would tell us if you have been paid for this horse?" now this is what is imposed on Cook and Co., by this verdict, and for not having done so, they have been fined in the sum of 2,000 Rs. the fancy price of Edwy, who, according to Captain Carter, is not now worth that sum of money.

The learned counsel animadverted on the conduct of Dr. Sawyers, in putting his syce into the box to prove the delivery of a letter with the horse to Cook and Co., which letter never probably went out of the club.

The Chief Justice. We are of opinion that there is not the slightest ground for granting the rule for a new trial, which Mr. Prinsep has moved for. At the time the horse was sent to Cook and Co., they had seized Mr. Atkinson's horse for their keep, they had not, therefore, a very good opinion of the solvency of their customer, they at the same time held his bill due the next day for 5,600 Rs.—that was another circumstance not likely to improve their confidence in him.

The learned Judge stated other circumstances in the case, which we did not catch, and he concluded that under all the circumstances Messrs. Cook and Co. had not used proper caution, and diligence in making enquiries.

Mr. Justice Grant and Mr. Justice Malkin concurred. Rule refused.

GABRIEL VIGNON V. EDWARD BRIGHTMAN.

Mr. Leith applied that Mr. Smoult should bring in certain monies in his hands as Administrator of Edward Brightman; the order was granted, on consent of all parties interested.

Nov. 18, 1836.

THE MALAY PRISONERS.

The Chief Justice observed, that the admiralty sessions had been adjourned to the present day, in order that the Judges might receive answers to certain queries, which they had found it necessary to send in to Government; that they had received answers to those queries, which necessitated further questions, the answers to which would necessitate a resignation to the Straits; they therefore ordered the admiralty sessions to be further adjourned till the first day of the next term, and the prisoners were remanded till that day.

IN THE MATTER OF JAMES PATTLE, ESQ.

The Advocate-General stated, that by consent of Mr. Clarke he postponed shewing cause against the order nisi granted in this case to a future day, and that if he shewed cause at all the argument should be taken to have been in the previous term.

The Chief Justice directed it to be mentioned in the minute of the Prothonotary, that the matter was postponed by consent.

The Court then proceeded to take other motions, but they were of no public interest.

MONDAY, NOV. 21.

ABRAHAM ROSE V. MICHAEL NEWSON AND CHARLES ROSE.

This was an action to recover the balance of an account. Plaintiff was nonsuited.

Mr. Prinsep and Mr. Clarke for plaintiff.

MOOTHORNNAUTH MULLICK V. SHAIK ALADDIN.

This was an action to recover damages from the defendant for breach of contract.

The plaintiff is the owner of the Turret Bazaar.

The defendant is a butcher, and took advances from Moothornnauth Mullick, and signed an agreement whereby he bound himself to sell meat in the Tivetta Bazaar. The defendant subsequently left the Tivetta Bazaar, and went to the Bazaar of Doctor Jackson, in the Murtumtollah, and for this breach of contract the action was brought.

Verdict for plaintiff—damages 954 rupees.

Advocate-General and Mr. Prinsep for plaintiff.

Mr. Clarke and Mr. Leith for defendant.

THURSDAY, NOV. 24.

ESQUIRE AND ANOTHER V. LOW AND OTHERS.

This was an action on the common money counts, to recover a sum of 17,000 sicca rupees with interest since 1824, from the Calcutta Insurance Company.

This case lasted three days, the time being chiefly consumed in arguments upon the reception, or rejection of the documentary evidence upon which the proof of the case necessarily depended.

Mr. Prinsep, with whom was Mr. Clarke, stated the case. It appears that in the year 1823, Esquire and Co., the plaintiffs, Spanish merchants resident in Chili, constituted the late firm of Scott and Company, of Calcutta, their correspondents, and according to the plaintiff's case an association for trading was formed between Scott and Co. and Esquire and Co. The Ship Stanmore, was despatched from Calcutta to Chili, some time in the year 1823, Chili was then in a state of revolutionary insurrection against Spain, and the Ship which sailed sometimes under English colours, sometimes under Spanish, was taken by a Spanish cruiser, as being the property of Spanish subjects in revolt against their parent state.

The ship was abandoned by the owners, and the Calcutta Insurance Company paid the policy, having accepted the abandonment. The ship was subsequently dispatched to Calcutta, and the freight, &c. was taken by the underwriters, the action was brought to recover the sum above named, as part of the wages, and expenses of the ship during the return voyage, paid by the plaintiffs subsequent to the acceptance of the abandonment by the insurers, and, as the plaintiffs contended, on account of the underwriters.

This, we believe, was the case attempted to be proved by the plaintiffs.

The Advocate-General, with whom was Mr. Dobbs, argued for a nonsuit, but the Court put him on his defence. There were set up two technical grounds of defence. 1st. Want of privity between the defendants, and the plaintiffs, that is that the money laid out defraying the expenses of the ship was not paid at the request or desire of the defendants; and secondly, the statute of limitations; but the main ground of defence was, that there was at the time the policy was effected, a war between old Spain and her Spanish-American colonies, and that the concealment of this fact from the underwriters by Scott and Co., who, as agents of Esquire and Co. effected the Insurance, was a fraud upon the underwriters. These were, we believe, the grounds of defence set up.

Mr. Prinsep replied at very considerable length.

The Chief Justice delivered the verdict of the Court at some length. We understood his Lordship to say generally, the verdict must be for the defendants: either the assertion of that which is false, or the concealment of that which is true, will operate as a bar to the plaintiff recovering. The underwriters were ignorant that the Stanmore was a Spanish ship; had they known this the premium would have been larger: the concealment, therefore, was a fraud upon the underwriters. The plaintiffs have already recovered what they were not entitled to, by the adjustment of the policy, they cannot recover any thing further.

FRIDAY, NOV. 25.

MOOREHAN AND ANOTHER V. SHAIK SCHICUNDER.

Mr. Prinsep, with whom was Mr. Clarke, stated, that the action was trover for a thousand cow hides. Plaintiffs are partners in Dinapore, and in the habit of sending goods for sale at Calcutta; there were directions that the goods should be delivered to Khoda Bux, the goods got into the hands of the Defendant who detains them, and we now bring our action to recover them back or their value.

The Advocate-General, with whom was Mr. Leith, appeared for the defence.—Verdict for defendant.

JOYMONEY DORSEY V. SEROOSONDERY DORSEY.

The Court was occupied all day in trying this issue. The question is, whether the husband of the two widows, gave at his death, a power or authority to adopt a son: one widow sets up an authority to adopt his grandson, the other widow denies this and sets up a sole authority to adopt generally: the trial of these wives is likely to last for several days.

The Advocate-General, Mr. Prinsep, Mr. Leith, and Mr. Grant, for the Plaintiff.

Mr. Clarke, Mr. Osbrone, and Mr. Nott, for the Defendant.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 30.

IN THE MATTER OF JAMES PATTLE, ESQ.

The Advocate-General shewed cause against the order nisi for a certiorari to the Magistrate of the 24 Pergunnahs, T. H. Patton, Esq., to remove a conviction made by him on the Foundary side of the Zillah Court, on James Pattle, Esq., a senior merchant in the Company's service.

The learned counsel stated, that he appeared to shew cause on behalf of Government, and that he should not have appeared but for certain doctrines laid down by his friend, Mr. Clarke, in moving for the order nisi. The learned counsel contended that the Supreme Court possesses no power over the Mofussil, but in cases where such power was giving to it by act of Parliament.

The Chief Justice stated, that the Court had also power under the charter.

The Advocate-General. Yes, by charter also in some points. The Court then has no power, but by act of Parliament or by the charter, the 53d of Geo. 2d c. 155, is the only act which gives to this Court a right to issue the writ of certiorari, to remove proceedings from the Court of the Magistrate of a Zillah, and that only in such cases, as are mentioned in the act, giving the jurisdiction. There are many requisites necessary to enable the Court to issue its certiorari under this act of Parliament. The injury complained of must be made upon a native, and accompanied with force; now, Mr. Pattle's affidavit itself discloses the fact, that a native was not the complainant in the case which the conviction was made, and that, on the contrary, the complainant was one Kirchhoffer, a native of Ireland, and that the injury complained of was not an injury accompanied with force. The learned counsel expressed his surprise, that Mr. Pattle should have imagined himself convicted under the 53rd. of Geo. 3rd. c. 155. That act was not made for the protection of the natives of Ireland, but for the native of India, and he could not imagine what was the nature of that gentleman's mind, at the time he made his affidavit and swore to his belief of the conviction being under the act. There has been no conviction at all made on Mr. Pattle under this act. The conviction is not for any injury committed with force upon any one by Mr. Pattle; the conviction which I admit, is a conviction of Mr. Pattle for a contempt of Court and of his authority as Magistrate of the Zillah. Now the affidavit of Mr. Patton, expressly denies that the conviction was not under the act of Parliament, but under the regulations of Government; which regulation or what, I will not disclose, that is not necessary. The conviction has not been made under the only act under which this Court has the power to issue its certiorari. This is expressly sworn by Mr. Patton, the maker, therefore disclosed on the affidavit, which would warrant the issuing of the certiorari is now negatived, and the writ cannot go.

We understand the learned Advocate-General to lay down the doctrine, that a British subject had no right at common law in this country to his writ of certiorari; and that this Court had not the power to remove by certiorari the conviction by a Zillah Magistrate of a British subject, unless that conviction were under the 53rd Geo. 3d. c. 155.

Mr. Clarke, in support of the rule, addressed the Court at very considerable length. The learned counsel contended, first, that there was nothing in the affidavit of Mr. Patton which went to shew that the conviction was not under the 53rd of Geo. 3rd. c. 155 except the mere assertion to this effect, which was directly refuted and contradicted by the facts set out in the affidavit itself.

First, the summons was issued to Mr. Pattle to attend before Mr. Patton and answer the complaint signed by Mr. Patton as justice of the peace. Mr. Pattle attended by his vakeel, witnesses were examined, the cause entertained, and the conviction duly and deliberately thereupon made. It is not shewn that Mr. Pattle knew any thing of any previous order made with respect to the tank, upon another person by Mr. Patton, and there can therefore be no disobedience of this order assumed, in order to support the affidavit of Mr. Patton, that the conviction was for a contempt of an order of the Court: and of his, Mr. Patton's, authority as a Magistrate. Mr. Patton cannot be supposed to have contemned an order, which it is not shewn or sworn he ever saw, or even knew of the existence of. Now, if the conviction has been made by Mr. Patton as Magistrate of the Zillah, it must have been made under the 53rd Geo. 3. c. 155, for that is the only act under which a Zillah Magistrate has any authority whatever over a British subject. If not made under that act, the conviction is wholly illegal, and that is a reason, why this Court should give Mr. Pattle relief and grant the certiorari. If the conviction be made by Mr. Patton as a justice of the peace, then, under the 33rd Geo. 3. c. 52, section 153, Mr. Pattle has a right to his certiorari. If he has acted under neither of these statutes, then he has exceeded his authority, or acted altogether without law, or both, and then the cases in the 2d Burrows, and in 1st Manning and Ryland, apply. Under the 4th section of the charter this Court has all the powers of the Court of King's Bench throughout Bengal, Behar, and Orissa, and Mr. Pattle, as a British subject, has a right to his certiorari, which cannot be taken away by regulation, or by any thing, but the express words of an act of Parliament. It would have been fairer had my friend disclosed the Regulations under which the conviction was had, but until a contempt of the Zillah Court be shewn in Mr. Pattle, he, as a British subject, is not amenable to Regulation Law, and if in contempt, Regulation Law is not necessary, for every Court has an inherent power to punish contempt of its authority or process supposing such contempts to be clearly made out. Here there is no pretence whatever except in the assertion in Mr. Patton's affidavit, that there is any contempt whatever by Mr. Pattle of the authority of Mr. Patton as the Zillah Magistrate.

Mr. Osborne followed in support of the rule. He stated that he came there prepared to urge a legal argument in support of the rule, and nothing else; but the Advocate-General had thought proper to comment on the affidavits of Mr. Pattle, he should permit himself therefore a word or two on Mr. Patton. The learned Counsel then proceeded to animalvert on the conduct of Mr. Patton, in coming into Court, and swearing an affidavit to prevent the removal of his own proceedings into this Court, in order, if found wrong, to have them set right. A British subject, swore himself aggrieved by the judicial conduct of Mr. Patton, and yet Mr. Patton who had committed the wrong and injury, comes into Court to support by affidavit his own acts as a Magistrate. There was a want both of dignity and propriety in such conduct. The learned counsel was then proceeding in further comments on Mr. Patton, when he was stopped by the Court, who directed him to confine himself to the point of law. He then went shortly over the same ground of argument previously held by Mr. Clarke.

Mr. Grant followed, and after an able and argumentative address, concluded with some every cutting observations, on the eager and slightly interest taken by Mr. Patton in this matter. The whole question was whether his proceedings in the case should be removed in order, if found erroneous, to be set right. There were appeals daily in this Supreme Court from the decisions of their Lordships, and yet no one of their Lordships thought it necessary to swear affidavits, to stand behind the back of their counsel, or to use their endeavours to check the appeal.

The Court, after considerable deliberation, gave their judgment.

The Chief Justice stated, that there was a difference on the Bench which he very much regretted, but stated that he was of opinion the rule should be discharged. The Court has no jurisdiction to remove the convictions of Magistrates of Zillahs made on British subjects, but under the 53rd Geo. 3rd. c. 155, the affidavit denies that the conviction is under this act, and states it to be under certain regulations of the Bengal Government—we have no power to issue the writ of certiorari, and have no means of quashing the conviction were it returned into Court. The Magistrate may have acted illegally, and without authority—he may be responsible on the criminal side of the Court, but we can do nothing in the present proceeding, a Court having no jurisdiction over a British subject, which may or may not be the case in this instance, has still a jurisdiction over all persons, for contempt.

Mr. Justice Grant also regretted that there should exist any difference on the Bench. This is the case of a British subject who swears he believes he has been convicted under the 53rd Geo. 3rd. c. 155. The Magistrate swears, he did not make the conviction under the 53rd Geo. 3rd, now the act itself sets forth that at the time of making it, there existed in the Zillah Magistrate no jurisdiction over British subjects—this is an express Parliamentary declaration. The Magistrate admits a conviction of a British subject, but not under the act. Now, the affidavit of Mr. Patton sets forth a conviction: it contains all the essentials of a conviction—summons issued to Mr. Pattle, attendance by his vakeel, cause entertained, and conviction made after examination of witnesses, and a full investigation of the matter. Now there is no contempt shewn here, this is in itself an initiatory proceeding, and fully disclosed by the affidavit of Mr. Patton himself; a contempt of course may be punished, it is an indictable offence, but this is no contempt.

The Advocate-General says there is a conviction of a British subject contrary to Law; now Mr. Patton cannot be allowed to come here and swear that he has proceeded not according to Law, and to make that his excuse for eluding the Court's jurisdiction under the 53rd Geo. 3rd, he cannot be allowed to plead his own wrong in justification of his own illegal acts. I apprehend, therefore, that his conviction is contrary to Law—we cannot take the conviction, to have been according to Law if it were contrary to the only Law under which he could act in the case of a British subject. He has clearly acted under the 53rd Geo. 3rd, only he has exceeded the limit of his authority, and that is an additional reason why the writ of certiorari should go to quash his irregular proceeding. The judgment of Lord Mansfield is express on this point. 2 Burrows, 1040. Every excess of jurisdiction is a proceeding coram non iudice, and is a nullity, it must be set aside. I am of opinion, therefore, that this rule should be made absolute.

Mr. Justice Malkin thought the case one of very considerable difficulty, but under all circumstances of the case was of opinion the writ should not go.

Much had been said upon bar, and much stress laid on the hardship of the case on British subjects. If the certiorari were refused, they had no remedy against the illegal, or capricious convictions of Zillah Magistrates, who had only to swear that the conviction was not under the act, and the certiorari would not go; they could not succeed in an action, or hope to be successful in an indictment. Now he, Mr. Justice Malkin, was not prepared to give the argument much consideration. If the Zillah Magistrate swore falsely, he might be indicted for perjury; and if when the writ did go, he made a false return that the conviction was not under the act, then he also was liable to an indictment for perjury, so that the British subject had his remedy.—Rule discharged. Hurkaru.

INSOLVENT COURT.

SATURDAY, NOV. 26.

In the Insolvent Court on Saturday an application was made by Mr. Clarke, in the matter of Cruttenden and Co., on behalf of James Mackillop, George Mackillop, James Cullen executor of David Bryce deceased, that the amount of the respective admitted debts due to the petitioner which appear on the schedule, viz Sa. Rs. 4,98,215 due to James Mackillop, Sa. Rs. 3,38,200 due to George Mackillop, and due to Mr. Cullen as executor of D. Bryce 1,20,306. The learned counsel also put in a petition from Thomas Hutton, claiming sicca rupees 1,45,250. The petitions state that the assignee has declined paying a dividend on these claims without the order of the Court, and pray that the Court do now order the assignee to pay the petitioners the dividend now due, and all dividends that may hereafter become due. Mr. Clarke supported his application by an affidavit sworn by Dr. W. Graham, which set forth, that about the commencement of 1827, Mr. Browne, who was then a medical man in Calcutta, and a person enjoying a very extensive and profitable practice, and deriving therefrom an income of not less than sicca rupees 3,000 per mensem, having then in contemplation to enter the then firm of Cruttenden and Co., proposed to sell to the deponent his practice, to which deponent agreed, and this practice has since yielded him a larger sum than sicca rupees 3,000 per mensem;—that Dr. Graham subsequently resigned the service of the Hon'ble Company; and that deponent verily believes Mr. Browne was perfectly satisfied as to the solvency of the firm he entered and the advantages it held out to him. Also an affidavit sworn by Mr. H. J. Leighton, which set forth that he was admitted a clerk in the lapsed firm in 1824, and so continued until 1833; subsequently he has been employed as clerk to the assignee: that during such period he had access to the books of the firm, and did several times examine the annual balance sheet,—from such examination, access, and general knowledge of the operations of the firm, he believed it in a perfectly solvent and prosperous state being possessed of available assets considerably above the debts then due. Deponent further stated, that Mr. Browne and Mr. Hutton brought into the firm 1,40,000 each when they joined it, and which he verily believes to have been their money.

The application was for a rule nisi, and the learned judge, Sir Benjamin Malkin, intimated that it would be granted on putting in further affidavits, which Mr. Clarke stated were in a state of forwardness. Notices to be given in the newspapers as in the case of Alexander and Co. Cause to be shewn on the 10th of December.

Captain Warlow, on behalf of several Mofussil creditors and self, brought to the notice of the learned judge, that the up-country creditors could not have intelligence of this application, and consequently could not employ counsel to shew cause, unless the time were extended, Sir Benjamin Malkin said, that the order nisi should stand for the 10th proximo, when, if an application were made for time, it would be granted.

Mr. Clarke added that he would make no opposition to an extension of time—Englishman.

CALCUTTA.

THE CALCUTTA HUNT.—The Calcutta Hunt meeting took place on the 7th of Nov. at the Race Stand, and was numerously attended. Mr. Hickey was re-elected huntsman for the ensuing year, and with Mr. C. R. Barwell, was requested to continue in the committee. Mr. R. H. Cockerell was elected the remaining member in place of Captain Dashwood, who insisted upon resigning the office. Thanks were accordingly voted him for his past services.

It was then proposed by Mr. Croker, seconded by Mr. Newcome, that as the meeting wished to testify their sense of the services rendered by Mr. C. R. Barwell during the absence of the huntsman, that a vote of thanks be awarded him. This was unanimously agreed to.

The annual accounts were then inspected, and the state of the same considered satisfactory, and with thanks to the Secretary and a request that his services might be continued, the meeting broke up.

LEGACY OF THE LATE MR. MITFORD.—Mr. Mitford, late of the Bengal Civil Service, has left the bulk of his fortune to the Governor-General of India in Council, for the improvement of the city of Dacca. The legacy will amount to many lakhs of rupees; but the will is likely to be disputed.

LAND CUSTOMS.—The Bombay Government has temporarily suspended the onerous land customs in the North Concan, pending the enquiry now prosecuting as to what measure of relief can be finally conceded to that province, which has been long known as one of the heaviest taxed districts in India.

THE SUGAR ACT.—A copy of the Sugar Act, as passed on the 4th of July, has been received by the Chamber of Commerce, direct from the India and China Association, London, and the Chamber is now communicating with Government for the purpose of having immediate steps taken to prepare such preliminary measures as may be necessary to bring it into full operation on the 1st proximo.

JOINT STOCK SUGAR COMPANY.—A scheme has been put out in London for a Joint Stock Sugar Company, to promote the cultivation of that important staple in Bengal.

LORD AUCKLAND'S LITERARY AND SCIENTIFIC ENTERTAINMENT.—With the view to encourage a taste for literature and science in this country, Lord Auckland has commenced a series of parties similar to those of the Duke of Sussex and of the late Sir Joseph Banks. The first of these was given on the night of the 8th Nov., and notwithstanding the select nature of it, there were about two hundred invitations issued, and the rooms crowded.

THE ADELAIDE.—The Adelaide, Capt. Steel, which left China a day before the late disastrous typhoon commenced, and for whose safety fears were entertained, put into Batavia on the 17th Nov. to refit, having been struck by lightning on the 24th August, and suffered considerable injury, besides having had two men killed by the electric fluid.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.—In consequence of a recommendation from Sir C. Metcalfe to that effect, on the score of expediency, a despatch dated May 4th, 1836, has been forwarded to India, of a most cruel and rigorous character in respect to the Civil Service. Commissioners, Judges, Collectors, Board Secretaries, and Salt Agents, all suffer, and some of them severely. The first and last are each reduced to thirty-five thousand rupees per annum; Judges to thirty thousand rupees per annum; and Collectors and Board Secretaries to twenty-five thousand rupees per annum.

MELANCHOLY ACCIDENTS.—A short time since, two little boys, the sons of a respectable widow lady residing in Weston's lane, while playing within a canister of powder in their mother's absence, set it on fire and were dreadfully scorched by the explosion. They have both since expired.

Mr. Thomas Gilpin, Midshipman of the ship Ganges, fell overboard at Chandpaul Ghat on Saturday evening, the 5th instant, and was drowned. The body was washed ashore near the fort on the evening of the 9th and has been interred.

SUCCESSOR TO SIR C. METCALFE.—It is said, that Mr. W. Bird has been nominated by the Court of Directors, to succeed Sir Charles Metcalfe as Lieut.-Governor, in consequence of the ability he has displayed in effecting liberal reforms, while at the same time he has not diminished the revenue.

THE ALIF LEILA—The Alif Leila is about to be printed at the Serampore Press, and Government have subscribed for fifty copies of it, which will be bestowed as prizes on the pupils of the Calcutta and other Madrasahs; they have also directed the preparation of a highly ornamental edition of it, for presentation to the Mahomedan princes of India and other natives of rank.

MILITARY—Captain Hay, of the 35th N. I., has been appointed to succeed the late Major Macan, as Persian Interpreter to the Commander-in-Chief.

The court-martial ordered to assemble at Benares for the trial of Major Henry Digby Cox, 25th N. I., commenced its duties on the 1st Nov. at the theatre of the above station. The following officers are members. President.—Col. S. Smith, 8th Light Cavalry. Members.—Lieut. Col. W. R. C. Costly, 8th N. I., Major J. Charter, Capt. J. Jervis and J. L. Jones 5th N. I., Captain W. J. McVittie, Artillery, Capt. G. Hogarth, H. T. Strange, M. McInnes, J. Patterson, and D. Young, H. M. 26th Foot; Capt. W. McD. Hopper, 57th N. I., Captain F. Smalpage, 8th Light Cavalry, Captain R. Kent, 8th N. I., and Lieut. A. D. Colley, H. M.'s 36th Foot.

It is said that the measure of moving four regiments of Madras Cavalry to Bengal has been finally resolved on.

The 67th regiment native infantry, under the command of Major Grant, left Dacca in progress to Arracan on the morning of the 6th Nov., having remained a few days at the former place to change their boats.

The Honorable Court of Directors, have issued an order, placing all the full colonels of the three Presidencies on one general list for promotion.

The following is the order:—

Paragraphs (1 and 2) of a military letter from the Hon'ble the Court of Directors, to the Governor-General of India in Council, No. 8, dated the 6th July:

"Para. 1. We have the satisfaction to acquaint you that, in compliance with our request, the General Commanding in Chief has expressed his concurrence in the suggestion made in your Letter of the 29th May, 1835, (No. 59,) that on every occasion requiring it, the brevet conferring the rank of Colonel on all Lieutenant-Colonels of the Presidency senior to those who obtain that rank regimentally, shall be made to extend throughout India instead of being limited, as at present, to a particular Presidency.

2. You will accordingly take immediate measures for granting the commission of Colonel to all Lieutenant-Colonels of whatever Presidency, who may be senior to any Lieutenant Colonel attaining the rank of Colonel regimentally, with such dates of rank as shall maintain their relative seniority with each other as Lieutenant-Colonels."

NATIVE INFANT SCHOOL.—An infant school was opened on the 21st of Nov. by Mr. W. H. Perkins, for the instruction of the children of natives. The institution, is to be held for the present on the premises of Baboo Gour Mohun Addy, Oriental Seminary, at Burtullah, Chitpore Road. Boys above the age of three years, and not exceeding six, will be admitted. Instruction will be given both in English and Bengally. The hours of attendance fixed are from ten in the morning till one in the afternoon.

ASSAM.—A small quantity of tea (of the green species, from indigenous seed) prepared at Suddya in Assam, by the Chinese tea-planters, brought round by Mr. Gordon, has arrived at Calcutta, and has been pronounced of good quality by so high an authority as Lord Auckland himself. As this tea was prepared from leaves gathered out of season—dressed according to the process used for black tea, and with a very imperfect apparatus—and as it was tried before it had time to mellow, there is every reason to expect that, when prepared under more favorable circumstances, the indigenous tea of Assam will prove a really valuable product.

FIRES.—Two fires occurred on the 21st of Nov., one in Sibbo Thacoor's Gully, by which thirty-six habitations were destroyed; and another in Sukeas's Lane, which consumed five huts.

On the afternoon of the 9th Nov., about 4 o'clock, a destructive fire broke out at Bhowanipore from the bunglow of one Hussian Sarang; about forty huts were burned down and many poor wretches lost their all, through the agency of the devouring element and the rogues who resorted to the place.

MR. TORTON.—The Ernaad, with Mr. Turton and family on board, arrived at Bombay on the 9th of Nov.

VOLCANIC ERUPTION IN THE SEA.—The Henry Tanner, Captain Fergusson, now in this port, when on her passage from London to Sydney, in the beginning of the present year, passed over a volcanic eruption in the ocean in about lat. 9° N. long. 22° W., causing an action, like that of boiling in the water and rendering it very black, but not throwing up smoke or ashes above the surface. A bucket full of water being drawn up from alongside, was found to contain a large proportion of black scoræ.

DUEL.—A duel took place on the 21st Nov. at Serampore, between Mr. N. —, and Mr. A. J. de H. L. —, with their mutual friends, Lieut. A. and Mr. R. C. F. The parties fired twice without effect. The quarrel arose more in a misunderstanding than from any ill-feeling on the part of the principals.

GOVERNMENT ADVANCES.—The Government advances in Calcutta upon consignments of goods through the Company, have been closed for the present, the complement of 50 lakhs, named in the last Government Order, as the limit of advances to be made during the remainder of the financial year, ending on the 30th of April next, having been engaged by tenders on the 22d Nov. to an amount much in excess thereof.

WARLIKE PREPARATIONS.—A letter from Bombay, received on the 23d Nov. says: "Conjecture is rife as to the object and application, when completed, of the warlike preparations that are now going on at this presidency. General surmise, however, is, that Sind will be the scene of some active operations. The march of the Queen's Royals for Belgaum has been countermanded; two companies of H. M. 6th regiment are held in readiness. H. M. S. Rose, with all necessary material for sea or land operations, is ready to put to sea at a moment's notice.

THE INDIGO CROP.—The indigo crop, according to the most careful and unprejudiced estimate, is rated at scarcely 1,15,000 maunds; out of which quantity, it is said, that no less than 40,000 maunds have been sold previously to arrival, a circumstance quite unprecedented.

BACHELORS' BALL.—The bachelors of Calcutta gave a splendid ball to the fair sex and married men, on the night of the 24th of Nov. The arrangements throughout, did great credit to the taste of the stewards.

DISTRICT DAWKS.—A circular has been issued by the Customs and Post Office Committee, calling for information relative to the expediency or otherwise of employing revenue and police peons to convey private letters, together with their official reports, to and from local officers, in their respective districts.

TEA PLANTING MISSION.—A letter from Sadya, in Assam, of the 5th October, intimates, that the Chinese tea cultivators had arrived there on the 3d of that month.

CONSPIRACY.—A conspiracy was recently raised by some shop-keepers in the Radu Bazaar, to establish a charge of bribery against Mr. R. McCulloch, of the Conservancy Department. The charge was preferred before Mr. O'Hanlon at the police office, but the villains failed in effecting their object—the obtaining the dismissal of Mr. McCulloch, who was honorably acquitted.

NEW PUBLICATION.—A new work, entitled an introduction to the Hindustani language, in three parts, viz., a grammar, vocabulary, and reading lessons, by the Revd. W. Yates, author of a Sanskrit grammar on a new plan, &c., has just been published.

THE RICE CROP.—In consequence of the great drought this season, serious apprehensions are entertained of a great falling off in the rice crop.

MR. HUDSON.—During the late holidays, Mr. Charles Hudson, the head uncovenanted assistant in the office of the Civil Auditor, met with a very severe accident by which his thigh was fractured, and his back much injured.

THE BANK OF BENGAL.—The twenty new shares advertised for public sale on the 1st of November, at the Bank of Bengal, attracted considerable competition, and were knocked down to ten different individuals at prices varying from 5,700 to 5,750 Company's rupees per share, the average being 5,731-4, about a hundred rupees above the market price of the previous day. This sale brings 34,625 Co's Rs. to the credit of the bank profit and loss account.

NEPAL AFFAIRS.—A rumour has acquired credit in the military circles at this Presidency, that not only have affairs in Nepal assumed a position which is likely to require the interference of our Government, but that Runjeet Sing, whose encroachments on the left bank of the Sutledge have attracted attention, is likely to require a British force to dislodge him. The general opinion at the Presidency is, that the Ruler of the Punjab is repeating the experiment which he tried in 1809, when his approach to the Sutledge for the avowed purpose of extending his authority over the Seik chiefs inhabiting the country situated between that river and the Jumna, induced our Government to assert the seignioral rights which had been acquired by the treaty of peace with Scindia of 1803 in that quarter.

THE SUPREME COURT.—It is said that in conformity with a suggestion of the Court, which the Government have acquiesced in, on several offices in the Supreme Court falling vacant, successors will not be appointed to the present incumbents, but the duties will be "doubled up" and discharged by officers now holding other appointments in the Court. Government have stipulated, in adopting this measure, for a reduction of twenty-five per cent. on fees now payable by suitors, and they have taken the responsibility of paying the officers' salaries.

The following are the comparative rates of salary for the officers of the Court, shewing the former and those fixed by the new system:—

These salaries are to endure only during the continuance in office of the present incumbents. The maximum salary after the present incumbencies cease, is to be 54,000 Co. Rs.

ASSAULT AND ATTEMPT TO MURDER.—About midday on the 16th of October, three persons, attacked a money lender, an inhabitant of Banipoor, while he was at work in his field. They were armed with sticks, with which they beat him most unmercifully, knocked him down and seriously injured his right arm and left leg. The ruffians were about to finish him, when some of the inhabitants about the place came to the poor man's assistance and saved his life. The miscreants have been secured, and sent to the Magistrate's Court.

On the 28th of October, Zora-ur Sing, and eight others, the first a Jemadar in the employ of Rajah Rajnarain Roy of Andool, were charged with attempting to oust Surroop Doss, Goinasta of Juggernauth Giree of Sulkea, from the Talook Alipoor, for the purpose of taking possession of the same, and with setting fire to the cutchery house of the said Juggernauth Giree, which was on the spot. The defendants were apprehended and brought before the Magistrate by the Dargah of Boiddo Batee; and the charge being established by the evidence of three witnesses, they were convicted and sentenced—the Jemadar to be imprisoned for two months, and to pay a fine of 20 rupees, and the rest to pay a fine of 20 rupees each, or, in default of payment of the fine, respectively to be imprisoned for two months.

DR. H. H. WILSON.—Dr. H. H. Wilson, in addition to his Boden Professorship, has obtained from the Court of Directors the office of Librarian, held for so many years by the late Dr. Wilkins.

WILLIAM PITT MUSTON, ESQ.—Mr. Muston, besides having succeeded with the Court of Directors in obtaining his re-appointment to the office of Apothecary-General, it is rumoured, is to be placed ex-officio, on the Medical Board, in order to save the expense of stationery and time which the correspondence between the Superintendent of medical stores and the Medical Board requires under existing circumstances.

A VALUABLE GIFT.—The Right Honorable the Governor of Bengal, has presented to the Judges of the Supreme Court, the whole of the public records hitherto printed by the English, Scottish and Irish Parliamentary commissioners, who have been engaged in this labour for twenty-six years, and which records have been transmitted to India, for the purpose of being deposited in a public Library. The Records are to be placed in the Bar library in the Supreme Court.

ROBBERY.—A gang of dacoits recently attacked the residence of some dancing girls at the village of Mamoodpore, and carried away all their property. About twelve or thirteen of the depredators have been detected and captured.

MURDER AND HIGHWAY ROBBERY.—A few days ago, as Brahmim was passing through the village of Talbana, purgunnah Groah, in Hooghly zillah, attended by his servant, a gang of highway robbers attacked them, put them both to death, and, throwing the bodies of the unfortunate men into a neighbouring tank, carried off their clothes, &c.

MURDER.—A man named Kana, of the Koybut caste, having lately entered the family house of a person of the same caste, in the village called Kochatay, near Tribany, for adulterous purposes, was put to death by the members of the family, who cut his throat from ear to ear. Investigations are going on, but nothing of a conclusive nature is as yet come to light.

SUICIDE.—On the morning of the 1st Nov., a young brazier committed suicide, by taking a dose of poison, in consequence of not being able to obtain employment.

A Bramin named Bhojany Churn Mookerjee, being subject to a disease which he could no longer bear, recently committed suicide by cutting his throat with a fishknife.

THE PALEE DISORDER.—The nature of the distemper which has been raging at Palee, seems not yet to have been ascertained. A letter received by the Courier from Nusseerabad, states the disease positively to be the plague.

ANTI-BLACK ACT FUND.—The subscriptions to the Anti-Black Act fund amount now to 25,005-5-3.

INLAND CUSTOMS.—The Bombay Government have suspended the operation of the transit duties in the South Concan.

JESSORE EPIDEMIC.—The epidemic which has been raging for some time past in Jessore, has greatly subsided in its violence.

MOFUSSE.

DELHI.—The vacant troop of Horse Artillery, has been given, not to Captain Lawrenson, but to Captain Watts, of the Foot Artillery.

Native reports mention, that Mr. Lawrence has sent two orphan children, a boy and girl, who were left perfectly destitute, to the school at Loodianah, and that Messrs. Baness and Webb have deposited in the treasury eighty-nine thousand six hundred rupees on account of proceeds of sale of the property of the late Nawab Shumshooddeen Khan.

There has been very little rain lately, in the districts round Mirzapore; grain merchants are already beginning to talk about a scarcity and meditate raising the prices. Persons lately returned from Oude, also complain of want of rain there; from which it would appear that the season has not generally been so favorable as at Delhi.

A horrible murder was committed on the 7th of Nov. in the City. The perpetrator was a man of the Kuhar caste. It appears he allured his victim, a little girl of nine years of age, to an empty house, within a few yards of her own father's habitation, and there strangled her with a cord. The only motive for this horrid deed, was the possession of the ornaments worn by the child, and which did not exceed twelve rupees in value! The villain was secured almost immediately after committing the horrible deed.

Mr. R. N. C. Hamilton, is to succeed Mr. Hugh Fraser, as Civil and Session Judge of Delhi.

The Beekaneer Rajah started on a pilgrimage to Gyahjee on the 4th Nov., and Captain Hawkins, of the 38th Regiment Native Infantry, who has been nominated, by the Lieutenant Governor of the North Western Provinces, to escort the Rajah down, has been directed to proceed so as to reach Rewarree by the 23d Nov.

Colonel Skinner, C. B., came into Delhi on the 11th Nov. last, where he will remain to meet the Lord Bishop of Calcutta, who is expected to arrive on the 18th Nov. to consecrate the Colonel's Church.

It is said, that Mr. Alexander Fraser will be appointed Magistrate and Collector at Panerput; Mr. Charles Gubbins at Rhotuk; Mr. J. Lawrence at Georgeon; and that Mr. Routh will act as Magistrate and Collector of Delhi until the arrival of Mr. C. Lindsay.

A very severe shock of an earthquake was experienced at Delhi on the evening of the 9th Nov., between five and six o'clock.

On the night of the 11th Nov., as three soucars and a little boy, the son of one of them, were returning home from their shops, about dusk, with a bag of rupees, just before their reaching the Chaadnee Chouke, they were attacked by six or seven men armed with clubs and swords. The three soucars were immediately cut down and relieved of their money. The alarm being instantly given, many people rushed towards the spot, and among the number were two unfortunate buncceahs, and the chokedar of the division, who met the thieves retreating upon a very extensive garden, the property of her Majesty the Queen of Delhi.

The two buncceahs were cut down, and the chokedar, instead of at once using his sword, seized hold of one of the ruffians, and was forthwith put hors de combat, by another of the gang. The thieves then effected their escape into the garden, into which they were pursued by the Magistrate and a body of three or four hundred police men; but although search was made for several hours, aided by the light of torches, no trace of the villains could be discovered, owing to the vast extent and intricacy of the garden.

On the evening of the 19th of October, two of the corps at Delhi, between whom there had existed some cause of jealousy, drew up in battle order, and after abusing each other for some time, commenced a furious fight with sticks and stones, having torn up the latter weapons from a bridge built by Government. Several men were hurt on both sides, but the drums having beat to arms, the European officers, at much personal risk, succeeded at last in separating the combatants. There has been no public investigation into the affair.

On the 16th of October two natives named Hera and Ajoodhea, had a trifling quarrel about five rupees; in consequence of which, Ajoodhea purchased a small quantity of milk, in which he mixed some poisonous substance, and administered it to Hera, who, though previously in perfect health, was immediately seized with violent spasms accompanied by vomiting, and, notwithstanding every assistance, died that night. The body was opened by the Civil Surgeon, who decided, that no doubt could be entertained but that the man had been poisoned.

It is rumoured, that Gurrawarra is to be, ere long, abolished as a military station.

The rain fall at Delhi, from the commencement of the present year up to the 30th of Oct., was as follows :

In the first five months.....	2.32
In June.....	8.30
In July.....	10.81
In August.....	9.48
In September.....	3.71
Total.....	34.62

Mr. Gubbins, the Magistrate and Collector of Gurgaon, is having a canal cut from the village of Nuglee to that of Oujhenna, a distance of twelve miles.

BURDWAN.—The house of one Onoop Samunta, of Mowgram, within the Thanah of Potana, was lately robbed by a gang of dacoits. The Mundul of the village met with his death at the hands of the ruffians, who pierced him with a spear in the belly. They also wounded five of the inmates of Onoop's house. One Sreenauth Mookerjee and others being charged with the offence, have been apprehended, and the case is under investigation before the Joint Magistrate.

DACCA.—The English school at Dacca is getting on very well ; the number of the students now amounts to one hundred and fifty. A society has lately been established for the cultivation of the Bengally language, which contemplates the establishment of a newspaper in English and Bengally.

PALEE.—The distemper at Pallee is still raging, and committing great havoc among the remaining inhabitants.

AGRA.—A hospital and dispensary for the native poor has recently been established at Agra. Sir Charles Metcalfe supplied the funds, and Dr. Login's exertions have effected the rest. Though not in existence a month, the dispensary has done a great deal of good. Since the 5th of October 101 applicants have appeared, 14 of whom were received into hospital, and the remainder treated as out patients.

A man, by name Teyku, was hung on the 24th of October, at the Agra jail, for the murder of a female child of nine years of age, in order to steal her ornaments. A silk rope was used on the occasion, and the execution of the wretch was apparently effected without a bodily pang.

ALLAHABAD.—The Rajah of Vizianagram has been on a visit to Allahabad from Benares, and started off again.

Grain is becoming very scarce in these parts ; and at Jounpore, where scarcity has arisen from want of rain, wheat is selling at fourteen seers per rupee.

CHUNAR.—A Mr. Newton Isaac was dreadfully maltreated on the night of the 22nd October, whilst he was out at his villages, and the ill treatment is represented as having been so severe that his life is in extreme danger. It is supposed that a pundit, a landholder, who previously held his villages, was the person chiefly concerned in the assault.

MUNPORE.—A man and a woman were murdered in this district, on or about the last day of the Durga Poojaha, and their bodies tied together in a bundle and thrown into a ditch approximating the residences of the Civil and Sessions Judge and the Magistrate. The perpetrators of the horrible deed, have not been detected.

LANDOUR.—Early on the morning of the 17th of October, the bungalow belonging to Mr. Ewer, at Landour, occupied by Mrs. Captain Havelock, and Mrs. Charles Havelock, was discovered to be on fire. Mrs. Charles Havelock was first awakened by perceiving the verandah near her room in a blaze, and had just time to escape with her infant through the window ; Mrs. Captain Havelock with her three children, one an infant of six months, had now to make her escape from the bungalow, which was by the time completely enveloped in flames. On approaching the verandah, under which she had to pass, she hesitated for a moment to rush out, and the next instant the verandah fell in. In this dilemma she made her way through as speedily as possible, but both she and the infant were severely bruised and scorched, and her eldest boy also received considerable injury. Almost immediately after her escape, the whole bungalow fell in, so that not a single article was saved. The whole party were humanely taken in and accommodated by Dr. Robertson.

NATIVE STATES.

CABOOL.—Some Persian merchants, on their way from Ispahan to Cashmere to purchase shawls, having put up at Cabool, were sent for by Dost Mahomed, who endeavoured to negotiate a loan for ten lac^s of rupees with them to meet present exigencies. The spokesman of the party expressed their willingness to advance the money, providing sufficient security were afforded for its repayment : the security demanded was a transfer of the Government of Cabool into the hands of the merchants until the debt should be discharged.

Dost Mahomed still continues unwell. Khundull Khan and Poordil Khan, Sirdars of Cundahar, endeavoured to persuade him to seek a more congenial climate than Cabool, where cholera appears to be raging. Dost Mahomed did not follow their advice, as he was afraid that during his absence the Khuzzelbashies might be inclined to seek another leader, and that he should lose the country.

It is reported that five persons pretending to hold a commission from Dost Mahomed to assess and collect the revenue, have been traversing the country and levying enormous contributions from the inhabitants, in the shape of dand. Their progress was arrested on the confines of Cundahar, the chief of which sent them, loaded with chains, to Dost Mahomed, who has cast them into "durance vile."

PESHAWUR.—Koonwur Shere Sing has once again brought, all the refractory Mussulman Zemindars into the Sikh interest. While out in the district settling the contested points, he had like to have suffered from the treachery of the Puthans, a body of whom, in the middle of the night, entered, as they supposed, his camp, with the intent of making away with him. But they had mistaken their mark—they had got into the camp of Sultaun Mahomed's Sowars, who managed to overpower and convey them to Shere Sing, who handsomely rewarded the Sowars for their bravery.

The fierce and merciless bandits, headed by Sahadut Khan, the Dukh Walla, had carried their excesses to such a length as to render it impossible to move without the walls of Peshawur with impunity ; hence, all communication in the province was stopped, until Sultaun Mahomed wrote to Sahadut Khan, and pointed out to the impolicy of continuing to oppose the "Lion of the Punjab," who must, eventually, overwhelm him,—and offering, on the part of Shere Sing, the Governor of Peshawur, oblivion of past and present offences. The bandit, listened to the voice of reason and sent his younger brother, by way of a peace offering, to Peshawur, whither he himself also purposes to repair.

A massacre took place in Peshawar of a party of Ukalas, who had entered a garden belonging to some Putans, who allowed the intruders to ascend their apple trees, the fruit of which they wished to plunder, and in this situation put them to death with spears and arrows. The Afghans, to escape retaliation, set fire to their houses and absconded, and the Ukalas, deprived of their revenge, stirred up a tumult in the Sikh camp, which ended in an order forbidding any Sikh to enter the town of Peshawar.

BICKANEER.—The Bickaneer Rajah has been suffering severely from fever, and has, in consequence, delayed his departure for Gyahjee, on pilgrimage.

NEPAUL.—It appears that there was a mistake in the statement given last about the disturbances in Nepal: the following is said to be a correct version:—

“It was not General Bheem Sen, that visited Calcutta last year, but his nephew and adopted son, General Marthabbur Singh. Bheem Sen is the present minister of Nepal, and acknowledged to be one of the deepest and best politicians that our Government has ever had to deal with. He has been complete sovereign of the Nepal country, for the past 20 years, owing to his having held the combined offices of Commander-in-Chief and Minister, during the minorities of two kings, i. e. of Rajindra Vikrama Sah, the present king, and Grihvan Juddha Vikrama Sah, the father of Rajindra.

The affairs that has lately occurred, had been merely a local squabble instigated chiefly by a brother of Bheem Sen, (Runbeer Singh) in consequence of the latter being jealous of the minister's power, and it has ended, like all similar squabbles have done before, by Bheem Sen convincing Runbeer and his party, that he is too strong for them. There is no fear of encroachments upon our ground, so long as Bheem Sen lives; and he has continued to govern the country so much to the satisfaction both of the Goorkhas and the Newans or aborigines, that it is not likely they will yield to any other ruler, so long as the old general is alive.

HYDERABAD.—Rumjaun Khan, Biloché, a man who from his upright and honorable conduct, had raised himself from an obscure station to the highest a subject could enjoy—namely, that of Prime Minister of the Nizam of Scinde, and who stood high in his master's favour, was one night way-laid and murdered, while returning home from the kutcherie. After stabbing him the murderer attempted to escape, but was seized by the servants: he admitted that he had no enmity against Rumjaun Khan, but that he had been hired by the Nizam's sons to whom he was obnoxious, to murder Rumjaun Khan; which of the sons it was he refused to state, nor could the greatest torture extort from him any farther confession. He was sawn in two and burnt to ashes. The Nizam, fearing that he himself would be the next victim, has forbidden his sons the court.

MITHEN KOTE.—Dewan Sawun Mull and Sirdar Mungul Sing are still at Ummeerkote, settling disputes with different Zemindaries. The Biloches still refuse to pay tribute and continue their depredations on the highway. Sickness has in no way abated.

CASHMERE.—Runjeet Sing having demanded from the Hakim of Cashmere, more than the country can possibly yield, has disgusted the Hakim so much, that he now takes no interest in the welfare of the country. Runjeet is now even exacting the payment fixed at an enormous rate of the grain distributed to the poor, during the late famine. If matters continue as they are at present, and Runjeet persists in his avaricious demand, Cashmere will again become a wild and arid desert.

SHUURUTPOOR.—The Raja left his capital on the 1st Nov. en route to Goverdhun, where he will remain during the fair. His tour, which is of a purely religious character, will embrace Deeg, &c. &c. and terminate by the end of the month.

LAHORE.—29th October.—Runjeet Sing is still located at Amritsir.

Intelligence was received from Derah Ismail Khan, that great sickness was prevailing throughout the country; but that, notwithstanding, Koonwur Now-Neha Sing was out in the district effecting the settlement of the country.

Khojja Mahomed, Sultan Mahomed's son, was asked if he had received any further intelligence of his uncle, Dost Mahomed: he replied that he had heard Dost Mahomed was still at Cabool, but suffering much from sickness. Khojja Mahomed then requested permission to go to Peshawur, but was told that, he must first send for his brother to supply his place as a hostage, and he would then be allowed to go.

SCINDE.—The Amerees of Scinde have deputed a respectable European to the Resident at Cutch, intreating assistance from the British Government in the event of the “Lion of the Punjaub” attempting to carry into effect his threat of invading their countries. Their petition states that justice and security can only be found under the shadow of the protection of the noble English. The answer of the Resident was favorable, although no promise of direct interference was given. It directed them to have patience and see what the gods would give them.

DOORROONOO.—A young Mussulman, apparently labouring under insanity, and armed with a sword, rushed into the Sikh Camp, shouting out that some one would, for the love of God, engage with him that he might either kill or be killed: his entreaties, however, no one would attend to, until entering a tent where a Sikh priest was expounding the pothies, he drew his sword, and clove the priest's skull, for which feat the priest's disciples instantly despatched him to taste the joys of Paradise. The next day the mother of the Mussulman, armed to the teeth, also entered the camp, demanding who had slain her son, and to evince how little she regarded consequences, she cut down a Sikh who was standing by, when the other Sikhs fell upon and slew her, with the exclamation in her mouth that “it was good to die by the sword of the unbelieving dogs.”

SUEPOOR.—Major Alves took leave of the Raja on the 17th Oct. on proceeding to the Sambhur Lake, which he has gone to inspect. One of the farmers of the revenue, has been declared a defaulter to the extent of several lakhs of rupees, and subjected to the punishment of suspension from a tree, and flogging, but without being induced to pay his balance.

MADRAS.

HURRICANE.—A severe hurricane occurred in Madras on the 30th of Oct. by which considerable damage was done. Almost all the gardens have been destroyed, the flag-staff blown down, and innumerable boats and donnies have been either dashed to pieces or stranded high up the beach. Many lives, it is feared, have been lost. The foundation of the Breakwater has been totally dispersed by the commotion of waters during the hurricane.

THE ELIZA, THE AYR AND THE STAR.—The French ship Eliza has returned to Madras roads, with the loss only of her mizen mast, which she cut away during the late hurricane; she has received no other injury. The American ship Star is reported to have received so much injury during the storm, that it was supposed she would be condemned. The Brig Ayr has also returned to port dismasted.

THE WEATHER.—Favourable accounts of the weather from the Northward have been received. Rain appears to have fallen in abundance in all quarters with a prospect of its continuance. A letter from Calingapatam, written on the 31st October, mentions that there was every sign of an approaching gale. At Pulicat a great deal of mischief appears to have been done by the gale of the 30th October. At Covelong the same.

THE SCHOONER HAWKE.—The schooner Hawke, regarding which vessel apprehensions have been entertained, arrived from Moulmein on the morning of the 8th Nov. The Commander has brought with him six lascars whom he picked up at sea about forty miles from Madras. They state that they belonged to the Fatty Islam, an Arab ship which left Bombay on the 24th of September, that she encountered the gale on the 30th Oct., at 1 P. M., and went down. They state further that there was a Mogul, 8 servants, and three horses on board, and that they went down with the vessel; and that there were six other lascars hanging on her mast with them, all of whom died of cold and hunger in the space of nine days. The vessel was bound to Calcutta with salt.

THE SCHOONER SEASON.—The schooner Season, belonging to Mr. Holland, with two English officers from Kimerly and their servants, sailed from Vizagapatam on the 26th of October. Off Ramiapatnam, on the evening of the 30th of October, they attempted to anchor, but the vessel parted her anchor and sunk or ran ashore. Two officers, three servants, and two lascars were drowned. The serang and three lascars got ashore and reported the above to a native merchant, Lutichmin Nurasoo, who wrote the account now given to his correspondent in Madras. One of the unfortunate officers is supposed to be Lieut. Clayhill of the 10th N. I. A doubt, however, seems to exist regarding this officer, some clothes boxes washed on shore having a brass plate with J. F. Elliot engraved thereon. Two bullock trunks had been washed on shore having the name "T. H. Woodhouse." The trunks contained his clothes, books and writing desk. The boxes marked J. F. Elliot, contained clothes, a military belt, a silver watch and some books. A writing desk with Mr. Clayhill's name had been found; but as the lascars speak positively to their being but two officers only on board, it is conjectured they were Lieutenants Woodhouse and Elliot, and that they perished with the vessel.

STEAM COMMUNICATION.—The following is an extract of a letter from Captain Barber, East India Agent in London.

"A short time now only will elapse before your Steam Communication will be regular and steady; a party meet frequently at my office for the purpose of effecting it, and if the Company or the Government do not immediately commence their operations, a Company will be speedily formed, and aided, as we feel we should be, by all India, it must succeed."

THE ISABELLA.—The Brig Eleanor, Captain Lyon, fell in with the Isabella from Moulmein bound to Calcutta, out twenty-four days, on short allowance and leaky, and took passengers out of her. She had only ninety gallons of water on board: the Eleanor supplied her with three casks.

THE CROPS.—The crops, generally, throughout the Madras presidency, wore an unfavorable aspect.

FORGERY.—The cash keeper of Messrs. Bainbridge and Co., has been detected in forging on the Government Bank, in the name of the concern, to the amount of 8,500 rupees. The man has been put in prison and a large portion of the money surreptitiously obtained, has been recovered.

EARTHQUAKE.—An Earthquake occurred at Waltair on the 1st Nov. The shock was very slight and lasted about thirty seconds.

NEW JOURNAL.—On the 16th of Nov. appeared the first number of the Examiner, a bi-weekly newspaper; to be conducted by the Editor of the late Standard, upon the independent principle of being "open to all parties and influenced by none." In this paper will be incorporated the Madras Times. The subscription is two rupees a month, or twenty rupees a year, if paid in advance.

MILITARY.—Lieut.-Col. Alves has been appointed to the command of the 49th M. N. I.

REMISION OF PUNISHMENT.—Gunner Daniel Warner, of the Horse Artillery, who was found guilty on the charge of mutinous conduct at Kambay, and sentenced to receive a corporal punishment of three hundred lashes, has had his sentence remitted, with the following remarks by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief:—

"There is in the case of the prisoner, Gunner Warner, not the slightest extenuating circumstance, and he fully merits the infliction of the sentence which has been justly passed upon him by the Court; but the Commander-in-Chief is most unwilling that his first act of authority on assuming command of the Madras Army, should be to confirm an award of corporal punishment, disgraceful to the feelings of the Corps to which he belongs.

"His Excellency has therefore determined to remit the sentence, in the hope, that this exercise of clemency will have its right effect, and that no recurrence of similar misconduct will cause him to regret that he has spared the troops the shame of its infliction."

GOOMSOOR.—The 43d regiment marched from Ellora en route to Berhampore, under orders from the Brigadier-General Commanding the Northern Division, on the morning of the 5th of October. It was expected to reach its destination about the 9th of November by rapid marches.

The regiment crossed the Godavary, and arrived at Rajahmundry on the 9th October, and was encamped at Dhurmavaram, near Samulcottah, on the 13th—all well. The passage of the Goda, upwards of a mile in breadth, was extremely tedious and difficult owing to the great deficiency of proper passage boats, or of floating bridges and rafts. The roads in many places stand much in need of repair. The tress overhanging the road are so much in want of pruning as nearly to prevent riding on horseback in some places, and often render it a matter of the greatest danger and difficulty for loaded bandies to pass beneath them. A wing of the 41st regiment has also marched from Samulcottah en route to Berhampore, and from thirty to forty elephants passed Dhurmavaram on the 10th October in full march for Goomsoor.

The East Indian Company's schooner Recovery, returned to Madras roads on the 29th Oct. after having been out sixteen days, vainly attempting to make Coringa. She reports several vessels, supposed to be transports with troops from Madras to Munsoorcottah, being off Masulipatam on the 26th instant, contending with a strong Monsoon,—and, it is feared, they will be obliged to return to Madras and reland the troops they have on board.

THE CASE OF A. CAPAREY CHITTY.—The case of A. Cansee Chitty, an individual who, for the past twenty years has been incarcerated in the common jail of Salem, upon a reported, but never proved offence, and who has hitherto in vain prayed to be brought to trial, and that an opportunity should be afforded him of meeting the charges supposed to exist against him, is likely again soon to be brought before the public; for a petition from him is now before Government, and the prayer, to "be allowed the high privilege of a trial to decide whether or not he is guilty of the offence" charged against him, and which led to the imprisonment he has suffered, is under consideration.

CAPT. CHADS.—The merchants and others of Madras have convened a meeting, for the purpose of considering the propriety of voting an address of thanks to Capt. Chads for his services against the pirates.

ARCHDEACON CARR.—Archdeacon Carr is to be consecrated Bishop of Bombay, and the Bishop of Calcutta has requested the Bishop of Madras to meet him in March next, for the purpose of performing the ceremony.

BEACH REGULATIONS.—Agreeably to the revised and modified beach regulations, the useless and unmeaning custom of striking the flag-staff on the 15th of October has been discontinued, and ships may, if the weather permits, continue in the roads throughout the monsoon months.

SCARCITY OF RICE.—Rice is becoming very scarce in Madras in consequence of the continued dry season. Masulipatam and the neighbouring countries, are also suffering much from the scarcity.

BOMBAY.

SATTARA.—Popular rumour asserts, that the affair at Sattara has not yet been settled. Native letters from that place mention that a court of enquiry is engaged in the investigation of some important matter, which is supposed to have a connection with the late affair, and it is added that the Dewan of his highness is now under custody in the British cantonments—whether to answer for the charge, or merely to give his evidence, does not appear.

The 8th regiment of Native Infantry, has been posted to Sattara, and Mr. Secretary Willoughby and Col. Evans, Quarter-Master-General, have been appointed Commissioners to investigate into the cause of the disaffection of the Rajah.

LAUNCH OF A PILOT BRIG.—On the 25th of Oct. was launched from the slip, at Mazagon, a beautiful pilot brig, the first of three building from the same mould for the Calcutta Pilot Service. They are constructed upon plans of Mr. Seppings, the Hon'ble Company's Builder at Calcutta.

SUICIDE.—On the 1st of October, a sepoy of the 22nd Regt. N. I., put an end to his existence by shooting himself.

MURDER.—A soldier who, while on a hunting excursion, had killed a native near Cumburjee, a place about two miles from Belgaum some months ago, has been sentenced to transportation for life.

An individual who had killed a peon some months ago at Shapoor, has been set free in consequence of his being a Bramin.

RELICS FROM CABOOL.—A very valuable box of relics has recently reached Bombay from Cabool. It appears that some time since this Government placed at the disposal of Mr. Mason several thousand rupees for the purpose of excavating some of those singular buildings called "Tapes" in that country, the expenditure of which has terminated most successfully. Intrinsically even, the relics are of considerable value, consisting of several thousand coins in gold, silver, and copper, as well as some golden boxes; but in an historical point of view, they will prove of the first importance in elucidating the history of that part of Asia. Most of the coins are Greek chiefly of the Bactrian monarchs. There are also Roman coins, as well as some of the native dynasties that have reigned in Cabool.

COTTON CULTIVATION.—The Bombay Government has granted a remission of five years land revenue for all lands on which cotton is grown, with a view to encourage the culture of the staple.

GOVERNMENT SCHOOLS.—The Government has sanctioned the establishment of thirty two Canarese schools in the Southern Marathes country. Hitherto there were no Government schools for imparting knowledge in the Canarese language, and the benevolent intentions of Government in founding those now about to be established, will be fully appreciated by the people of that part of the country.

SINGAPORE.

PIRATES.—It appears that the pirates have not yet been deterred from frequenting their old haunts in the Straits. On the trip of the Wolf from Calcutta to Singapore, she sent her boats inside of the Dingdings in quest of pirates. Three pirate prahus were discovered, but the pirates succeeded in effecting their retreat into a creek, where they abandoned their boats, and escaped into the jungle, with the loss of a few lives from the shots fired at them.

The mission to the Rajah of Acheen, to induce him to give up the murderers of Capt. Patton of the Zoroaster, has failed in its object; the Rajah having refused to comply with the request of the deputation.

THE HORMANJEE BOMANJEE.—This vessel, it is now positively ascertained, is lost. A lascar belonging to her has been picked up by a ship in the China seas, and carried to Singapore.

THE PASSENGERS OF THE CHAS EATON.—One of the two lads, passengers of the unfortunate bark Chas. Eaton, who were saved from the savages, turns out to be William, the youngest son of Capt. D'Oyley. The other passengers, as has already been stated, were all barbarously murdered by the savages.

PENANG.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.—A Chinese gardner, who had been induced to gamble away the value of the produce of his garden, of one season, endeavoured to commit suicide by stabbing himself several times. The wounds did not prove instantly fatal and he fell exhausted with the hemorrhage. He was found extended on the floor and sent to hospital, but very slight hopes are entertained of his recovery.

SIR WM. NORRIS.—Sir Wm. Norris, the new Recorder of the Straits, and his lady, arrived at Penang on the 26th of September, from Ceylon, and took the usual oaths on the investiture of office, on the 29th.

SUMATRA.

BLOCKADE OF ACHEEN.—It appears by intelligence received during the week, that three Dutch frigates and a fleet of transports are at Acheen, blockading all the rivers, without the possibility of any description of boats sailing from or entering them. The dispatch of this apparently strong armament from Batavia, is consequent upon the late atrocities committed on the Dutch schooner Dolphin. The alacrity with which this force seems to have been equipped and dispatched from Batavia to demand satisfaction from the Rajah of Acheen, deserves every commendation.

JAVA.

DISTURBANCES IN BANTAM.—Recent accounts from Batavia intimate, that disturbances of a rather singular description had lately broken out in the Residency of Bantam, and that the Government had thought the employment of a military force necessary in order to quell them. A body of Javanese, together with a few Java-born Chinese, organized a scheme of insurrection, which commenced by setting fire to a house on the borders of the Batavia residency, the property of a police magistrate, but at the time in occupation of another gentleman, whose property to the amount of 10,000 rupees was totally destroyed. The insurgents abstained however, from any attempt at plunder, on this and other occasions, when it was in their power to do so; and therefore destruction and not spoil would appear to have been their object. It appears they found it necessary to precipitate operations before their schemes were fully matured, a party of them having been unexpectedly encountered by the police on the borders of Bantam, about 40 miles to the westward of Batavia, otherwise it is supposed they would have proved more formidable. Their chief is a female between thirty or forty years of age, and a native of Buitenzorg, but who had resided a number of years about Batavia. Several of them had been made prisoners, and either refused to tell, or did not know, why they had taken up arms. They appear to comprise several gangs, each of which has its chief, subordinate to the principal one. One of these inferior chiefs and his wife, both of them young, had been made prisoners, they had assumed high sounding titles, and their followers, who were made captives along with them, paid them every mark of respect. There numbers altogether appear to have been very small probably not quite two hundred. At the date of the last advice from Batavia, they were still holding out among the hills, and one hundred and fifty troops were still in the field against them.

REVIEW OF THE CALCUTTA MARKET.

(From Kuhn's Monthly Price Current, November 30, 1836.)

The native holidays have again interrupted the transactions during about 10 days, the market has, however, been very active this last fortnight, heavy purchases having been made by Shippers to take advantage of the Government's advances which closed for the season 1833-37 on the 25th instant. Government advances for the next season 1837-38 will be renewed on the 1st May next. The last news from China states that the East India Company's Agents there, closed their Treasury against the receipts of cash for bills on Bengal, and for advances on shipments of silk and tea. This unexpected proceeding, at a moment when purchases and exports are most active combined with the closure of Government's advances here on shipments may effect considerably our market, depress the prices of exportable produce and raise the exchange here to 2s 51 to 2s 61 per Sicca Rupee. Credits with shipping documents against shipments of indigo for French account have been negotiated to the extent of 4 lacs of rupees at 2s 3d per Company Rupee and to the extent of 5 lacs of rupees at 2s 4½d per Sicca Rupee.

EXPORTS—Shipping having become more abundant our rates are in general on the decline.

INDIGO—The importation goes on rapidly, we are however, for the present, unable to state with precision the quantity arrived, there being now no records at the Custom-house. From the 1st of January next this inconvenience will be removed, as far as possible, the editor of this publication having taken the necessary arrangements at the Ghats, and Nullahs, in order to give a daily report of the goods passed, we shall consequently begin with our number of January next to give a statement of the Imports and Exports from and to the interior.

The following is a note of Exports by Sea on to the 28th instant comparatively to the Exports of 1835 up to the same date.

We annex in a supplement an abstract of the sales which have come to our notice up to the 26th instant, amounting to 38,000 maunds.

It is generally believed that about 45,000 mds. have already been sold of this season's produce.

According to the most careful estimate, the crop is rated at about 115,000 maunds. The present state of the market has rather a tendency to decline, in consequence of the high rates of the Exchange.

OPPIUM—The quantity remaining in the Hon'ble Company's Godowns is limited to about 200 chests in the hand of natives. Nothing worthy of notice has been reported since our last, our prices are therefore quoted nominally.

RAW SILK—The sales are re-trained by the absence of good qualities and prices remain well supported. The prospect of the November bund is said to be favourable. The following sales have been reported.

SILK PRICE GOODS—Large orders of Corahs continue to be under execution for Shipments to England, prices are high. We refer to the few transactions which have come to our notice.

COTTON—Our Stock is becoming heavy. Shipments to China being at the close, and prices are declining. We refer to the following Sales.

SATTINETTE—The increase in shipping has contributed to support this produce, which continues in steady demand for England and America.

SILK—The market is still dull, and nothing worthy of notice has been reported for shipment to England. An early improvement is however expected. The Bengal Sugar will have passed the Legislative Council, which we expect will move the difficulties existing in the English Act, as to certificate of growth.

TAC DAF AND SHIRT TAC—The demand has been rather active during the whole month and our prices are quoted somewhat higher than in our last number.

RICE—Heavy Shipments have been made for the Month of March and Bellum Rice, and prices of these descriptions experienced a considerable increase. Some transactions for North November Rice, caused by the scarcity of rains in October last.

FINES—The failure of the season's crop is now fully confirmed, not above one third of last season's produce having come to our market. The total of the arrivals has been already engaged for Shipments to England, very little remains in the market. Prices firm.

SICCA DRUGS AND OTHER MISCELLANEOUS PRODUCE—The following sales show the state of the market I regard to the articles under this head.

METALS—Our market has obtained large supplies by the vessel arrived since our last, and our prices of copper are quoted somewhat lower. The transactions in iron have been limited prices are however well supported. Spelter is slightly on the decline. The rate of the Exchange will, no doubt, affect prices of the various articles under this head and in general all articles of Imports from home.

TWIST—The market continues active, although prices are on the decline, owing to the rise of the Exchange.

COTTON PRICE GOODS—Shirtings, Long-cloth Cambrics and Chintz are in good demand as usual at this season. The late market has been abundantly supplied by the late arrivals.

THE JEYPOOR TRIALS.

TEST OF HOOKUM CHUND, JOTHA RAM AND FUTH LAL.

On perusal of that part of his examination which relates to letter No. 2 of Agra papers, Hookum Chund repeats his former assertion, that this and the three succeeding letters were written by the daughter of Ditya Ram Bhuttachari; but, though asked to state how he came to know this point, and reminded that Mangeen Poorohit had before him deposed to this, and other letters resembling it, having been written by one Bheee Duttu Brahmun, he gives no explanation, beyond the reiterated declaration, that it is her writing, he knows it is so.

Examination of Chand Koonwur, daughter of Ditya Ram Bhuttachari, is shown in Court and read, (vide Appendix No. 5) and specimens of her handwriting are produced. Hookum Chund looks at the writing and acknowledges that it bears no resemblance, but adds, that she is a clever woman and can write several different hands. He and Jottha Ram, who has also joined in the affirmation respecting the writes of the letters, are repeatedly asked, if they wish to have Chand Koonwur examined before several of their own servants, or other witnesses to be named by them, who may attend the examiners at her house in the city, but they will give no decided answer.

By desire of Hookum Chund and Jottha Ram, five letters attributed to Gyan Chund, four of which were found at Agra and one at Deosa, are re-read. Hookum Chund desires to look at No. 4 and, on inspecting it, calls out that a passage in it has been mis-read,—that in lieu of,—"destroy all those who have combined,"—the right reading is,—"since all have combined, destroy the two;"—but on its being suggested that under this version it became a question, what two were intended to be designated, he seems inclined to return to the former reading.

Hookum Chund now holds a short conference with his brother, who is sitting next him; after which, he informs the Court that the four letters attributed to Gyan Chund, found at Agra, were transmitted through Deosa, and desires that Mangeea Poorohit may be summoned and questioned again regarding them. The application is complied with, and then the examination of Futh Lal in February last, is read without comment.

Notice is here given that all the evidence for the prosecution is now before the Court, and the prisoners are invited to make their defence, and call for the individuals they wish to produce as witnesses. Hookum Chund and Jottha Ram state their intention of both making verbal addresses, as they may see fit, and giving in written defences which will be duly prepared by them.

Jottha Ram then signifies his wish that Lukshmun Chuprassee should be called as witness.

Witness for Jottha Ram, Lukshmun Chuprassee on the Establishment of the Agent to the Governor-General.

Lukshmun Brahmun, Chuprassee, deposes that he was born at a village situated between Dilhee and Georagan: has been twenty-two years in service; was formerly attached to the Dilhee Residency. Was directed to observe that Jottha Ram, at Deosa, did not make use of pen and ink, and that strangers did not enter on conferences with him. There were on duty at Deosa, three European officers, one Rissalu and two Companies, and deponent was also sent there; this was the party that accompanied Jottha Ram from Jaepoor in the beginning of Chait, (about the 12th March 1835;) does not remember the name of the Risakhar, but he is now at his home: the Gentleman remained twenty-four days at Deosa with the two Companies, and then Chief Singh received charge: the Risaku staid, but the Companies went away—witness was there altogether about thirteen months: the Rissalu was afterwards relieved, but there were three Dufadars and ten Suwars, of the first party who remained at Deosa from first to last: when Sunghjee was transferred to the Fort, a detachment of Rissaluis arrived to guard him. Deponent's carpet was spread outside the front of Jottha Ram's tent, and he sat upon it when not engaged in attending to his personal matters—as bathing, cooking and eating, &c.; did not go inside the tent without cause; slept upon the carpet near the gunat at night. Sentries were within the tent—a Dufadar and two Suwars; the Dufadar sat near Sunghjee, and the Suwars stood some three or four paces distant: the watch was relieved at stated times: this arrangement was made by the Captain Sahib; when the Gentleman was gone, the Risakdar gave orders: the Sentries had their pistols, and swords, sheathed, in their girdles; they walked up and down, and the Dufadar was seated: the Sentries of the Raj detachment were posted at some distance from the tent. There was a gunat fixed some eight or nine paces off, within view, of the Sentries in the tent; inside the gunat were conveniences for the purpose of purification, including the washing of the hands and feet; sometimes Sunghjee bathed within the large tent. There were other gunats fixed to form an apartment for eating in; the space included by them was covered over by an awning: these gunats were eight or nine paces from the tent, towards which was the opening in them; the sides of gunats were connected with the tent. Sunghjee's servants could converse freely with their master whenever they had occasion to go to him, and there was no need of whispering, which did not ever occur before deponent, who made a rent in the gunat near his carpet, so that he could see Sunghjee whenever he chose to look for the purpose. As not aware that his servants gave Sunghjee information received from Agra or any other place, and when the latter asked deponent what was going on, he used to say, that he didn't know. Sunghjee's servant might write as much as they pleased in their own huts or tents; deponent paid no attention to their pursuits. Once, letters came with a tent from Agra, and Mangeea read them; knows nothing about the communication of their contents to Sunghjee: cannot say in what way the tent and the pulkee which came were sent for. Deponent, himself, once commissioned a hirkaru of Sunghjee to bring him a carpet and some string from Agra; the hirkaru had brought five pomegranets and some candied potha (a species of goupd), to Mangeea Poorohit and Vishnu Ram, from Agra: deponent seeing a stranger asked whence he came; and was told by Mangeea and Vishnu that he came from Agra; the hirkaru remained one night at Deosa; the carpet and string were never brought to deponent: did not see that the hirkaru took back any letter from Sunghjee: never saw any other man, from Agra or Jaepoor, coming or going.

The Court adjourns to seven o'clock to-morrow morning.

Saturday, 30th July, 1835.

At half past seven the members of the Court are all present, and the prisoners have taken their seats.

2nd Witness for Jottha Ram.—Ummant Khan, Dufadar, 3d Rissalu, 3d Local Horse. Was born at Julehahad; has been twenty-three years in the service. Remained at Deosa, on command, upon the 31st July 1835.

The deponent in a bigh near the town of Deosa: the deponent went on to look after Sunghjee that he did not go, and did not permit pen and ink to be taken to him. During the day three men were on duty at his tent, two inside and one outside: at night there were two outside the tent as well as two within it. The Dufadar on duty regulated the reliefs: when the Sentries were changed the Dufadar would sit down in the tent, and remain there a longer or shorter time: there were four Dufadars on duty in the course of the twenty-four hours, which gave reliefs to each of them: the Dufadar was a custom d to sit down a few paces from Sunghjee in the tent; he left the tent whenever he required any thing as to smoke or eat—and went to the lines, which were not far off; the Sentries always remained at their post. Depo- nent was sick, and, in consequence, came on duty, only two or three times. The quants of occasional con- valescences were fixed some eight or ten paces from the tent; the Sentries had the door of it in their view: there were also Sentries beyond the quants: never saw Sunghjeeee bath, but did see him go in between the quants once or twice. To form an apartment for meals, there were quants erected six or seven paces from the tent, facing which was the opening, and through this the Sentries could see. Mangeea and other servants used to attend Sunghjee at his meals: the cook was deaf and dumb: Sunghjee had some fifty servants who came to him at other times, but during meals only three or four confidential men approached him. Never saw strangers in the tent of Sunghjee when on duty. Mangeea used to sit in the Toshuk Khanu, respecting which deponent knows nothing. Sunghjee's servant came and went without restriction and conversed with their master in all sorts of tones: deponent is not acquainted with the lan- guage of the country; therefore could not understand what they talked about. A Chupra-ee belonging to the establishment of the Agent to the Governor General, usually remained outside the quant of Sunghjee's tent, and slept there at night: cannot tell where the Chupra-ee cooked, or with whom he dined. Reading and writing letters were interdicted to Sunghjee, and it was ordered that paper of any kind should not be taken within the tent, so that there was no writing by any one there. De- ponent was acquainted with the persons of some of the servants of Sunghjee, and there were many whom he had no knowledge of in that respect; cannot say that he knew the names of any of them. The object of the watch kept, was threefold, that Sunghjee should be free from apprehension and discomfort of all kinds; that he should not go away, and that he should not carry on a correspondence in his own person by letters: the Ri- aldar gave orders that, agreeably to the instructions of the Sahib, he was not to be subjected to annoyances of any description. There was no Sentry at the Toshuk Khanu: Sentries from the Raj detachment were placed round the tents at a short distance from them; in the day time there were fewer of them, during the night there were more. Jotha Ram has no further questions to propose to witness who retires.

3d Witness for Jotha Ram.—Nasir Khan, Dufadar, 1st Riwal 3d Local Horse, has been twenty-two years in the service. Accompanied Sunghjee from Juepoor to Deosa, where he remained: Sana Qullu Khan, Ri- aldar, was with the party of Suwars: after reaching Deosa, most of the Infantry went on with Bura Sunghjee to Agria, but one or two companies halted, and staid some- times at Deosa: as long as these remained the Sentries over Sunghjee's tent were furnished from them, and the Suwars took the other duties. There were two Sentries inside the tent, and two more behind it: those with- in it stood a few paces distant from Sunghjee, and the Dufadar used to sit down: the Ri- aldar had ordered that the Dufadar should be in attendance; when he had post- ed the Sentries he could come away to smoke or eat, and then return to the tent. Four Dufadars came on duty during the day and night. The orders in force were, that those not belonging to Sunghjee should not be allowed to approach him; that no one should be permitted to go near him armed; that pen and ink should not be taken inside his tent, and reading or writing there be prohibited. His servants attended him for all purposes; deponent knew those who were in the habit of coming and going, and would not have allowed a stranger to go near him: no one at the times he was on duty ever made the attempt and was stopped. The Dufadar sat at the tentpole, near Sunghjee; the Raj Sentries were all outside; the Chupra-ee sat outside, near the quants, where also re- mained a Chobdar and one or two more of Sunghjee's servants: the Chupra-ee slept there at night, but not in another place, which was opposite to the position near the quant. The place of occasional resort, for purposes of purification, was surrounded by quants; it was near a corner of the tent, facing which was the opening: between the eating apartment and the tent there was abundance of room for washing the hands and feet upon a wooden seat. A Sentry in the tent used to cast his eyes towards the place appropriated to meals when Sunghjee was there. Some four or five servants were constantly about Sunghjee, attending to all his wants; deponent knew their persons, but was not acquainted with their names. Never saw Sunghjee reading or writing; the Ri- aldar had given an order that if any letters were brought for Sunghjee, they should not be taken inside the tent with- out his permission, and that of Thakoor Chand Singh being obtained: no letter ever came when deponent was on duty. Never saw any one from Agria or other place vi- sit Sunghjee. Among his servants, all those whom he wanted went to him; there was no check to free inter- course as far as they were concerned: those who were known to be his servants went to him; the Raj people about would not have permitted strangers to approach. Never saw Mangeea while near Sunghjee, but he may have written abundantly elsewhere for aught deponent can tell. Does not understand the dialect of these pro- vinces: never noticed whispering in the tent. The intent of the watch at Sunghjee's tent was, as deponent un- derstood from instructions received, to keep a good look out with respect to his person; to prevent pen, ink and paper being taken to him; and, with the exception of Chand Singh, not to suffer any person unconnected with him and the Ri- alu to enter the tent. There was no order for searching the servants of Sunghjee at any time. The Chupra-ee had some one living with him; did not know the name of this person, or who he was. The Jar- ewans belonging to Sunghjee remained on different sides of the tent, at the distance of about thirty paces; and the carriages and animals were immediately beyond them. Jotha Ram declines putting any more questions to witness and he retires.

4th Witness for Jotha Ram.—Densuran Khan, Dufa- dar, 1st Riwal 3d Local Horse:—went with Sunghjee to Deosa, staid there fifteen or sixteen days and then went to his home on leave of absence. Infantry Sentries were over the tent of Sunghjee as long as deponent remained, and the Sentries furnished by the Riwal who were posted at some distance from it.

There being no other questions to propose to witness, he withdraws.

5th Witness for Jotha Ram.—Hafiz Khuda Bakhsh, Suwar, 2d Riwal 3d Local Horse:—went on command to Deosa in the month of Sawan (July 1835), when the former Riwal there was relieved. The orders given were, that strangers should not be allowed to enter the tent of Sunghjee, and paper, pen and ink should be kept out. Two Sentries remained inside the tent, and a Dufadar used to sit there. Sunghjee had a great many servants, and there was a Chupra-ee, who went to him when called, or occasionally without being called: cannot tell what Sunghjee conversed about with his servants; they used to talk in a manner of ways. Sometimes whispering or speaking low, at other times without any check upon the

...the order was to which his person, but that he should not go away and that no one should take him: the only prohibition was that regarding pens, ink and paper. Depositions were nothing of the nature of these prohibitions. Depositions for Jotha Ram.—Sukh Gulabdar Mukhsh, Darsar, 3d Baidal, 3d Darsi Hras: came from Deosa, deposed and was enrolled at Deosa. The instructions given were—that no stranger should be permitted to enter the tent; pens, ink and paper should be kept out, and no one be allowed to go inside with arms. A fire there was only a distance within the tent, another stood outside it, and a third was placed in the rear; but when Capt. Laddow and Conolly visited Deosa (in September 1835) the outside tent was removed to the interior of the tent, the Dular used to remain inside from the first. Deposition is ignorant of the dialect spoken in this part of the country; and could not understand the subjects of conversation between Sunghesee and his servant: was acquainted with the persons of the servant who were accustomed to go in and out. Sunghesee never read or wrote in presence of deponent; the prohibition on this head was strict.

Witness withdrawn.

There are more Duars in waiting, to be called if required, but Jotha Ram leaving it to the Court to examine them or not, as they think proper, the question is asked of him, whether there are any points not deposed to by the foregoing witnesses which he wishes to enter into through other; and, upon his answering that the evidence of all the rest would be similar to that which had been received, the Court observe that they do not see that more evidence relative to the general routine of duty in force, the nature of the watch kept, and the purport of the orders that were extant, can be required.

Jotha Ram remarks that he wished to have the deposition of the Risaldar who was on command at Deosa taken, and had before mentioned his name, but as this Native Officer is not now at Juepoor, and is either at his home on leave of absence, or with the Heral quarters of his Regiment at Neemuch, his attendance in Court cannot well be obtained. His evidence would have confirmed that of the Dulaia and Suwar in all points.

Reference having been made by Jotha Ram to the instructions he received from the Agent to the Governor General, to regulate his conduct at Deosa, and to the rules established by the officer who commanded there for some time, which were afterwards strictly observed by the Risaldar and Chani Singh, the following documents are presented from the office of the Agent to the Governor General in Rajpootana and read in Court.

2d.—Letter addressed to Jotha Ram by the Agent to the Governor General.

3d.—Letter addressed to Risaldar by the Agent to the Governor General.

These documents are numbered in the Appendix, Nos. 6, 7 and 8.

Behard Poorohit, summoned again at the desire of Jotha Ram, is brought before the Court. Letters No. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 102, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 109, 110, 111, 112, 113, 114, 115, 116, 117, 118, 119, 120, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 133, 134, 135, 136, 137, 138, 139, 140, 141, 142, 143, 144, 145, 146, 147, 148, 149, 150, 151, 152, 153, 154, 155, 156, 157, 158, 159, 160, 161, 162, 163, 164, 165, 166, 167, 168, 169, 170, 171, 172, 173, 174, 175, 176, 177, 178, 179, 180, 181, 182, 183, 184, 185, 186, 187, 188, 189, 190, 191, 192, 193, 194, 195, 196, 197, 198, 199, 200, 201, 202, 203, 204, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 210, 211, 212, 213, 214, 215, 216, 217, 218, 219, 220, 221, 222, 223, 224, 225, 226, 227, 228, 229, 230, 231, 232, 233, 234, 235, 236, 237, 238, 239, 240, 241, 242, 243, 244, 245, 246, 247, 248, 249, 250, 251, 252, 253, 254, 255, 256, 257, 258, 259, 260, 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 266, 267, 268, 269, 270, 271, 272, 273, 274, 275, 276, 277, 278, 279, 280, 281, 282, 283, 284, 285, 286, 287, 288, 289, 290, 291, 292, 293, 294, 295, 296, 297, 298, 299, 300, 301, 302, 303, 304, 305, 306, 307, 308, 309, 310, 311, 312, 313, 314, 315, 316, 317, 318, 319, 320, 321, 322, 323, 324, 325, 326, 327, 328, 329, 330, 331, 332, 333, 334, 335, 336, 337, 338, 339, 340, 341, 342, 343, 344, 345, 346, 347, 348, 349, 350, 351, 352, 353, 354, 355, 356, 357, 358, 359, 360, 361, 362, 363, 364, 365, 366, 367, 368, 369, 370, 371, 372, 373, 374, 375, 376, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 385, 386, 387, 388, 389, 390, 391, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 400, 401, 402, 403, 404, 405, 406, 407, 408, 409, 410, 411, 412, 413, 414, 415, 416, 417, 418, 419, 420, 421, 422, 423, 424, 425, 426, 427, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 440, 441, 442, 443, 444, 445, 446, 447, 448, 449, 450, 451, 452, 453, 454, 455, 456, 457, 458, 459, 460, 461, 462, 463, 464, 465, 466, 467, 468, 469, 470, 471, 472, 473, 474, 475, 476, 477, 478, 479, 480, 481, 482, 483, 484, 485, 486, 487, 488, 489, 490, 491, 492, 493, 494, 495, 496, 497, 498, 499, 500, 501, 502, 503, 504, 505, 506, 507, 508, 509, 510, 511, 512, 513, 514, 515, 516, 517, 518, 519, 520, 521, 522, 523, 524, 525, 526, 527, 528, 529, 530, 531, 532, 533, 534, 535, 536, 537, 538, 539, 540, 541, 542, 543, 544, 545, 546, 547, 548, 549, 550, 551, 552, 553, 554, 555, 556, 557, 558, 559, 560, 561, 562, 563, 564, 565, 566, 567, 568, 569, 570, 571, 572, 573, 574, 575, 576, 577, 578, 579, 580, 581, 582, 583, 584, 585, 586, 587, 588, 589, 590, 591, 592, 593, 594, 595, 596, 597, 598, 599, 600, 601, 602, 603, 604, 605, 606, 607, 608, 609, 610, 611, 612, 613, 614, 615, 616, 617, 618, 619, 620, 621, 622, 623, 624, 625, 626, 627, 628, 629, 630, 631, 632, 633, 634, 635, 636, 637, 638, 639, 640, 641, 642, 643, 644, 645, 646, 647, 648, 649, 650, 651, 652, 653, 654, 655, 656, 657, 658, 659, 660, 661, 662, 663, 664, 665, 666, 667, 668, 669, 670, 671, 672, 673, 674, 675, 676, 677, 678, 679, 680, 681, 682, 683, 684, 685, 686, 687, 688, 689, 690, 691, 692, 693, 694, 695, 696, 697, 698, 699, 700, 701, 702, 703, 704, 705, 706, 707, 708, 709, 710, 711, 712, 713, 714, 715, 716, 717, 718, 719, 720, 721, 722, 723, 724, 725, 726, 727, 728, 729, 730, 731, 732, 733, 734, 735, 736, 737, 738, 739, 740, 741, 742, 743, 744, 745, 746, 747, 748, 749, 750, 751, 752, 753, 754, 755, 756, 757, 758, 759, 760, 761, 762, 763, 764, 765, 766, 767, 768, 769, 770, 771, 772, 773, 774, 775, 776, 777, 778, 779, 780, 781, 782, 783, 784, 785, 786, 787, 788, 789, 790, 791, 792, 793, 794, 795, 796, 797, 798, 799, 800, 801, 802, 803, 804, 805, 806, 807, 808, 809, 810, 811, 812, 813, 814, 815, 816, 817, 818, 819, 820, 821, 822, 823, 824, 825, 826, 827, 828, 829, 830, 831, 832, 833, 834, 835, 836, 837, 838, 839, 840, 841, 842, 843, 844, 845, 846, 847, 848, 849, 850, 851, 852, 853, 854, 855, 856, 857, 858, 859, 860, 861, 862, 863, 864, 865, 866, 867, 868, 869, 870, 871, 872, 873, 874, 875, 876, 877, 878, 879, 880, 881, 882, 883, 884, 885, 886, 887, 888, 889, 890, 891, 892, 893, 894, 895, 896, 897, 898, 899, 900, 901, 902, 903, 904, 905, 906, 907, 908, 909, 910, 911, 912, 913, 914, 915, 916, 917, 918, 919, 920, 921, 922, 923, 924, 925, 926, 927, 928, 929, 930, 931, 932, 933, 934, 935, 936, 937, 938, 939, 940, 941, 942, 943, 944, 945, 946, 947, 948, 949, 950, 951, 952, 953, 954, 955, 956, 957, 958, 959, 960, 961, 962, 963, 964, 965, 966, 967, 968, 969, 970, 971, 972, 973, 974, 975, 976, 977, 978, 979, 980, 981, 982, 983, 984, 985, 986, 987, 988, 989, 990, 991, 992, 993, 994, 995, 996, 997, 998, 999, 1000.

...probable that he had been the real name of the writer. Does not know the handwriting of the daughter of Bhutacharj; can only say he has only the letters came from her. On being asked the purpose of the letters, in one of the letters, appeared a name, Mangeesa, for whom the contents of the letters were intended as I have before declared. Jotha Ram was requested to offer any explanation he pleased, regarding the contents, and replied—"question Mangeesa who wrote the letters." Mangeesa again says that, though the letters came to him, yet the matter they contained concerned the two Sunghes, who only could furnish explanations on that head. Jotha Ram observes that he knows nothing about the letters. Mangeesa being asked directly, whether the four letters found at Agra, out of the five before him, passed through Deosa, hesitates to reply, but, receiving a verbal hint from Hookum Chund, acknowledges that they did, and adds, that all letters which contained matter of importance were sent on to Agra. The handwriting of letters bearing the name of Gyan Chund is compared with that of the five letters upon the table, and the exact resemblance between the two is remarked, but Hookum Chund continues to affirm that they were written by the daughter of Bhutacharj.

The Court observes that, by whomsoever they were written, their contents require elucidation, which it must be in the power of the two Sunghes to furnish; but that there shall be another examination of the daughter of Bhutacharj, with whom Mangeesa shall be consulted, and that the Sunghes, if they please, may depose persons on their own part to be present on the occasion; and may forward any message they like, privily or openly, written or verbal, and that the person to be examined shall be promised a full pardon, in the name of the Court, and of the Bittur and Juepoor Rajes, for any communications she can make, provided that she be able to imitate closely the handwriting of these letters. Both Hookum Chund and Jotha Ram declare having anything to do with the proposed examination.

The prisoners are now requested to prepare the written defences they have in hand, so that they may be submitted to the Court on an early day, and, after some discussion, in the course of which it is recommended to the prisoners to put in writing as much as possible of what they wish to say, an adjournment takes place Monday next being the day fixed for the next sitting.

Wednesday, 3d August, 1835.

At nine a. m. all the Members of the Court are present, and the prisoners are in their usual seats.

The observation is made that sickness had unavoidably caused the postponement of the Court's sitting from Monday last until the present day.

The examination of Chand Koonwur, daughter of Duya Ram Bhutacharj, taken on Saturday last before Mangeesa Poorohit, is read, and various specimens of her handwriting are exhibited. Depositions of Ram Rutun and Ram Nail, two servants of Bhutacharj, are also read—(vide Appendix No. 9). It is declared by the Court, and Hookum Chund acquiesces in the conclusion, that there is not the slightest resemblance between the writing of Chand Koonwur as shown, and that of the five letters.

Hookum Chund and Jotha Ram now commence making desultory and gratuitous remarks concerning the animosity of Nawul Iweras Bai towards them, the false accusations he has made against them and others, and the influence he has used to procure their conviction, charging the Members of the Court with being merely the instruments of his will in the present proceedings, who seek to offend the Nawul, and from whom they cannot expect to have a fair trial; and that, accordingly, nothing they say makes any impression, whilst all that is advanced by him, goes on with ready acceptance. The crimes for which they are made to answer are stated by the date of their sentence (they will not speak of the sentence they allude to when asked the question, but the application is obvious, though with a reference to the real history of the accusation they might be supposed to refer to another quarter.)

The Court observe, that the duty they are now performing was not sought for by them, but when it was imposed upon them they accepted it, because they thought that, however disagreeable and irksome the fulfilment of it might be, they could find no excuses that should be deemed sufficient to justify them in declining to act: that Rawul Bueires Siif was unknown to them in their appointment, excepting that as a servant of the Raj, he may have taken some part in it, though to what extent they had not the means of telling; all those who attended the Court were as well informed on that point as themselves. Two of the Minibars are not subjects of the Rajput State, and have never had communication of any kind with Rawul Bueires Siif, the others are not connected with the Government, and do not usually reside at Juepori,—and these can and do ever openly state that the Rawul, who is bound by certain ties as a Minister of the State, could not and would not in the capacity of Minister attempt to injure them or their possessions without substantial and valid cause connected with their allegiance to the Raj. You assert that the Rawul accuses you and others, where is the proof of this accusation? for up to this day we have no reason to know that he accuses any one as you state; whereas your own letters show how hastily you have advanced accusations, in substantiation of which you have offered nothing. You say that what you urge is not heard with attention, we are sitting here to receive all the information obtainable respecting the matters at issue, and have done all in our power to further that object: we have never refused attention to anything you have addressed to us, yet without the slightest grounds for such complaint you continue to reiterate that we do not listen to you. State in any way that suits you that all you wish to say, and you shall find us ready to attend to the whole of it, and desirous to do you every possible justice. For your own satisfaction, and in order that there may be no misconception on your part we have repeatedly in nothing some of your numerous remarks and addresses, given you to understand that we think full, unreserved explanations relative to the Deesa and Agra papers produced, which tend so strongly to criminate you, are essential to your justification. If you prefer to rest your defence upon assertions, which are not only entirely unsupported by any kind of evidence but are in many instances contradicted by that which is within reach of the Court, and are generally of so improbable a nature, so devoid of all plausibility, as to be merely calculated to impose upon the nice standings of intelligent children, and to lavish abuse on all who come within the scope of your imaginations as not likely to be subservient to your acquittal—giving expression to sentiments altogether unsuitable to your present situation, what can the Court do to assist you? We are desirous to receive with consideration whatever you have to offer that you think can serve you.

The punishment of further remarks of the prisoners is, that they know not what to say that there is nothing substantial in what has appeared against them: that they cannot explain themselves as they could wish before a discourse of people: that instead of addressing the Court they wish to hold private conversation with Lieutenant Colonel Speers and Captain Thorsby, when they would tell those Gentlemen all they have to say. On being told that this was impossible, that neither the Court, nor the Gentlemen they have named, can hear them in any other way than publicly, they reply that then they must speak their minds.

At last they say that there is nothing proved: the ladies contain no matter by which they can be criminated and the witness of many of them are called.

vered, the Court observed that the ladies were directed by the Major Sahib to write to the Sadar Government according to the tenor set forth in some of the letters read—the onus of proof on this point resting with the Court, whom they defy to produce her contradiction of the position that her instructions were given. It is here notified to them that the Major has written to deny participation in the addresses to the Sadar, and, at that name, a late khuresti from the Lady is procured from the Office of the Agent to the Governor General, and read in Court (vide Appendix No. 20.) They now declare that she did not write to this effect spontaneously, and asking to look at the letter, Hookum Chund asserts that the last one, authenticating the document, is in the handwriting of one of the other Ranees and not the Major Sahib.

Being requested to produce their written defences, they demur. Saying that they want to have the questions connected with the note said to have been found amongst Umur Chund's papers, and the Deesa and Agra letters cleared up first, that the former should be pronounced a forgery, and their irresponsibility for the contents of the latter acknowledged, otherwise there can be no use in their bringing forward what they have written. At length the good deal of altercation, they yield the point and Hookum Chund presents his defence to be read by one of the two native Secretaries who attend the Court.

The defence of Hookum Chund is read—and this is followed by the perusal of the long address presented by Jotha Ram, Kuth Lal has prepared no separate document, and does not urge anything verbally to the Court.

Hookum Chund and Jotha Ram stating that they have more to say if a hearing be granted to them, are told that in that case they may attend again on the morrow, as the Court are desirous of giving them the fullest possible hearing. A hour to 9 o'clock to-morrow morning.

Thursday, 4th August, 1836.

At a few minutes past nine o'clock A. M. the Members of the Court are all present, and the prisoners being introduced are asked whether they have aught more to say in their own behalf. Jotha Ram replies that he expects to-day to be confronted with Deewan Umur Chund, as proposed by him in his address read yesterday: it answered that, our instances render it impracticable that the Deewan should be called before the Court as a witness at the present period, but that he has heard read a statement of the Deewan regarding the Note found among his papers, and the Court are fully apprized that the latter denies all knowledge of the document in question.

Hookum Chund is desirous of adding something more to his written defence, but it appearing, on explanation, that his object is to write an invective against the Court, he is told that this cannot now be permitted.

The two prisoners above named are loud and vehement in the utterance of various exclamation and remarks, thrown out at random and destitute of coherence and propriety; and as it is manifest that they have in reality nothing more to urge of a defensive nature, they are requested to retire, and are conducted out of the Court followed by Kuth Lal.

The Hall is now cleared, and the Members of the Court are left to themselves to deliberate upon their verdict. After consultation of about half an hour's duration, the following judgment is given and recorded before the two Political Officers whose re-attendance had been requested.

Verdict of the Court.

With reference to all the evidence that has been brought forward in the course of this trial, and according to the nature of the defence, brought forward, the Court fact and falsehood, with which the case for the prosecution has been met; the Court are of opinion that the charges preferred against the prisoners Hookum Chund and Jotha Ram are established; and that there can be no doubt with respect to their having participated in and abetted a conspiracy, directed against the existing Juepoore Government, in execution of part of the plans of which were perpetrated, in the city of Juepoor, the outrages and crimes of the 4th of June 1835; and the Court do accordingly—being unanimous—pronounce the two prisoners, Hookum Chund and Jotha Ram, guilty, and sentence them to suffer the penalty of death.

With respect to the third prisoner, Fath Lal, who has not made any separate defence, nor attempted in any way to sever his own cause from that of his uncle—the Court adjudge him to be guilty of both the charges exhibited against him conjointly with Hookum Chund, but taking into consideration the peculiar circumstances of his situation, and his youth, which is such as to render it probable that much was coerced from him, and that he was not entrusted with a full knowledge of matters of a perilously important nature, they award him the comparatively lenient sentence of undergoing imprisonment for the term of five years.

Defence written by Hookum Chund—addressed to the two Gentlemen.

We were residing at Agra in the territories of the Sarkar Company, and my brother Jotha Ram was in confinement at Deesa, where a company of Infantry and a Raskul were on duty, and all arrangements for security were made by you.

The day before we quitted Juepoor, he (Jotha Ram) waited upon the Bura Shih, who, at that time in view, desired him not to write or read any letters, and, accordingly, on that same day, he made a firm resolve not to read or write so long as he should remain under restraint of any sort. Now, a vow of this nature is sacred by the tenets of our faith, and is of such strong obligation that life will be sacrificed to preserve it inviolate. Moreover the rules and observances sanctioned by your Government to ensure due precaution, were in force, day and night, at Deesa—a Chuprassee, a Raskul and Sipahsees remained always present—as you have indeed ascertained beyond a doubt.

The disturbance at Juepoor occurred two and a half months subsequently to our departure thence, it took place at the residence of the Raj, when thousands of people were assembled, and in presence of those who had the management of affairs. The sword was used thus publicly, and the whole world knows how. In the attack upon Mr. Blake the assault with words came with and accompanied him through the Hazar, and the gate of the city was closed.* Even the children of Juepoor know all this! and you yourselves must be fully aware of the whole: but thousands of letters relating to this affair have been written to various parts of the Country, therefore, if you wish to ascertain all the particulars it may be done.

* It was closed subsequently in the day, according to the testimony of witnesses formerly examined to the point. The Elephant of Mr. Blake's elephant was questioned on the subject, and that he himself never saw the city gate; that on reaching the Munder Mr. B. made use of the words, the door was closed, but the document could not say where the door was closed, as he alleged,

Our enemies forged a note and threw it into the house of a Munder, and afterwards declared that it was found there amongst the papers of the Deewan: I beseech you to take pains to expose the fraud and falsehood of this charge; on due enquiry to. The Munder with us door shut was at the time close at hand, whereas, only a small portion of the top of the space occupied by the city gate is visible from that part of the street, to one well acquainted with the locality and perfectly cool and collected. It is, however, very probable that some attempt was made by the conspirators to, secure the closing of the city gate early in the day, though there is no proof of their having succeeded.

Among all the papers seized at Deesa and Agra which you have by you, can you exhibit one containing a single letter in the handwriting of Jotha Ram? A Minister of Justice should strive in every possible way to arrive at the truth, do you therefore examine according to this principle, for they have calumniated us falsely. First, they cast obliquely upon us with reference to the Mularaj, and when that did not succeed, they set up this accusation with a wish to entangle us, but do you search for the truth by all practicable means, many are the roads to be trod in the pursuit of a just decision.

Respecting the three or four persons sent from Juepoor by Rawuljee, who have said that the few words upon the front of the note resemble the handwriting of Jotha Ram, attend to the following account of them. They are the servants of Rawuljee. Suda,* Sookh Sungree, formerly embroiled forty thousand rupees of the public money and absconded, in consequence of which, all his property found, including even his house, was sequestered to the Raj. He took shelter with the Rao Raja, and again became a revenue farmer under his Government, but after some time, on account of his peculation, the Rao Raja caused him to be imprisoned, and though he contrived to effect his own escape from the duration in which he had been placed, yet his family remained still in confinement, until Rawuljee, after we had quitted Juepoor, appointed him Darogha of the Mudee-Khan, and furnished the pecuniary means required to procure their release. The real cause of his enmity towards us, is, that we demanded from him payment of the Government dues, to which he (the Rao Raja) had been obliged upon him with the view of obtaining from him satisfaction and if you will, you will take the matter yet.

* Suda Sookh was made Collector of Juepoor by Rawuljee by Hookum Chund and Jotha Ram, and living in a state of pignment to Government he was placed in confinement, but subsequently released, after which he went to Ujwal, where he once took the farm of a small district, in which he failed to fulfil the engagement entered into, and on that account a family remained under surveillance at Ujwal, when he himself returned to Juepoor, several months previously to the loss of power by the Daughers Krishna Lal during the period that he was residing at Deesa, after the departure of the Sunda, appointed Suda Sookh to office, and in consequence of some being made, the whole will be cleared up. He had no interest whatever in writing a note of that nature, and not a letter of it can be attributed to Jotha Ram, but it is clearly a forgery from beginning to end. Sookh Sungree proved against S. S. in connection with this case, in that case as you think proper that it some confessed having with evil intent, fabricated the document, and then declared that the few words written above resemble the handwriting of Jotha Ram—pray exert yourself to find out who wrote the body of the note; ascertain that point which will lead to a knowledge of all the rest; take this view of the subject, and then all will be cleared up, and, in future, no one will dare to commit a similar forgery. But if you are not inclined to settle the question in that way, and deem the more of such great importance to our estimation, then we will reflect how we are situated, and judge as to the nature of the charge. This was the end of you.

Among all the papers seized at Deesa and Agra which you have by you, can you exhibit one containing a single letter in the handwriting of Jotha Ram? A Minister of Justice should strive in every possible way to arrive at the truth, do you therefore examine according to this principle, for they have calumniated us falsely. First, they cast obliquely upon us with reference to the Mularaj, and when that did not succeed, they set up this accusation with a wish to entangle us, but do you search for the truth by all practicable means, many are the roads to be trod in the pursuit of a just decision.

service performed by him in the Revenue Department procured by him a pecuniary reward of about 2,000 rupees, which enabled him to make terms for the enlargement of his family.

The second of those witnesses, named Siva Lal Gungwal, was formerly fixed, with his father, at the village Bainsuna, which was held in Tankah by Jotha Ram; and in that charge the father and son became defaulters to the extent of two thousand rupees: as they declared they were unable to make good the amount, they were put in confinement, from which on our departure they were freed. These men now think that if we had the power we should require payment from them. Rawuljee has given this witness a situation in the Treasury and made him independent; for which reason he has pointed out those few words, and, as instructed by him, deposed that they appear to have been written by Sundhreejee.

* Moonna Lal, a most reluctant witness. He was one of those who were originally appointed to examine Deewan Umur Chund's papers, and the man into whose hands the note in question first fell, which, on perceiving its character he endeavoured to shuffle into the heap of examined papers.

* It may be observed that oral testimony to the handwriting of Jotha Ram was scarcely required, as many documents undeniably written by him were before the Court, to which were added thirty-two pages, closely filled, of his defence.

including even the smallest notes, — remaining for this purpose until noon of the day. He put us aside, and posting three hundred men to keep watch, saw all the papers put up and sent away. Subsequent to this event, we continued to reside in our house for the space of two months, although under no sort of surveillance: had we entertained any apprehensions respecting the nature of our papers thus seized, is it probable that we should have staid quietly at home, when it was at our option to go where we pleased? we dreaded not the examination of our papers; but had we been aware that there was any objectionable matter in them which might be held to compromise us, could we have been such fools as not to get out of the way before the inspection took place? We were under no kind of restraint, but as the English Government was concerned, we felt assured that justice would be done us; that it would be acknowledged that there were merely such letters as pass in a common correspondence, similar to those containing the reports of towns and villages which have been received in hundreds of places; and that when the papers had been looked at they would be returned. We little expected to have groundless accusations advanced against us and to be that all which has been stated is correct. At this period he (the Rawul) is performing the functions of Minister of the entire Raj, and whatever he says to any one is agreed to immediately; because, no person opposing him could remain in the Country; he would have to embrace banishment and ruin.

Another witness was the son* of Bijay Ram Pandey; now he is an old servant of Rawuljee, and has a shop and dwelling-house at Choumoo.

E-sunda, again is in the Treasury office — and he also has been tutored by Rawuljee.

* All the foregoing individuals have deposed as they were instructed: but do you prove the matter well; if what I have written be as stated, then it will be proved that the same have been set up as represented by me.

We are residing at Agra in the jurisdiction of the British Government, when Mr. Mansel suddenly came to our house, and seizing all the papers in it, conveyed away the whole of them; imprisoned. All the papers had been despatched to Juepoor some fifteen days, when I made a visit to Conolly Sahib, who, to my astonishment, told me to give security for my personal appearance; and, on my asking the meaning of this, he answered, that instructions to that effect had arrived, and I must find bail to the extent of two lakhs. I remonstrated, desiring to know what crime was laid to our charge that bail should be required — the guilty only are struck with fear! but he informed me that if bail were not given I must go into the Fort. During two days we were kept at Mr. Mansel's bungalow, and pressed to find security. I urged, that in case of security being given, if we retreated to a large city like Lucknow, it would be impossible to discover us; the Gentleman replied, give the security and do what you please. Again, I represented that we were free from guilt and had nothing to fear, therefore it was superfluous to make us find bail; and begged that until all doubts were cleared, we might be placed wherever it was deemed proper we should remain; observing, that a person walking peaceably along the road could not be charged with the commission of an offence. More passed on the occasion; but it seemed to me that when the papers had been inspected we should be released, and it never occurred to me that we should be thus persecuted — that justice would be withheld, and we should be cast headlong into the net spread by our enemies.

After my brother Jotha Ram had been put into the Fort of Deosa, five or six men from among the party that accompanied Jutanjee Rajawut

* Who went to Agra to assist in the examination of the papers on the part of the Raj. and Seeta Ram Lala,* who reached Agra two days earlier than the others, sent me word that my brother was imprisoned at Deosa, and Roopja Bundarun was confined in the Fort of Mad-hoorajpoora; and that, in a few days more, my ruin also would be accomplished, if recourse were not had to flight; knowing which, and wishing me well, they sent this warning. I answered, what matters it? I fear nothing. Let the guilty tremble. Justice will be done in the end. Do you intend to urge us to flight in order that you may say, they fled because they are guilty? The Almighty is the friend of truth. Though Jotha Ram may have been confined in the Fort, Justice will be done him in the end, and every thing will be cleared up; for we are all under the authority of the British Government, and there is no Hindoostanee administration intervening, that calumny and false accusations should prevail. We are fearless; the offender only dreads; and the evil-doer must be aware of his guilt. But you, Gentlemen, do not examine into the merits of the case, and settle it in the way I expected. You have fostered an accusation against us respecting a forged note, and we have been labouring under difficulties and distress for fifteen months past. There are many paths in the region of justice; try them all, and decide after mutual deliberation. Falsehood has no great range; but, I know not how it be, that, in this instance, delusion has succeeded in effecting the expansion of a gigantic net; and, as you hesitate to execute justice, there is great cause for apprehension. Though perfectly innocent we are entangled in the mire of calumny, and, to our misfortune, deception has achieved a triumph. The wisdom of the Firangees is celebrated throughout the world; yet, through the force of our evil destiny, our acquittal has not hitherto been proclaimed. You cannot be ignorant of the merits of the case, and I know not what obstacle there can be in the way of a prompt decision.

We are inexperienced as to affairs of the nature of this, and are therefore unequal to cope with fraud and cunning; for he only is capable of rebutting such false accusations who knows how to make them, as you must be well aware. With you therefore does it rest to make such enquiry as shall be adequate to unravel all the difficulties that seem to require elucidation.

You have attached a good deal of importance to those common-place letters; but what do they really contain? The persons from whom they came merely wrote what they heard from others, as the current news of the day. What is there in them to deserve being magnified into matter of serious import?

With respect to the events of the 4th of June, the whole world knows in what way they occurred. Jundhpoor, Oodhpoor, Kota, Boonlee, Kuroulee, Ulwur, Taok, Bhurtpoor, Barkaner, Jesulmer,—all these principalities are well aware of the way in which the outrages were effected; as are also many of the Sirdars of this place. There is no one from whom the matter is concealed, and I believe that you cannot be ignorant of it—do therefore, for the sake of God! bring all to such a conclusion as may afford an example to the world. There has been a vast deal of search and inquiry, and, as you see, the useless investigation is still going on.

* This may allude to insinuations against Rawul Bueere Sal; or to the proposal for a private interview with Lieut.-Col. Speirs and Captain Thoresby.

We made a representation to you which gained no attention; whether you understood and evaded the question purposely, I cannot tell—the fact will be known to Keswur. For a very long period of time have we been in distress and misery; do not therefore at the present day show favor to any one. You, (Lieut.-Col. Speirs) who have come here on this occasion, and Thoresby Sahib, are uninterested and free from bias. The tiger and the goat stand on equal terms before the judgment seat. Under the shadow of the justice of your Government all are happy and contented, and the strong and powerful are unable to prey upon the weak and helpless. Impressed with this belief, I thought that I could pass the time in security where I had sought shelter, and it never entered into my mind that he could set so powerful a snare as to cause me to be seized and brought thence.

We are now rendered miserable in every possible way,—are ignorant of what is going on at our homes, and have had our money stopped. Should there be anything due by us to the Raj, take it we pray you. The way to do justice, when it is known that two parties are at enmity with each other, is, to question neither of them but for the love of God, to judge fairly between them, according to the principles of equity and good conscience. I have understood that the Sahib-log swear solemnly to perform justice when they sit down in judgment. It is optional to commit injustice and incur the guilt of having committed ten millions of murders, or to execute righteous judgment and acquire the merit of having bestowed as many lives. If justice prevail, the renown of you and your Government in the world will be great, and on the other hand an unjust judgment will obtain notoriety in an equal degree. But I verily believe that in making choice of you (Lieut.-Col. Speirs) for the duty of attending this trial, it was intended to select one who was a real friend to justice, and that you will come to an equitable decision. We can do so more than make humble representations, and it rests with you to act upon them. Are you intent upon arriving at a correct conclusion? then prove who wrote the body of the fictitious note upon which are the few forged words that form the subject of dispute. Through adherence to the principles of justice full information on all points may be attained. That they should have been able to attach criminality to us with respect to fictitious paper of this description, affords practical demonstration of great injustice; we pray you therefore to investi-

* This artful plea urged repeatedly by the two brothers appears to have been brought forward with the design of effecting a diversion and withdrawing attention from the authentication in the handwriting of Jocha Ram; but as noticed to them by the Court, the futility of it is obvious. If Jocha Ram attested the document with his own hand, and there is not the slightest ground on which to found a doubt of this fact, it matters not who wrote the body of it—whether Alanjea, Vishnu, Nund Lal, or any one else, was employed on the occasion. It is very probable that the writer may be known to only two or three persons in the world, namely—himself, Jocharam and perhaps Dreyan (Murt Chund). The writing is stiff and unsightly without anything characteristic, by which it could be identified conclusively, if known means of comparison were at hand.

gates thoroughly the nature and course of this oppression which is overwhelming us, innocent as we are. Explore, we beseech you, and leave nothing untouched; for if justice have taken her departure from among you, the darkness of oppression will soon spread throughout the world.

Colonel Alves, Bura Sahib, told me to designate my witnesses; but on what subject do you require the testimony of witnesses? seeing that I am in total ignorance with respect to all that has been going on, as I was at Agra and the disturbance occurred here. Should you desire to have evidence respecting any of the letters, specify the nature of your object clearly, that I may be fully apprised of it. What matter is there in our letters that can be considered at all ambiguous or liable to suspicion? You have in imagination, created a perfect cloud out of common terrestrial smoke; he deceived, we pray you, and execute impartial justice, in the fear of Purneshwar. We have explained every thing to you, and have exclaimed, in the face of hundreds, daily,—do not listen to one side only, hear what we have to say; but we possess not the power to make you hear us against your will. If the charge can be proved upon us, in any degree, act according to your pleasure; but why turn a deaf ear to every thing we advance? Hundreds of people are present at this investigation, and when they go away, they all say, nobody pays attention to anything they urge; how can this be termed justice? Do therefore perform the duties of judges in such way that all may acknowledge the uprightness of your proceedings.

* No. 31 of Agra Papers. Of this note it may be said, that the testimony it affords was not required to prove that only part of what had been designed was effected on the 4th of June, and that the ruin of the Rawul was aimed at.

Respecting the note* that was thrown down at Agra, you have four depositions, and the signatures of two Gentlemen, on the subject of its introduction. Moreover, when I requested Mr. Mansel to call the person who saw the note given outside, he answered me,—"there is nothing at all important in the note—what does it matter? the question is already decided." Now you have revived the subject, although the four depositions are with you, and there can be no need of further inquiry, since you must have comprehended all relating to it already. But consider the matter again; what can be the use of renewing investigation here, on a point that was decided at Agra? The four depositions* that are with this note contain the evidence regarding it, and there is no call for another examination. Jue Kishn Jemadar brought this Note from without, and gave it to Seeta Ram Lal, who handed it to Jutunjee—telling him to have the signature of the Gentleman affixed to it, and then put it into the bag. At the time it was given, I called out that Jue Kishn Jemadar had brought it in and passed it through Seeta Ram Lal to Jutunjee, and begged facts in the whole account he gives of what passed at Agra on the subject of this note; or it must be presumed that there is some truth in his assertion of the whole world having conspired against the family; and Hookum Chund must, also, in some measure, have turned his own back upon himself, by concealing at Agra, that his servant saw this note given to Jue Kishn outside the house; by not, at any time calling for the examination of those men, and in first stating that he objected to the note when it was tendered for attestation, though he afterwards asserts, in his address attached to his preliminary examination, that he challenged the act of throwing it down upon the table.

engaged, was then suspended during four ghutes on account of this note. The Gentleman said to me, — Saugheerjee, what is there in the note? It is without name and signature—there is nothing in it—the note is of no sort of importance—why do you show so much anxiety about it? I answered, — Jue Kishn has gone out twice since the usual search of persons took place, and he brought in this paper. The Gentleman then told me to put upon paper what I wished to say, and he caused the depositions of Jutanjee, Seeta Ram, and Chintoor Bhooj to be recorded; desiring Jue Kishn, likewise, to depose as to the business that took him out of the room. When Mr. Mansel heard of the dispute he came over from the Udalt Court, and joined the party; afterwards, on learning the nature of the altercation, he said, — this person (Mewa Ram), who has been sitting here on my account, a Goonashu of Mani Ram Seth, by caste a Khutree, is a conscientious honest man; and addressing him, he desired him to depose truly, in the fear of God, whether Jue Kishn had gone out, and if Seeta Ram had drunk water at the door-way of the room. This person did as desired,* after which,

* The deposition of this person, Mewa Ram, is directly at variance with the statement of Hookum Chund, in setting forth that the latter made his objection to the note when it had been attested and inspected, and there was doubt expressed regarding its date.

replied, — now, let the subject rest; every thing concerning it is recorded. On that day, also, the papers taken out of the bag that was opened were all of date six and seven years anterior to 1892,—not the smallest note of the latter period was found among them; therefore, as the bag was fastened up when first placed upon the table, how is it possible that this note could have been the Gentleman not to sign it; but as I was speaking the note was signed. Upon this I remonstrated, asking the Gentleman whence this note without signature could have come, seeing that he had not passed any papers unsigned; and, observing that it was extraordinary they should know why later it ought to be put up, without having read its contents, declared that he saw a spurious note, and endeavored to see what this was. He was then told that the note was of no more consequence than a piece of waste paper, to which I replied, — on, Seeta Ram, took it from Jue Kishn and gave it to Jutanjee, therefore there must be something of importance in it; and turning to Mr. Conolly, I asked him to show it to me. He said, why don't you give it to Saugheerjee to read! Let him have it that he may see what it contains. At last, when this order had been repeated several times, they gave me the note, and I pronounced it to be a document introduced fraudulently among the other papers. The business in which we were engaged, was then suspended during four ghutes on account of this note. The Gentleman said to me, — Saugheerjee, what is there in the note? It is without name and signature—there is nothing in it—the note is of no sort of importance—why do you show so much anxiety about it? I answered, — Jue Kishn has gone out twice since the usual search of persons took place, and he brought in this paper. The Gentleman then told me to put upon paper what I wished to say, and he caused the depositions of Jutanjee, Seeta Ram, and Chintoor Bhooj to be recorded; desiring Jue Kishn, likewise, to depose as to the business that took him out of the room. This person did as desired,* after which, both Gentlemen affixed their signatures to the several depositions—four in number, and told me that the matter was brought to a conclusion, to the effect that the four depositions would be attached to the note, and the point might be considered as one settled. I observed that great force had been shown, and that if such an affair had occurred before any other person, he would have sent the offenders to Jail. The Gentleman of Jutanjee, Seeta Ram, Jemular, to be searched, and the Mookhtar of Mr. Man-el, Khuleefa Danod, was the person who searched them. After this no one was to go out, and none of them ever broke through this rule: first on the day that the affair in question took place, several of my servants* who were sitting outside saw Jue Kishn take this note from a man attached to Seeta Ramjee. Again, when I asked Sahibs Mansel and Conolly why they preserved the note, they answered, that there was nothing in it; every thing regarding it was settled, and they would attest the four depositions as evidence on the subject; therefore, I need not render myself uneasy about it, but that they had not the opinion to put it aside. The whole would go to the Bura Sahib, who could be at no loss to understand the matter; therefore, there was no occasion for entertaining any apprehension touching the note; and that if I had not exhibited so much anxiety concerning it, they should have deemed it of no importance whatever I answered, — you* may think it an unimportant paper, but those who threw it in will certainly make a great deal of it; to which they said, — it is not really of any value, but it must go with the other papers, so think no more about it. At the same time they desired that no one would leave the room again.

* Though there is no good ground for doubting the authenticity of the note in question, yet neither that nor any other single document could be fairly considered as conclusive in itself, against Hookum Chund and Jotha Ram or either of them.

We were perfectly ignorant of the affair in question, and were living careless and confident in our innocence. But the Sahib-log will assuredly distinguish the generous milk of truth from the aqueous fluid of falsehood. — such a case as this we have never known before; for, from beginning to end, the scheme by which we have been ensnared is upheld entirely with the aid of falsehood and forgery, and you are unable to reach its true soundings. If you do not listen to the one side as well as the other it will be impossible to come to a just decision. You are acquainted with the Bengalees, and know that they are full of fraud and cunning, but in the fabrication of this complex net of deception they have been beaten hollow. It must be well known to you that every arrangement has been made on one side, and that there is no one to speak in our favor. Courts of justice, in imitation of the attributes of Purneshur, should act conscientiously and favor no party—deeming both sides on an equality. But this whole assembly as you see, is composed of his adherents, and those in his favor. We were residing afar off at that period, to which circumstance you attend not when it is urged by us. The Bura Sahib (Lt.-Col. Speirs) who is now present, has not been here long enough to be thoroughly acquainted with the real state of matters, but you (Capt. Thoresby) being fully apprised of every thing, from having during many months seen and taken part in all that has been going on, are specially bound to see that done which shall be consonant with justice, and by which you may acquire a great and good name. The highest confidence is reposed in you, because it is believed that you will not act unjustly; as yet, however, our evil destiny has prevailed, and you have made no progress in the adjustment of this question. Justice is even balanced there. All that was written is with you and you can refer to the documents. During the examination of the papers at Agra, it was usual to cause the persons of Jutanjee, Seeta Ram, Chintoor Bhooj and Jue Kishn on their arrival in the morning, and the Mookhtar of Mr. Man-el, Khuleefa Danod, was the person who searched them. After this no one was to go out, and none of them ever broke through this rule: first on the day that the affair in question took place, several of my servants* who were sitting outside saw Jue Kishn take this note from a man attached to Seeta Ramjee. Again, when I asked Sahibs Mansel and Conolly why they preserved the note, they answered, that there was nothing in it; every thing regarding it was settled, and they would attest the four depositions as evidence on the subject; therefore, I need not render myself uneasy about it, but that they had not the opinion to put it aside. The whole would go to the Bura Sahib, who could be at no loss to understand the matter; therefore, there was no occasion for entertaining any apprehension touching the note; and that if I had not exhibited so much anxiety concerning it, they should have deemed it of no importance whatever I answered, — you* may think it an unimportant paper, but those who threw it in will certainly make a great deal of it; to which they said, — it is not really of any value, but it must go with the other papers, so think no more about it. At the same time they desired that no one would leave the room again.

—resembling, in this respect the two ears of a Tazee horse. Reflect that, in this assembly there is not an individual to speak in our favor; we have only the Bura Sahib, present, and you; and whatever you may do will obtain sanction. We make our representations, according to the best of our abilities, to you, for to whom else should we address them? but we are unable from anxiety of mind to collect our faculties, inconsequence of our imprisonment, though we trust and hope that you will do us justice. There is enmity between the Minister and us; nevertheless, in a question of justice you can make no distinction on any score. Consider well that all will speak in his behalf, and that you should act on our account. But what necessity can there be for our saying any thing, as you know all? The decision rests entirely with your views and feelings.

If you really wish to investigate the matter before you then attend to our words, that the full blaze of light may be apparent to you. Up to this point I know not if you heed what is said by us; yet if you will give ear to our clear and simple explanations in the same manner that you hear what he says, the thing will become evident to you. Should it be fact that there is no point on which you are not already informed, then indeed we speak in vain! Still we omit not to mention what ought to be revealed, lest you hereafter ask—how and when such and such explanations were offered by us. The matter now rests entirely with you, and in no way concerns us. You cannot but understand, therefore, if you prefer to disregard our suggestions, at all events do us justice: as we are enthralled without being in fault, act so that our release may be effected. You are looking for the lost camel in a waterpot, when the animal should be sought for in a very different place.

With reference to the four letters, (the four Agra letters ascribed to Gyan Chund), I have to remark that they were united, that you separated them—singling out one from the rest: all four are of the same day, and they were put up together. There are five letters in the same handwriting; examine them—Gyan Chund is not connected with them. During the period I resided at Agra, no letter from Gyanjee ever came that I am aware of, and if, to suit your purpose, you choose to ascribe those to him, you know best.

* Papers in the hand-writing of Gyan Chund were found in the bag of documents belonging to the father, Deewan Umur Chund, and were shown in Court with other specimens, of his chirography. There must be multitudes of papers in his handwriting, with which you can compare them. How is it possible that Gyan Chund could have written to Mangeea certain inappropriate passage contained in the fifth letter, (No. 9. of Deosa papers—see the explanation annexed to that letter) which is in the same handwriting? All however may be ascertained by strict investigation. Moreover these four letters were written two months after the events of the 4th June, as you may gather from various sources. When the said four letters arrived I was very ill, I did not read them through, and never wrote a word in answer, seeing that their contents were altogether false and unworthy of notice, as you may determine if you will make inquiry. But in place of making adequate searching investigation, you rest upon groundless accusations; whereas in the high offices you hold, it is incumbent upon you that you exert yourselves to clear up every thing. We are altogether ignorant of all concerning these letters; but you can ask Mangeea from whom they came to me, who wrote them; indeed he has told you all about them. They concern not us in the least, and you are requested to make all possible inquiry regarding them.

There is a passage in one of the letters (No. 17—this letter is dated the 17th May 1835) concerning the embankment of a stream, the meaning of which has been asked—he (the writer Mangeea heard that Rawuljee, having determined on damming some stream, had caused the propitious hour for commencing work to be fixed, and sent the Battalion Beldars to accomplish what was in view, and he wrote to that effect. Conolly Sahib at Agra put this question to me, and then answered that the writer had forwarded to Agra City rumours which had been written to him from Juepoor. Examine the passage again; there is nothing more meant than appears upon the face of it; and is it not fearful to think that plain obvious sentences, can be misinterpreted and deemed sinister!

In another letter (No. 39—this letter also is dated 17th May 1835) is written, that the Brahmuns say the 8th month is propitious; in this month, therefore, all be accomplished. The following is the interpretation of this passage:—all the people of Hindoostan consult Brahmuns respecting the peculiar influence of days and months, and these make answer that certain days and months are favorable or otherwise: they also say to those who question them, give alms or perform devotions; and tell them, that the next month will be lucky—that all will be accomplished, and the person will obtain a situation or service to suit him.

NOTE.—Then, what situation, what service would have suited Jotha Ram? or was Mangeea looking out for a better place than that of confidential Secretary in the family of the Sunghees?

In this manner they give various answers to those by whom they are consulted, adapted to their own views and interests. All are aware of this custom and all practice it: there is nothing hidden or secret in it that such allusions should excite speculation; and it is a fearful thing that so much importance should be attached to letters containing such matters as that they should be considered worthy of serious inquiry.

* NOTE.—The question is not why did you petition the British Government yourselves? but that there have been papers found tending to show that you have addressed to Government documents full of misrepresentations and calumnies in the names of others: can you and will you offer any explanations as to this matter?

We petitioned his Lordship. Now, you say that the petitions have not been heard, and have neither reached the Sulur nor his Lordship. How can we help it if they have not? We have no person there to aid our cause:

* The prisoners have not been told this, and nothing is known concerning their petitions.

This is gross perversion of facts.

In the course of the sixty years of my life! and yet we were living under British protection. Still if you will hear both sides with impartiality all will be well with us. Do you strike and forbid the utterance of complaints? We are helpless; and have only Purneesur and you to profect us. You permit not our situation to become known to his Lordship, and you listen not to us yourselves: all our servants are in confinement, and those who are about us cannot go abroad to see any one: no tidings can be conveyed to our families respecting our well or ill being, whether we are dead or living. What enormous crime have we committed that all this should be? At whose door do you wish to lay the misdeeds of others? Purneshur has raised you to offices of trust and power, in order that you should dispense justice impartially. To defraud no man of his right, and to do justice to all indiscriminately; these are two cardinal virtues; and we are but calling over and over again for justice—strict, and impartial. Should we name witnesses to any point they would be seized and confined; what disinterested persons, then, would subject themselves to treatment worse than death by giving testimony in our favor? It is thus entirely at your option to do us justice, or the reverse.

In the course of petitioning his Lordship, sundry details of transactions were given, of which a great deal has been made. There is really nothing in this—nothing whatever, which can be fairly magnified into importance, or considered to induce imputation of any sort. We are in your power and you can dispose of us, as you please; but doubtless you will act according to the dictates of justice, and we represent to you all that occurs to us, for we are in great trouble.

At the time that I and my brother waited upon the Bura Sahib at Jueppoor, he said to us,—Sungheerjee do you go to Agia, and Jotha Ram will remain fifteen days at Deosa before going further, as there are inquiries to make of him. He also said,—you must abstain from writing, and whatever necessities you may require take with you, leaving the rest of your property here. I will have it all forwarded hereafter: take as much cash as will suffice for current expenses. We replied, that we would act in all things as desired. The same night a Moonshee of the Bura Sahib came to us and told us to write a list of articles we intended to take away.

Note.—The two brothers were requested to take with them what was requisite for their convenience and comfort, and to deposit the rest of their property in the Pursuram Mundur, situate between Jueppoor and Amber, where they were residing, putting it all under lock-and-key, and seal, but this injunction was disregarded, and the cart upon which was gold to the value of 1,75,000 Rupees was sent clandestinely into the City where it was seized. The Ushrufees, amounting to about 8,000 Mohurs, were brought back by the men under whose charge they had been dispatched, by the brothers, to Muthura, upon camels; because, they said they did not know how the property was to be disposed of at Muthura. In the reply given to Hookam Chund on the

Upon which we put down twenty thousand rupees, ten for Jotha Ram and ten for me. After the list had been prepared by the Moonshee, it seemed to us that we could not take away more things than had been entered, without incurring censure for practising deception; wherefore, we caused a cart, laden with Ushrufees and uncoined gold, to be kept here, intending to make the Bura Sahib acquainted with the circumstance. Subsequently, a serious tumult was occasioned by Nagus, Sipahs and others, and in the midst of this disturbance we told the cart-driver, who was standing near us, to remain behind—that notice would be given. When we were gone, the driver, alarmed at the disturbance, went to his own house, and the cart thus left was taken to Rawuljee. The ushrufees also which came from Muthura should be forthcoming. I wrote through Major Godby a letter, detailing how this property had been quitted in conformity with instructions we had received, when we might have brought it away easily enough, had we been so inclined; and avowing that we were subject of all this property, he was told that, with reference to the way in which it had been seized, it could not be given up to anyone without full inquiry.

dees belonging to us are in existence; but we are told that the Bankers are required to return the amount of the latter, and that the Soodi 21 of Srawun has been agreed to by both parties as the day of settlement. Let this negotiation be stopped, and take payment only of sums that may be proved to be due by us to the Raj. Why should he (the Rawul) possess himself of our property* in this irregular way?—So long as the Bura Sahib refused concurrence he (the Rawul) said nothing, but now I hear that the acquiescence of the Bura Sahib has been obtained: this, however, I doubt, as I do not think he would give his sanction to the measure, after having written in the manner stated; beside telling us here that all our property would be preserved, and we might be easy on that score—a Chuprasee should remain in charge. Oblige us by sending him (the Rawul) explicit instructions that he is not to require the Bankers to refund the cash paid for these hoondees (about eight lakhs.) Moreover, the property in gold and the hoondees are in your trust, for we left the whole behind by your orders and should you recall your word in this instance, how can it be expected that the confidence of any one should be obtained hereafter. Take all this into consideration, therefore, and direct him not to ask payment of the Bankers.

You are our patron and master, and under the shadow of your desire, we are ready to go elsewhere at your bidding.† Our evil destiny has brought us into our present misfortunes; but you have it in your power to assist us, and all we have to say must be addressed to you. That which has been said or promised by you is not set at naught, as is well known; send him word, therefore, that he is not to take our rupees, and direct the Surrafs not to give the money without your authority; and, in this matter, oblige us by informing us of your intentions. We are much distressed from the want of cash for daily expenditure. You have done and will do all for us! If you inquire you will find that, at a former period when he was sent to his home, the whole of his property was forwarded to Samod.

When they say that a note was found in the house of a Meenee, the truth is, that they forged the document, and now declare that the few words written above are in the hand of Jotha Ram. If this be doubted, let them show in whose handwriting is the remainder of the note. Observe their audacity!—the utmost precaution was used on the part of the British Government, so that a letter could not reach him without permission. A Dufadar and two Sipahs remained near at hand, day and night, and outside was a Chuprasee always in attendance, besides which there were on all sides Sentries of Rawuljee and the look out kept by the British Sirkar, with the watch of a general nature, in which hundreds were engaged; yet, notwithstanding all that, they have got up an accusation of this nature! Remark the great daring of those who could, under such circumstances, manufacture and cast such a net! But you have taken the depositions of all those who were on duty, and remained present, by day and night, and are aware that a Risala and a Company were at all times at Deosa,—that the greatest possible precautions were adopted with respect to reading and writing, and that Thakoer Chand Singh arranged for preserving a strict look out on all sides. Consider well all these points. The British Government is just and will do justice; and you, who are appointed to investigate in accordance with justice, will clear up and decide every thing satisfactorily.

You, Sir, (Lieut. Col. Speirs) will have been selected for this duty, and sent here on account of the ability and intelligence, and skill in the decision of judicial matters, for which you are known: do justice, therefore, we pray you, in such a way that the whole world may acknowledge that you have been strictly just. We can do no more than supplicate, with you does it rest to act; he generous, therefore, in the performance of your duty. Besides you there is no one to whom we can appeal: you are wise and intelligent, and we are defenceless and without a protector.

How often shall I pray of you, Gentlemen, that you will decide and act according to the essence of justice. You are every thing to us; we have made and are now making our representations to you in various forms—praying you to bring to issue and elucidate every thing, for we are involved in great difficulties and troubles. To the members of the Court may it be said, that it is fitting what they say should be spoken with due deference to the principles of true and substantial justice: but this matter rests with them.

N. B. Most of the notes appended to the foregoing address have been added by the reporter of the trial, who begs to tender his best thanks to the Gentlemen at Juepoor for the ready assistance afforded to him in the accomplishment of his object, which could not have been executed satisfactorily had he not been permitted to inspect and transcribe numerous documents connected with this and other trials. The temporary impression which his own mind received from the bold assertions, extensive misrepresentations and subtlety which this address displays, induced him to think that annotations on some passages of it might be useful. The correctness of the data on which these are founded may be depended upon, whatever be the value of the notes themselves.

The address of Jotha Ram was a long, prosy, tautological and saporiferous production, barren of point and propriety. Judging from the conduct of the prisoners during the trial, and the character of these compositions, Hookum Chund is much the most talented man of the two brothers.

Hookum Chund and Jotha Ram commenced their loose attacks upon the character and independence of the Court before which they were arraigned, very early in the trial, and continued them at intervals to the last; but at no time was there a calm reasonable remonstrance or protest made by either of them, relative to the competence of the tribunal, or any one of its members, to judge their case fairly and impartially, upon its real merits; much less were any tangible or substantial grounds offered by them, in proof of their reiterated assertions that it could not be expected they should have a fair trial. The tone of their remarks, with the language conveying them and the demeanour of the two prisoners, were often uselessly indecorous and offensive, as if the object aimed at were merely to annoy and irritate, without the slightest reference to fitness or propriety; but this apparent recklessness may be referred to a predetermination so to deport themselves as to produce the impression that their present arraignment need not be viewed as a final measure, which is to decide with respect to their guilt or innocence, an inference which the whole course of their conduct throughout the trial, including the style of their written addresses, serves abundantly to confirm.

In the face of all the evidence of their guilt, which has come to light, none of the principal conspirators in the plot that was developed on the 4th of June 1835, appear to have hoped for the possible contingency of an acquittal on grounds of equity, if tried, near the scene of the perpetration of their designs, by intelligent and efficient judges: hence they would seem to have adopted openly the plan of setting their own Government at defiance; of putting forth the most atrocious calumnies, unsupported by every thing but bare assertion; defaming or casting insinuations upon the character, conduct or motives of all those connected in any way with the proceedings instituted against them; and averring the impossibility of their meeting with justice here, because he (the Rawul) is their bitter enemy, and all persons are either in his favor or else fear him: to which is frequently added, or insinuated in language not to be misunderstood, that he himself was the real author of the crimes of which they are accused through his machinations and at his instigation.

Thus the course that was originally designed to further the objects of the conspiracy, and was at first conducted furtively, has been followed up and extended to suited the altered circumstances of the conspirators' situations, so that it may be rendered available to the only mode of defence, of which it would appear they deem their cause susceptible; and it is sufficiently obvious that the actuating motive now, is that of embarrassing, and if practicable misleading by their various misrepresentations, other authorities than those with whom they can come in contract at this place.

It is scarcely necessary to advert here to the constitution of the Court appointed for the trial of the Juepoor prisoners, composed of Members selected carefully, with the sole view of securing to those who should be brought before it an impartial investigation; but, with reference to the remarks of Hookum Chund concerning the communication made to him by Lieutenant Colonel Alves and Captain Thoresby it may be as well to mention that, at the visit to which he alludes, Hookum Chund was told that he and Futh Lal would be tried by a Panchaet on the charges of which a copy had been furnished to them that he could have no voice in the appointment of the Members of the Court, but that the utmost care would be taken to select persons free from bias for the duty; and that such precautions would be observed as might render him and others assured of having a full hearing.

Of the success attending the case bestowed on the formation of the Court, some notion may be formed from the circumstance that Hookum Chund and Jotha Ram have not advanced a single weighty objection against any one of the Members of it; which, it is legitimate to infer from the general tone of their defence, they would not have failed doing had they possessed the means.

These two prisoners have had the fullest possible hearing, although it may have suited their view to make allegations to the contrary: every thing they said was at least received with outward attention; and explanations on various points, instead of being rejected, were sought for from them. If but little of what fell from them created any impression in their favor, it was because it was out of the nature of things that it should have been otherwise. Their attempts to impose upon and delude, to bluster and intimidate, did certainly fail of effect; but they could hardly have expected to succeed with the Court by assuming such a line of defence, and must have had some ulterior object in view from the first.

In order to make the Juepoor public fully acquainted with the objects contemplated in the formation of the Court sitting here, and for the purpose of procuring such information respecting matters connected with these trials, as these who had it in their power might be disposed to give; soon after the commencement of proceedings in the trial of Deewan Umur Chund and others, a proclamation was issued, through the Raj, inviting all those who could communicate any thing bearing upon the perpetration of the outrages of the 4th June, to come forward fearlessly, and tell all they knew, either to the Raj authorities, before the Court that had been convened, or at the British Residency, and promising, that individuals who could and would give information should be exposed to as little inconvenience as practicable, and that those who made known any points of importance, which could be substantiated, should be handsomely rewarded. This general notification has not as yet been productive of any results of consequence, but the failure cannot be attributed to the influence of counteractive measures on the part of the ruling power, as admitting the existence of such disposition, it could not possibly be acted upon secretly; the means used would gain publicity and be bruited forth in all manner of forms, and in all directions, very speedily, so as to leave no one here, however indifferent to passing occurrences he might be ignorant of them. If therefore the Sunghees have produced no efficient evidence on their trial, it has been because the course they judged it expedient to hold, admitted not of the production of testimony, but rendered it expedient to keep out of the way, or to prevent from making disclosures, all those who were informed as to the true nature of the correspondence detected, and the circumstances under which it was carried on. Accordingly, Bhruthee Chund, son of Hookum Chund; Ubbue Chund, who was the confidential Goomasthu of the latter; Gyan Chund, son of Dewan Umur Chund, and son-in-law of Hookum Chund; Goomanu Kotharo, Goomasthu of Deewan Umur Chund, and many others have absconded, and are not to be found; and from the few among the menial servants of the Sunghees who were taken up and secured from flight by being placed in confinement, scarcely any information can be obtained. Vishnu, the associate of Mangeea Poorohit, in his secretarial occupations at Deosa, still refuses to make any disclosures, wherefore he was not produced on the part of the prosecution; and as the prisoners did not choose to call for him on the defence perhaps, because they had not found means of communicating with, and preparing him for examination on their side—he was not summoned before the Court at all. Mangeea, the chief agent at Deosa in the active correspondence carried on with Juepoor and Agra, though in a dying state when the trial was pending, held back from saying anything to compromise his former patrons, beyond that which common sense dictated to him to be undeniable, since it was self-evident, namely, that he was merely the channel of the communications which took place between his master and others, whose names he would not mention; and he would appear to have entered readily and earnestly into the attempt, to put off the authorship of the letters ascribable on sure grounds to Gyan Chund, upon the daughter of Duya Ram Bhrtacharj, whose name even he did not know.

On the first day of Magnera's appearance in Court, when he was examined upon one of Gyan Chund's letters, and was checked by Hookum Chund and Jotha Ram for having so far forgotten himself as to give two direct answers to questions proposed to him, he seems to have had no notion that the daughter of Duya Ram Bhrtacharj was elected to be the author of some of the letters written at Juepoor; and the belief that information on this point was conveyed to him from the Court, or perhaps from Hookum Chund through one of his servants, is irresistible. In consequence of the precarious state of his health, Magnera had been sojourning for about two months previous to the trial of Hookum Chund and Jotha Ram, without the City, in an out-house close to the Residency garden; where he had the benefit of breathing a purer atmosphere, and being prescribed for by the Surgeon who performs the medical duties of the Agency. His person was free; he had his own attendants and friends about him, and was merely under common surveillance. From the foregoing explanation of his exact situation, it may be judged that there would be little difficulty in making a communication to him. This unfortunate man breathed his last on the day of the termination of proceedings relative to his former patrons.

The testimony of the witnesses who have been at Deosa, serve to establish the facts that Jotha Ram was looked after at that place while residing in tents; that the use of writing materials was prohibited to him, and that letters were not taken to him direct for perusal; but, situated as he is represented to have been, with all the facilities requisite for carrying on a clandestine correspondence through his confidential servants; even on the supposition that all those who were on duty at his tent, always adhered closely to the instructions given, the plea that he was entirely ignorant of the active communication carried on upon his account, set up by him and his brother; and persevered in, despite the evidence to the contrary of that unwilling witness Mangeea, is futile in the extreme, when considered with reference to the nature of the correspondence that was in progress, and the manifest proofs most of the letters afford, that, on all points of the least importance, Jotha Ram was, virtually, either the person addressed at Deosa or the source of the communication made thence.

With respect to his having never written with his own hand, it is clear from various passages in the Deosa and Agra letters, which can hardly be false witnesses, that Jotha Ram did occasionally pen a line or two; and from a remark made by Mangeea in letter No 33, (dated 2d July 1835,) it may be inferred, that he was prevented from more frequently putting pen to paper, by the apprehension, that—"the existence of his Honor's handwriting upon documents of a political and criminal tendency should have been added might induce danger." It is therefore unnecessary to speculate upon the opportunities which were sought for the performance, in private, of a work of a few moments duration only,—whether circumstances occasionally permitted the accomplishment of it in the large sitting tent; or if the place appropriated to meals, which was fenced in by cloth walls: or the otherspot, also surrounded by walls, in the opening of which a purdu or sheet was suspended when Jotha Ram went there, offered greater facilities for the purpose. The fact of documents having been verified, once or oftener, by the exhibition of the well known identical handwriting rests on evidence, that under the circumstances of the case, cannot admit of civil, though it might have been met fairly by the brothers, had they judged it expedient to enter, bona fide into explanations concerning the correspondence which was adduced in proof of their guilt. There is indeed nothing substantial advanced in support of Jotha Ram's denial of the authenticity of the note discovered among the papers of Deewan Umur Chund, whilst the corroborative evidence to the handwriting of the superscribed lines, furnished by the style and contents of the document; the circumstances under which it was brought to light; the allusion to a note of the nature of this received from his Honor by Dadajee (father), in letter of Gyan Chund No. 4, of Agra papers, (which passed through Deosa, as has been acknowledged, directly, both by Hookum Chund and Mangeea); and the general tone and tenor of many of the letters laid before the Court,—affords strong and convincing arguments for the correctness of its ascription to the individual whose peculiar handwriting it bears. It may be said to be impossible to disbelieve or doubt that Jotha Ram is the author of the paper in question without an exertion of credulity in favor of his natural denial of all knowledge of it, which would greatly violate common sense and reason.

Of the Agra papers, Nos. 27 and 31 it may be remarked respecting the former, that the internal evidence to be found in its contents; the circumstance of its having remained with Hookum Chund the writer, and having been subsequently brought forward by him in vindication of the innocence of himself and his brother; the affirmation of Mangeea that no letter was forwarded to Agra after the 4th of June, previously to No. 19, in which a reason for not having written before is given; all serve to show clearly that this was originally a false letter, composed for purposes of deception, and that the pretended quotation in the first part of it is a counterfeit without a prototype. The validity of note, No. 31, as a paper in the possession of Hookum Chund, does not appear to be essentially disturbed by his headlong assertions regarding it, though it is unfortunate that the accidental omission to stamp it with initials at the moment it was extracted from the bag with other papers, offered the semblance of an opening to call in question its real character and tendency.

Scarcely the shadow of a doubt can exist with respect to Gyan Chund being the author of the five letters ascribed to him in these proceedings: the very passages in the letter that remained at Deosa and was found there referred to by Hookum Chund in his defence as in appropriate for Gyan Chund to write to Mungea, tend strongly to show that the former was the writer of this letter; for the wife of Gyan Chund is a daughter of Hookum Chund, and in consequence, sentiments and observations were inserted on her account; that is, the letter was written for both son-in-law and daughter, agreeably to a style and mode of communication by no means infrequent. The most remarkable passage referrible to the lady is the following: "You have written regarding Pooskurjee (a place of pilgrimage near Ajmere); now, trusting in you, I remain here, otherwise I should deprecate a further residence at this place, for I cannot bear to hear from every one upbraiding and reproachful words." The above was written many weeks after Deewan Umur Chund and others had been confined, and it is more than singular to find the only member of the Sunghees family then at Juepoor, complaining that she is reproached and upbraided in the house of the Deewan and his son.

The proposition of Hookum Chund and Jotha Ram that they should have a private conference with the two political officers who attend the Court, was rather an extraordinary one; but it is probable that this proposal should be referred to the obvious design of the two brothers to create impressions out of Court: at least, no motive partaking less of criminality can well be assigned to the proceeding.

The written addresses of Hookum Chund and Jotha Ram bear evident marks of having been composed for effect elsewhere than at Juepoor. Both abound in misrepresentations, some of which are entirely groundless and others consist of distorted facts; and in both are seen similar efforts to attribute their situation as prisoners, accused of high crimes, solely to the enmity of their so designated implacable foe, Rawul Buerree Sal, whose part in their accusation has been in reality, of a very unsubstantial nature indeed. Jotha Ram charges the Rawul, directly, with being the author of the crime committed on the 4th of June 1835, but the other, somewhat more warily, confines himself in general to insinuations or broader insinuations: both however aim at the same point—that of obtaining their own acquittal; eventually, by creating doubts respecting the honor and good faith of the Rawul. Of Hookum Chund's paper it may be said that it is somewhat more relevant as a defence than the other; but it has identified the defendant's case so completely with that of his brother, as to make it clear that he considered his own conviction to depend in all points upon the same proofs.

Futuh Lal spoke but few words during the whole course of the trial, and comported himself with the utmost decorum throughout. Considering how he was situated, and with reference to his youth, (he may be 18 or 19 years old) the penalty awarded to him may be deemed adequate to his offences; since there are no satisfactory data from which a conclusive judgment can be formed that he was ever fully cognizant of the real character of the events at Juepoor of the 4th June; or that he did not gain information on that head, after the plot had been put in execution. And with respect to Hookum Chund and Jotha Ram, the evidence appears to be irrefragably strong, so indubitably convincing in a far superior degree to any which could possibly have been adduced in the case, dependent upon oral testimony alone, that with reference to the true ends of justice it would be difficult to call in question the propriety of the decision of the Court. The contents of letters 17 and 39 of Agra papers, both dated the 17th May 1835, and No. 4 of the same series, tend so strongly to establish their guilt that, had no other letters been found at Agra, and none at Deosa, these might have been deemed sufficient to produce conviction: and it appears to be an obvious inference, to refer Hookum Chund's unnecessary explanation, of the current meaning of two passages in Nos. 17 and 39, to his consciousness of their criminal nature when correctly interpreted.

The singular and revolting feature in the late conspiracy at Juepoor, is, that the scheme was planned to engage the co-operation of the British power on the side of the conspirators, and that matters were specially conducted with a view to the attainment of that object; including even an attack upon the political officers and subjects of that Government who were at Juepoor, an occurrence which was intended to excite indignation and exasperation against the Minister. Happily for the ends of justice and the discouragement of similar atrocious attempts at deception, so much light has been shed upon the plans and motives of the criminals, by a course of patient investigation, that subsequently to their first temporary and imperfect, though melancholy success, they have been baffled in all their effort, and their designs have been completely exposed.

SUMMARY OF TRIAL OF GOPAL SINGH SIPAHEE.

Natanecha Bagh—Juepoor, Thursday, 1st September 1836.

Gopal Singh Sipahie is charged with having been aiding and accessory to the assault with a sword made by Futuh Singh, at the instigation of the Deewan Umur Chund and others, upon the person of Major Alves, Agent to the Governor General of India, in front of the Sardkee Deorthee, Juepoor, on the morning of the 4th June 1835, Jeth Soodi, 8th Shumbat 1892.

The former depositions of Gopal Singh, and those of Jue Chund, Bejaboorjee Bhoosa, numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and Cheetur Mul Brahmun are read out.

Witness—Juechund Bejaboorjee is summoned before the Court, and deposes in substance as follows:

On the day that the disturbance in the city of Juepoor took place, I had gone to worship at the Temple of Chundiu-Majee, when I saw that there was a crowd collected near the Tripoleea. I proceeded as far as the Hu-ee Thoon e (about 150 paces from the Tripoleea), and thence went to the house Deewan Umur Chund. At the door of his house I met the Deewanjee, who asked me if I had seen Gopal Singh. I replied, Muharaj, I have seen nothing of him; upon which he desired me to go and look for him, I did so, and going first to the Tripoleea, in front of which there was a large assemblage of people searched for Gopal there; but not finding him I determined on going home to take my meal, and was walking with that intention when I saw Gopal coming towards me, near the Kupor-Kot, I accosted him and asked whence he came, to which he answered - from the precincts of the Palace.

I questioned him as to the cause of the disturbance that had occurred, and he told me that as word had been used. I asked him the meaning of this, when he replied, that Futuh Singh's name was taken. I then said to him—come with me to the Deewan; he has sent me to bring you, and turning back I proceeded with him. We found the Deewan standing outside his house near the door, where he was paying to several of his attendants— "What! hasn't Gopal returned? Isn't Gopal come back? I went up to him and said, Gopal is here. He immediately took hold of the hand of Gopal, and led him by the back street of the bracelet manufacturers into the Dhurm Sala of the Mundur; and then took him to one side of the chamber that is situated above the gateway. Afterwards, he asked me if I had dined, and when I told him that I had not, he desired a Buneea to bring about a seer of luddoo and sevu. I remained a few paces distant from the Deewan and Gopal Singh while they conversed together. When the Buneea brought the articles ordered, they were given to me. Gopal Singh said he was thirsty, and would go to the well to drink, and to bring water thence. He went away for that purpose and I took the sweetmeats into a thatched room, which was close to the place before mentioned, and sat down: Gopal Singh brought water, and I then gave part of the sweetmeats to the Sipahs (Gopal Singh, Ram Singh and Rutun Singh,) and ate the remainder myself. Afterwards, the Deewan desired us to accompany him, and we did so, descending to the Dhurm Sala, and thence going into the Chuok in front of the Deewan's dwelling house—the Deewan and Gopal Singh, engaged in conversation, preceeding me. The house is on the right and side as we entered the Chuok, and in front is a Tibaru where a ground remains. When the Deewan and Gopal Singh separated in the Chuok to go into the house and to the Tibaru, the former said—"the work is done, but is your companion staunch." I repeat what I heard with my own ears, Gopal answered,—"he will not flinch." The Deewan then entered the house, and Gopal Singh went into the Tibaru; but as the Deewan was going inside, he called out to the men who were at the Tibaru,—"look after Gopal Singh." I have told what passed before me.

Q.—Your first dispositions differ much from those you have since given: why did not you state all you knew at first?

A.—I was a good deal alarmed when first questioned, and concealed some thing on that account.

Witness is cross-questioned by the Court upon his evidence, but nothing further is elicited. Gopal Singh states that what passed between him and Deewan Umur Chund has been misrepresented by witness, and declares that he did not here the Deewan ask the question deposed to concerning the staunchness or fidelity of his companions.

2nd Witness.—Futih Singh is called in and questioned as to the conversation that occurred between him and Gopal Singh, when the latter visited him in the place of his confinement; and Gopal's account of it as given in his deposition, No. 2 of Appendix, is read to him. He avers that the statement of his having said that he could not well swerve from the story he had told the Sahib-log, with the subsequent acknowledgment that he had acted from the impulse of his own mind in making use of his sword at the Deorhee is entirely false; he has never told two stories, or falsified the truth, since the affair took place; and has never ceased to regret that he should have been induced to act as he did. Respecting the heated balls, Gopal did ask him what would be the consequence if they were resorted to, and he answered, that in the event of their being placed upon his hands he should of course be burned by them. Witness cannot tell what knowledge Gopal Singh had of the part he was to act at the Deorhee, or would not conceal information on that point. Futih Singh retires and the prosecution closes.

The Prisoner says he has no witness to call in his defence, but declared that he is an innocent man.

The Court deliberated as heretofore with closed doors, and then gave the following verdict:

There is no direct evidence before the Court relative to the extent of the prisoner's knowledge of the plot that was in agitation prior to the 4th of June 1835, or respecting the aid afforded by him, secretly, in the accomplishment of any part of it; but from the several inconsistent and contradictory statements made by Gopal Singh himself, and from the testimony of Joe Chund Beejaburjee, including the examination he has been this day subjected to, it is clearly proved to the satisfaction of the Court, that the prisoner, Gopal Singh, must have been privy to the intention that Futih Singh should commit some rash act of violence at the Deorhee, when the British officers quitted the place on the morning of the 4th of June, and was on the watch to mark the result; and the Court pronounce him guilty accordingly, and sentence him to undergo imprisonment, in irons and with hard labor, during the space of twelve years.

No. 1—Examinations selected from those used in the trial of Gopal Singh.—Examination of Gopal Singh at the Residency, 18th August 1835.

Q.—What was your watch the night before the affair at the Palace?

A.—Futih Singh's was the first watch until mid-night. My watch was after his.

Q.—In your former statement you said, after declaring Futih Singh had no watch, that it was your watch till twelve; now you say it was after twelve. What is the meaning of this discrepancy?

A.—I cannot recollect: I am an unlettered man.

Q.—Who awakened you?

A.—Futih Singh.

Q.—How long did you watch?

A.—Five or six ghurees; I then awakened Ram Singh, who relieved me; we had nothing to guard in the Mundur—only looked after our own things, and did not invariably keep watch on them.

Q.—Why did you keep watch?

A.—There was a fear of the Brahmuns despoiling the Mundur, so we kept watch against them. This fear was directly contradictory of his previous assertion. extant all the time after our coming to Jussoor, so we kept watch every night. The Deewan told me, two days after my arrival, to keep watch against the Brahmuns, and promised us pay from himself—four rupees monthly each.

Q.—Who gave you the wages for which you signed a receipt?

A.—The Deewan's servant, Malee Ram Buneea, gave us a rupee each, and one over for myself as I wanted clothes; this was on account. The Deewan said, if the Raj took us into service, good! otherwise, we should be paid as long as we served in the Mundur. Futih Singh said he would not stay and told to please himself.

Q.—Why did you only give him a rupee?—If he was discharged he ought to have been paid up?

A.—I don't lie!—I gave him a rupee and took his Razeenam, put my own signature on it, and gave it to Malee Ram, who must have it now.

Q.—After you were relieved by Ram Singh what did you do?

A.—I went to sleep—arose at morning, washed, performed my devotions, then went to the Deewan's Haveli where I sat till the Deewan's son, Gyan Chund, went to Durbar whither I accompanied him.

Q.—Do you know when Futih Singh left the Mundur?

A.—No; I did not see him that morning: when I got up, I saw Ram Singh and Rutun Singh, they also were washing, &c. Ram Singh remained in the Mundur to cook food; Rutun Singh followed me to the Haveli, and afterwards went with me, in attendance on Gyan Chund, to the Durbar.

Q.—Did you see Futih Singh at the Durbar?

A.—I don't know whether he went before or came after me. I sat long time in the shade of small new garden, before Surdkee Deorhee, then, being thirsty, I went out, and saw Futih Singh sitting on the Chibootra in the sun. I asked him why he sat in the sun; he answered, because it was his khooshee. I then went outside the Court to drink water, but had scarcely got out when the cry of swords having been used arose. I returned to see what was the matter, but was prevented from coming near by the crowd about the gate. I asked several men what had happened? who had used a sword? and was answered it was no known. Can't name any man of whom I inquired; hundreds were there.

Q. When you were speaking to Futih Singh as he sat in the sun, was any other person by?

A.—No one.

Q.—Did no one join in the conversation?—reflect and be careful in your answer.

A.—There was no one else with us.

Q.—A man (Cheetur Mulli, who has since absconded) has given evidence that when you spoke to Futih Singh as he sat in the sun, he interfered and said, let him alone, he is only a guest in this world, and is soon going to take his departure?

A. Produce that man. There was nobody by; when I seated myself in the shade of the garden, Rutun Singh went under the shade of a Neem tree on the left of the Deorhee, by a small puka Chubootra. I did not see him when I came out and spoke to Futih Singh, nor did we meet until I returned to the Mundur.

Q.—Did he reach the Mundur before or after you?

A.—Before me, Ram Singh was cooking and Rutun Singh sitting by him when I got home (to the Mundur). I said to the latter what's this business? He replied Futih Singh had shed blood—at the Deewan's house several of the servants advised me to fly. Your man has shed blood, and you will be laid hold of, they said.

Q.—Who were these men?

A.—Seven or eight Shekhawut Rajpoots, who were formerly in Sunghjee's service and afterwards came to the Deewan—I said, I will not go; why should I? The Shekhawuts (these men went to the Deorhee with Gnan Chund, and no doubt they were afterwards instrumental in raising the disturbance in the city) are not present now, they have gone off. After this business the Deewan told me to keep an eye on these men (Ram Singh and Rutun Singh), that they went not away. After I had been examined here (at the Residency) the Deewan said, never mind watching them now, and go you where you please, do not consider yourself a prisoner.

Q.—Did you return with the Deewan's son?

A.—No; I returned alone, and went direct to the Mundur, whence, after a ghurce, the Deewan sent for me by a man despatched every where in search of me, to inquire how a person of my enlisting had done such a deed.

Q.—When did you leave the Surdkee Deorhee?

A.—About a ghurgo or half ghurce after. I went up the Tripoleea to the south by the Nuwa Muadur; then seeing the Tripoleea gate shut, I went by the Sreejee Mundur and the stable; out by the great gate on the right of which is the Huwa Muhul; then by the Bazar and Chuko reached the Mundur.

Q.—Why did you not wait for the Deewan's son?

A.—He was inside and communication was interrupted, so I came away.

Q.—Whom did the Deewan send to the Mundur to call you?

A.—Buncea named Jue Chund; he had been in service at Madhoopoor and was discharged; in consequence had come here. He said I have been searching every where for you, the Deewan calls you: Futih Singh has been shedding the Bura Sahib's blood. The Deewan said to me Futih Singh has been shedding blood; what do you know about this? I replied—"I know nothing; what he has done he knows, I have no concern in the business." Jue Chund came with us from Madhoopoor.

He used to get 15 Rupees a month. The Deewan told him he was out of service, and might go where he liked. We were told to put up in the Muadur. He went and lived with his uncle in some lane near Rawuljee's residence. I don't know the uncle's name; I often went there to see Jue Chund, but had only a slight acquaintance with the uncle.

Q.—Did you ever meet Manik Chund there?

A.—I don't know him.

Q.—Not know Manik Chund, the servant of the Deewan?

A.—No; there may formerly have been such a man in the Deewan's house, but not to my knowledge, during the last few months.

Q.—Did you ever meet Hoonj Lal there?

A.—I don't know Koonj Lal.

Q.—Don't you know either of these persons?

A.—No. Neither by name nor person. I often met Jue Chund in the Bazar; only once met him at his house.

Q.—You said just now, that you often went!

A.—Not that I often met him. I went twice to his house, but only met him once. I went about two rupees worth he owed Ram Singh who requested me to recover them. Ram Singh lent him the money just as we were leaving Madhoopoor. Ten or twelve days after our arrival at Juepoor Ram Singh begged me to get his money of him.

Q. Why did he not go for it himself?

A.—He said, you induced me to lend the money so do you get it back. I found Jue Chund at home with only a nephew, a lad. I went daily to the Deewan's house, as did the other three (Futih Singh, Ram Singh, and Rutun Singh); we paid our respects and sat there, or came away after a little, as might be. Jue Chund used also, daily, to come and pay his respects—doubtless in the hope of getting some service. I did not know on the 3d that there would be a Durbar on the morrow: I was not told to attend.

No. 2.—Correction of evidence and additional statement, by Gopal Singh before Captain Thoresby and Lieutenant Anolly.

On the 19th, Gopal Singh said that he wished to correct two parts of his evidence.

1st.—With regard to his watch in the Mundur on the night of the 3d of June. "The real state of the case is this; I kept watch till six ghurees of the night were gone, and then went to sleep. Futih Singh, who had been playing on a one-wired guitar relieved me."

2d.—"I said, that on the morning of the assassination I came direct from the Palace to the Mundur—I recollected, after leaving this yesterday, that I first went to the Deewan's house and then to the Mundur."

Q.—What did you do at the Deewan's house?

A.—He said—"Futih Singh has been shedding blood"—what is this? I answered—"If he has he will be punished." Then the Deewan said—"well! go and eat your bread." So I went to the Mundur and ate bread.

Q.—What time was this?

A.—About noon—rather after than before. Ram Singh had cooked my bread, and I ate it; sitting by him and his brother Rutun Singh, who always ate together.

Q.—What was the cause of your going first to the Deewan's house?

A.—Jue Chund Buncea met me in the Bazar, near the Huwa Muhul, he said, men are searching for you every where, for your fellow Futih Singh had shed blood, and some said you had ran away—I answered, I am not concerned in this blood, why should I run away; so I accompanied him to the Haveloe, and he said to the Deewan—"here is Gopal Singh."

Q.—When you went to the Mundur what conversation had you with Ram Singh and Rutun Singh?

A.—They said, "Futih Singh has shed blood—he has done ill,"—I answered,—"if he has he will be punished." After eating my dinner I went again to the Haveloe. The Deewan told his servants to keep watch over me. I was not strictly confined—carried about my own sword and shield with me—was watched. After I had been examined here, the Deewan said that I need no longer consider myself under restraint.

Note.—Gopal Singh being here told that his statements had been but a series of contradictions, and that he had much better tell truly what he knew—replied, that he had given evidence to the best of his recollection, but that he did know something of importance which he would disclose if all servants and others were ordered to a distance. The room having been cleared, he stated what follows, to Captain Thoresby and Lieutenant Conolly.

Fifteen or twenty days ago Rawuljoo's Vukel, Ruhmut Oollah Khan, sent me to communicate with Futih Singh, and get something out of him: so I went and sat with him alone. I said to him,—"Futih Singh! the Raj wants the business cleared up: confess; if you don't, hot balls will be put on the Buneea's (Savages) and your hands, and the falsehood will be discovered." He answered "if you put hot balls upon my hands I shall be burned." I replied, "speak truth and the balls won't burn; if you tell lies they will." He remarked that he had written down certain names before the Sahibs, how could he now give in other names or tell another story? I said—"tell the truth in any case." He then said,—"I will disclose all to the Sahibs, and then my life will be saved. I did the deed of my own accord, and no other person had concern in it: don't tell this to any body."

No. 3.—Extermination of Jue Chund Buneea at the Residency, 21st August.

Q.—Where you with the Deewan Umur Chund on the 4th of June?

A.—Yes, I went to the Havelee about 12 o'clock and met the Deewan at his door; he took me to the Dhurm Sala, and I sat there some time while he went into the temple: when he came out he asked if I had eaten, I said no, and he gave me about a seer of sweetmeats, of which I gave Gopal Singh, and Ram Singh, and Rutun Singh two luddos each.

Q.—What did the Deewan say to you when you met him at the door of his Havelee;

A.—He said, see what business has happened! I answered—"Khoda kee murzee"—Gopal Singh also made a similar exclamation, and I replied to him as well—"Khoda kee murzee."

Q.—Where did you meet Gopal Singh that day?

A.—When I went to the Dhurm Sala with the Deewan, Gopal Singh, Ram Singh, and Rutun Singh were seated there.

Q.—Reflect and give a direct answer to this—did you see Gopal Singh any where else that day?

A.—Yes, near the Kupur-kote durwaza, by the Huwa-muhul.

Q.—How did you meet him;

A.—Accidentally. I had come from my house with the intention of calling on the Deewan! when I came opposite the Tripoleea, I saw the gate shut, and many men assembled in the Chouk in front, so I lingered there a little, and then determined to go home.

Q.—Why did you determine to go home?

A.—I saw that it was time to eat.

Q.—Did you speak to any body before the Tripoleea?

A.—No, but I heard many men exclaiming in this way "Swords have been going in the palace!"—"Swords have going in the palace!"—"Futih Singh used his sword on the Firungee!"—"Futih Singh used his sword on the Firungee!"

Q.—Did it enter your mind that this was your Futih Singh?

A.—No, not at all.

Q.—Well, you determined to return home—what then?

A.—As I was passing by the Huwa-muhul I met Gopal Singh, he said he had come out by the Kupur-kote gate, I asked—"what was happened, who has done it?"

He replied—"that Burn Sunkur Futih Singh had done it, and had done ill." When I heard this, it came into my mind that I would go to the Deewan's house, and there ascertain what had happened; for the time for eating had passed, and I said to myself if I first go home it will be a long way to come back to the Deewan's house; therefore I went to the Deewan's house, with Gopal Singh. When we reached the Havelee-door the Deewan was calling out—"bring Gopal Singh! what bad business is this!" I went in and said,—"Gopal Singh present."

Q.—What did the Deewan do then?

A.—He seized Gopal Singh's hand and asked—"what has happened?" Gopal Singh answered,—"what God has willed has happened."

Q.—What occurred then?

A.—I have no accurate knowledge of what followed.

Q.—What did you do?

A.—I resolved to return home; and I remember that, as I was leaving the house I heard the Deewan say, watch this man; then I went home.

Q.—You said just now that you met the Deewan at the door of his house, and went with him to the Dhurm Sala, and there met Ram Singh, Rutun Singh and Gopal Singh, and gave them luddos to eat. Now you say that you met Gopal Singh in the street near the Huwa Muhul, went with him inside the Deewan's house and then returned home; what is the meaning of all this contradiction?

A.—I have forgotten, and confused matters.

Note.—The witness was told, in reply to his last answer, that he should have an opportunity of correcting his mistakes; he was accordingly detained for a night, and the next morning he dictated the following statement.

No. 4.—Second Deposition of Jue Chund Buneea at the Residency, 29th August.

On the day that the tumult occurred, when one and a half pulhurs of day were gone, I went to the Deewan's Havelee; at the time the Deewan was standing at the door of his havelee, with ten or twelve other men in attendance. The Deewan said to me, have you seen Gopal Singh? I answered—"I am come from the purana bustee—I have not seen Gopal Singh." Then the Deewan said—"do you quickly seek and bring him." So I went and looked here and there—in the Chuok, outside the Tripoleea, but did not find Gopal Singh.

I thought that I would go home and eat bread; so, I set off, but near the Huwa Muhul, in the Bazar, I met Gopal Singh. He said he had come out from the Kupur-kote-ka Durwaza. I asked him, how has this business happened? He replied—"that which is decreed is known to God." Then I said—"come, let us go to the Deewan's;"—he replied—"come along." So, conversing as we went we took the road to the Deewan's. Gopal Singh said to me on the way—"Futih Singh used his sword, people say"—I observed he has done a very bad deed. Thus conversing, we reached the Deewan's. The Deewan was standing at the door of his Havelee, and saying—"has not Gopal Singh arrived?" In the interim, we came up, and I advancing said—"Gopal Singh is present." Then the Deewan, seizing the hand of Gopal Singh, said—"how has this happened?"—Gopal Singh answered,—"Muharaj! God has willed it." Afterwards they repaired to the Dhurm Sala of the Mundur, and there went and sat up above. I also was in company, and the Deewan asked me if I had eaten bread; I answered, no; then he gave me a seer of sweetmeats, of which I distributed six luddos to Gopal Singh, Ram Singh and Rutun Singh. Then Gopal Singh, filling a lota with water at the well, himself drank, and brought water for me. After this the Deewan prepared to return to his Havelee; Gopal Singh and I accompanied him. Having arrived at his Havelee, the Deewan said to the man of his house, keep Gopal Singh securely, and he said to Gopal Singh,—"if there is no guilt in you stay with them." Afterwards, I went to my house.

No. 5.—Examination of Jue Ghund Bunesa, servant of Deewan Umur Chund, on Friday, 24th August.

Q.—What did Deewan Umur Chund say to Gopal Singh through you? Whatever it may have been repeat it at length.

A.—On the day swords were used, I had performed my devotions before Sree Chundru Majee Bruhm-poorce, and had reached the Hurce Thoonce, when I heard exclamations of swords having been going, upon which I proceeded to the house of Deewan Umur Chund.

Q.—Where was the Deewan, and what did he say?

A.—As soon as the Deewan saw me, he asked me if I had seen Gopal Singh; I replied that I had not seen him. He repeated several times afterwards,—"have you seen Gopal Singh?" and I told him that I came from Bruhm-poorce and had not met Gopal Singh. He then begged me to look for and bring Gopal Singh, and I went in search of him. Not finding him in front of the Tripoleea, I thought that I would go home to take my meal; on the way, I met Gopal Singh in the Huwa Muhul Bazar, coming from the direction of the Kapur-kote Durwaza. I asked him what had happened; he answered,—"what was fated has happened." Taking Gopal Singh with me I then returned to the Deewan's house. On the road Gopal Singh told me that Futh Singh had made use of his sword; I said that he had done very ill; to which Gopal Singh replied,—"what God ordained has taking place." We both went on to the Deewan's house.

Q.—When you reached the house what question did the Deewan put?

A.—The Deewan was standing in the doorway, and, when we were within a few paces of the door, I heard him asking if Gopal Singh was come. I said that Gopal Singh was present; then the Deewan taking Gopal Singh by the hand led him into the Dhurru Sala, outside the Mundur, where Gopal Singh and others lodge. I followed them up a flight of steps to a room over the doorway in which we sat down. The Deewan then asked me if I was hungry, I told him that I was, and he sent a Sravugee to bring sweetmeats—sevu and luddoo.

Q.—What was the name of the Sravugee who was sent on this errand; and what was the conversation until he returned—or did you all remain silent?

A.—The Sravugee was an old man; I know his person, but am not acquainted with his name: during his absence I went into the thatched apartment, and Gopal Singh and Deewan conversed apart.

Q.—Were any other persons there at this time?

A.—The two talked together in private. When the Sravugee returned with the sweetmeats, Gopal Singh rising said—"I am thirsty, so I will go to the well to drink, and bring you a lota of water." The Deewan said—"go and drink, and bring a lota of water for Jue Chund." He brought the water, when I gave Gopal Singh, &c., two luddoos each—Ram Singh and Retun Singh, who were sitting under the chupper, partook. The Deewan afterwards descended with Gopal Singh and went towards his house: I followed them. The Deewan took Gopal Singh into the Chouk in front of the house, and said to him—"Is that business done?"—Gopal Singh gave a sign of assent. The Deewan then added—"mind you remain firm"—after which he desired some Ghur-ke-Ieel (armed men in his service) to look after Gopal Singh.

Q.—You say, you were following them: in that case would the Deewan have spoken thus in your presence?

A.—I did follow them: the Deewan stood in the first Chouk or square, a few feet from the entrance to the inner Chouk, when he spoke to Gopal; and as he did not turn round he could not see me, but I heard very well what he said.

Q.—Were any other persons standing there?

A.—There were several soldiers at some distance off.

Q.—Is all this true, which you have stated? Tell the truth upon your conscience?

A.—Since you charge me on my conscience—I also require some assurance of protection for my life and honor.

Q.—Tell truly all that you saw and heard, and we promise you protection for life and honor.

A.—When they were in the Chouk, the Deewan said to Gopal Singh,—"will you be faithful?"—to which he answered—"I will." The Deewan then said,—"the business is done, it is true! but is your companion staunch?" Gopal replied—"he was staunch then; with respect to the future God only can know how it will be."

Q.—Why didn't you give this evidence before?

A.—I am now adjured with solemnity, therefore I have given this testimony, which is correct in all particulars, I declare upon my conscience.

Q.—Will you repeat this statement before the Deewan and Gopal Singh?

A.—I will.

V.—And should they deny it?

A.—I have told what I saw and heard, and this I will assert to them, whether they deny it or not.

No. 6.—Examination of Gopal Singh, in the presence of Jue Chund, on the 29th August.

Q.—Did you meet Jue Chund near the Huwa Muhul on the day that the disturbance took place in the City? And what conversation passed between you, and where did you both go?

A.—He was coming from the Huwa Muhul through the Bazar, and I was going from the direction of the Sire Deochee, past the Nugurkhanu, towards the house of Deewan Umur Chund, when I met him. He said to me, what has happened? I told him that Futh Singh has committed an assault with his sword—that what God decreed had happened. Then both of us went to the Deewan, and found him standing at his door. Jue Chund told him, that I was present, and he asked me where I had been? I answered that I had been at the Durbar; upon which the Deewan desired to know if the sword assault had taken place before me. I told him that, at that time, I had gone to drink water. Again, he said to me, when Futh Singh used his sword were you with him? I replied that when the sword was used I was not present. The Deewan then taking my hand led me towards the inner door, and said to me, if you were not engaged in this affair fear nothing. I answered, that I had no fear. He again said, fear not: be firm; for if you desert you will become suspected, and people will take my name.

Q.—On what account did he tell you to be firm? What did he allude to?

A.—He meant to say, that if I was engaged in the affair, I should be put to death, and if I had nothing to do with it, I might be easy and fearless; and I intended to say, that I had done nothing; that if I were guilty, then I might desert.

Q.—Was Jue Chund present when you were talking?

A.—Jue Chund was there and must have heard all.

Q.—Did the Deewanjee say anything to Jue Chund?

A.—He asked him if he had eaten, and when he said he had not, sent for some luddoo (sweetmeats,) through an ancient Sravugee whose name I do not know. Jue Chund afterwards sent me to bring water to drink, and I brought it. He also gave Ram Singh, Rutun Singh and me, two luddoes each.

Q.—Jue Chund says that Gopal Singh and the Deewanjee sat together in the room above the door way and conversed in private—mention the subject of your conversation?

A.—I have mentioned before what we talked about. The room in which the Deewan and I sat is over the doorway of the Mundur.

Q.—Jue Chund declared in your presence that the Deewan said to you, "is that work done?" And that you gave a sign that it was, with your head; did you make such sign or not?

A.—The Deewan did not ask the question, and I made no such sign.

Q.—Do you deny this, when Jue Chund affirms, voluntarily and positively before you, upon his oath—first, that the Deewan said to you—"that business then is done, now remain firm"—and, secondly, that he said—"is your companion staunch?" Tell the truth as to these two points.

A.—As to what Jue Chund says of his having heard the words, "that business is done;" I did not hear the Deewan utter them; and about his having asked if my companions were staunch, he inquired respecting Ram Singh and Rutun Singh, whether they would desert, to which I said, they are firm and will not desert.

Q.—Did this pass between you and the Deewan when Jue Chund was present?

Q.—Why did you not mention these particulars in your former deposition?

A.—I have deposed to them on being confronted with Jue Chund. I mentioned his name in the former depositions.

REMARKS.

The verdict and sentence of the Court appear to be warranted by the evidence that has been adduced and the nature of the case. The falsehoods told by Gopal Singh in his several depositions, with the view, evidently, to prevent suspicion attaching to him, and to weaken or nullify the force of the confessions made by Futih Singh; with his gross equivocation and concealment of facts, not denied by himself when they had been brought to light, subsequently, through other channels, would leave little doubt upon the mind as to his guilty implication with reference to the part that was allotted to Futih Singh in the transactions of the 4th of June, had not Jue Chund, after cross-examination, deposed to the extent he has done, respecting what passed between the prisoner and Deewan Umur Chund, when the former returned from the Deorhee.

In connection with Gopal Singh's various false statements and perjury, it should be recollected that Umur Chund, in his first examinations, averred that he had paid up the men—Gopal Singh, Ram Singh and Rutun Singh, through his servant, on the 1st of June, and desired them to go away; and that after the outrageous conduct of Futih Singh on the morning of the 4th of June, he placed Gopal in confinement, because the former had been taken into service through him: whereas, Gopal Singh stated on the 18th of August, that the Deewan had promised them all four rupees a month each, for keeping watch in the Mundur; that they had received from the Deewan's servant only one rupee each, himself getting a second rupee to purchase clothes on account; and that, on the 4th of June, the Deewan desired him to watch the two men Ram Singh and Rutun Singh, so that they might not abscond.

The prisoner did not call Ram Singh and Rutun Singh to bear witness in his favor, and they were not summoned for the prosecution, because their testimony was not thought to be essential, and they were believed to be, to a certain extent, if not altogether, dishonest witnesses; an inference drawn from their former depositions and conduct.

There is no proof whatever of Futih Singh having been retained originally through the intervention of Gopal Singh, to account for the latter having been placed in confinement, as asserted by the Deewan, by reason of the misdeeds of the former, nor is there any thing known concerning the truth of the story told by the party, as to the cause of their coming to Juepoor from Madhoepoor—namely, that the amils of the latter place had discharged them, and therefore they came to appeal to the Deewan, and to receive from him two months' pay that was due to them. It appears to be highly probable that the four men were sent for with the view of employing the services of one or more of them in carrying into execution the schemes of the conspirators; and that, in the end, Futih Singh was recommended by Gopal Singh to Deewan Umur Chund as a man likely to accomplish his purpose.

There is no evidence against Ram Singh and Rutun Singh on which they could be convicted.

SUMMARY OF THE TRIAL OF MOONNA LAL DAROGHA.

Natanee-ka-bagh, Saturday, 3d September, 1835.

Charge preferred against Moonna Lal Sravugee, Darogha of the Palace at Juepoor.

Moonna Lal Sravugee is charged with having been party to, and accessory in a plot, conducted by Deewan Umur Chund and others, to affect by violent means change in the administration of the Government of Juepoor, in furtherance of the objects of which was devised a plan of action, manifested in the assault with a sword of the person of Major Alves, Agent to the Governor General of India, by Futih Singh, in front of the Surdkee Deorhee, on the morning of the 4th of June 1835—8th Jeth Soodi Sunhit 1892; and the subsequent sanguinary tumult in the city of Juepoor on the same day.

The Prisoner declares that he is innocent.

1st Witness.—Futih Singh deposes.—When I was taken back to the Deorhee from the Pipoleea, on the morning of the 4th of June, my deposition was recorded by a Lala before several Sirdars, and then I was put into a room, near the Surdkee Deorhee, under charge of a guard from the Battalion of Peer Khan Captain. On the morning of the next day, I was taken out of the room, and preparations were made for conveying me to another place of confinement: whilst I was kept waiting outside the room, Moonna Lal Darogha came up to me, and in a threatening tone and manner said, if you take the names of any of us, respectable men, you shall be cut up piece meal. Not knowing Moonna Lal at that time, when he had gone away, I asked the Sentry who he was, and then learned that he was Moonna Lal Darogha. I do not know the names of the Sepahees who were on the guard, but I think I should recognise some of them if I saw them again.

Witness is cross-examined by the Court.

The prisoner has nothing to say, except that he did not use the words ascribed to him by Futih Singh.

2d Witness.—Wuzoor Khan, Dhaluet, deposes.—On the morning of the 4th of June, Thakoor Indur Singh and Darogha Moonna Lal accompanied the Gentlemen when they passed through the Surdkee Deorhee after the Durbar. Indur Singh remained in the doorway, and Moonna Lal, moving a little to the side, stood upon a Chabootra that is immediately on the right. When the Gentlemen went forward and the confusion caused by the use of a sword arose, Moonna Lal continued to stand upon the Chabootra, whence he called out, see what is the cause of the disturbance. I was within the entrance of the Deorhee with other Dhaluets; and receiving no orders to go out, we who were inside remained at our usual post. Soon after Moonna Lal had spoken the words I have mentioned, he came in and sat down behind the Quast (cloth wall which is fixed before the entrance inside) and remained sitting there for the space of about two ghurees or more (forty-eight minutes or longer).

Cross-examined by the Court.

The prisoner has no question to put distinct from those proposed for him by the Court.

3d Witness.—Lal Khan, Chobdar of Deorhee, deposes—When Gentlemen come to the Palace it is the custom for the Darogha to meet and conduct them inside; also on their return, he attends them to the outer side of the Deorhee, and remains there until they have mounted—keeping the ground clear, that they may not be incommoded by people pressing in upon them. On the 4th of June the Darogha came out with the Buja Sahib, but he stood upon a habootra near the entrance and did not keep the people back, although they were crowding in front where the Gentlemen were to mount. Had the ground been kept clear the sword man would hardly have been able to approach. The Darogha always gives orders and then we act, for we are entirely under him: that day he did not as usual desire us to make arrangements for the Gentlemen to mount.

The Court cross-question the witness,—but the prisoner merely observes that on the day alluded to he acted in the usual way.

4th Witness.—Hyul Khan, Chobdar of Deorhee, deposes—Soon after the disturbance began on the morning of the 4th of June, Indur Singhjee went inside, and Moonna Lal coming within the entrance of the Deorhee sat down upon the wooden platform in the passage. We who are stationed at the Deorhee, are all under the orders of the Darogha, and act in all things as he tells us. I was within the Deorhee, and could not see what passed outside.

After some cross-questioning by the Court; witness retires.

Depositions of Moonna Lal Darogha are read (vide Appendix.)

Extracts from the Deosa and Agra letters are read in Court. Of these the following are the most important with reference to the Prisoner.

Extract from No. 5 of Deosa Letters by Gyan Chund.

“Preparations were made for confining the Deorhee-wala, when leaving his meal he ran inside, and thus the matter has been postponed; but it is vain for the mother to pray for the welfare of her kid.”

No. 13 of Deosa Letters, dated August 13, 1835, by Hukum Chund.

“When I look to Juepoor my understanding is confounded! Moonna Lal Darogha has taken leave, and is gone away with his family. As he was intimately acquainted with every thing, this must excite our apprehension. What can be the meaning of it?”

No. 28 of Agra Papers, 11th July 1835, by Mangeesa Poorohit.

P. S. Neither will the Darogha be suffered to escape nor the Sukh-bejee; he (the rawul) will get them all into his clutches.

No. 12 of Agra Papers, dated 9th August 1835, by Mangeesa Poorohit.

“The intelligence from Juepoor is, that Moonna Laljee having obtained leave to perform a pilgrimage to Seekhurjee, quitted the city, accompanied by his family, on Thursday. He first went to Rugarun, in which village is his home, and thence to Doola. Bijnee Lal (brother of Moonna Lal) and Heera Lal remained at Juepoor, but all the females came away with Moonna Lal. A camel messenger followed and called Moonna Lal back to Juepoor: he left his family at Dhoola and returned alone. I am at a loss to know why he came away, and why he went back. He ought not to have left Juepoor, in the first instance; but having come away it was not prudent to return. I have sent for information in the matter and will write you the result.

No. 17 of Agra Papers, 17th May 1835, by Mangeesa Poorohit.

“I have also heard that the Rawul has promised the Sahib that in fifteen days he will satisfy the Majes, and reconcile her to the present system; in consequence, I have sent a man to Juepoor, and have directed him to say to Sivu Laljee, Malee Ram and Moonna Laljee Darogha—Take care to keep steadfast the purpose of the Interior; add strength to it, so that her foot may remain firm, and she may not, on any ground whatever, fail in resolution. I am doing my best, situated as I am here; let her exert herself there night and day, to attain our object. Say to her from me”, &c.

The case for the prosecution closes, and the prisoner is told to make his defence. He at first declines to call witnesses, but being pressed by the Court to bring forward some evidence to rebut the testimony of Futh Singh and the depositions given by the Dhaluets and Chobdars of the Deorhee, he afterwards names several individuals to be summoned; though he says they need not be called his witnesses.

The Court adjourn to Monday morning next.

Monday, 5th September, 1836.

First witness.—On the part of the defence, Futh Ram Dhabbaee is called in, and deposes: I had not seen Futh Singh before; when on the day following that of the disturbance in the City, Rawuljee desired me to convey him to the Residency Garden, and I went to him for that purpose. Almost immediately after I arrived at the place where he was, Moonna Lal Darogha also came up. I escorted the prisoner to the Garden, and thence, by direction of the Burra Sahib, back to the City. Moonna Lal Darogha said of, or to Futh Singh, before me—you have caused the ruin of this Raj; you have done a bad deed. This is all that I heard, excepting that as we were setting off, the Darogha called out, take him along carefully. The day was advanced about six ghurees at that time. When I went to Futh Singh he was sitting outside the room in which he had been confined, and the khat was ready for his conveyance. I do not know who took him out of the room, nor who directed the khat to be prepared. The chamber in which he had been kept during the night was on the left hand, passing out of the Deorhee, from the entrance of which it was some fifteen or twenty cubits distant.

Futh Singh is called into Court, and deposes in presence of Futh Ram: I was taken out of the room, on account of the great heat of the atmosphere within it, sometime during the night. It was early in the morning when the Darogha came to me, and Futh Ram did not arrive till several ghurees afterwards.

No questions are put by the prisoner to either witness.

Second witness.—Suwnee Khan Dhaluet's deposition:—Saw Futh Singh for the first time on the day that he made use of his sword at the Deorhee. Did not go near him when he was in confinement in the room close to the Deorhee, and cannot say when he was put into or taken out of it. Did not accompany the Darogha, or any one else, on the morning of the second day, to the place where he was.

Moonna Lal remarks, that he thought Suwnee Khan had gone with him to the place of confinement of Futh Singh on the morning of the 5th of June, and a witness if this was not the case: the latter replies that the best of his recollection, he did not accompany the Darogha.

Third witness.—Hafiz Budroodeen Subadar, and Khan Mahumud Khan Jumadar, attached to the Battalion commanded by Captain Peer Khan, called in and questioned:—State that they were both on the guard over Futih Singh on the 4th and morning of the 5th of June 1835. Khan Mahumud Khan was out of the way when Moonna Lal Darogha visited the prisoner Futih Singh, but Hafiz Budroodeen was present on one occasion that the Darogha came to the place where Futih Singh was sitting, in front of the small room out of which he had been removed, in the forenoon of the fifth. The Darogha said, "what a wretched lona to commit such an act!—now, wait to see whom he implicates! or, let us see whom he tries to ruin!"—Witness is well enough acquainted with the dialect of the country for all common purposes. Understood the Darogha to mean what he has stated, but cannot repeat the words made use of. Does not remember that any thing more was said. Does not know the exact time of day when what he has stated took place, but Futih Singh was despatched to the Residency Garden very soon afterwards.

There are no more witnesses for the defence. The prisoner makes some observations of an exculpatory nature, and is requested by the Court to put upon paper the substance of all that he has to urge in his vindication, besides making what representations he pleases orally. Paper, pen and ink are furnished, and he retires to write,—returning, after the lapse of about three quarters of an hour, with the following written address.

The address of Moonna Lal Darogha. I am charged with having failed to make the requisite arrangements for preserving order at the Deorhee:—In answer to which I have to represent that I acted according to the rules which have ever been observed on occasions of the arrival and departure of visitors. It is the office of the Chobdars to conduct matters outside the Deorhee. They, however, have stated that they perform their duty in the manner which I may point out. Now, upon the occurrence of any thing that is unusual, they refer to me, and I furnish them with particular instructions. On the arrival of Gentlemen, they inform me and I go to meet and conduct the visitors from the Deorhee. After the Gentlemen have mounted, on their return, they (the Chobdars) apprise me of the circumstance and I report the same. This is the true statement of the case; and such has been the invariable practice.

With reference to the papers seized, belonging to the Sunghees, and in which my name is occasionally mentioned, I have to declare that I am utterly ignorant regarding that matter; but should you bring home to me the fact of my having held*

*The Deosa and Agra Papers, especially No. 17, of date 17th May, bring the point of communication home more satisfactorily than any swearing could do.

†The passage is in one of the Deosa letters, and may be read Deorhee-wala of the tribe Khindooko and others, or the Deorhee and Khindooko and others.

I can say.

Futih Singh has said that I told him I would have him cut to pieces if he mentioned our names; but I could have had no object whatever in so addressing him. When the Rawul ordered him to be taken to the Residency Garden, I sent him in charge of Futih Ram, who has deposed to that effect in your presence. Be pleased to consider well these three points. If it prove that I am to blame in any degree, then shall I be worthy to receive the severest punishment.

The prisoner has no further observations of importance to address to the Court, and retires.

After the usual formalities observed at the conclusion of each trial, the following verdict is recorded.

Upon all the evidence that has been adduced, the Court are clearly of opinion that Moonna Lal Darogha was privy to the conspiracy which led to the outrage of the 4th of June 1835 at Juepoor; and through it has not been made evident to what extent he afforded aid and means in the concoction and execution of the schemes planned, yet it is in proof, that on the occasion of the Agent to the Governor-General of India's quitting the Palace before being wounded by Futih Singh, on the morning of the 4th of June, he did not perform properly and agreeably to established usage his peculiar functions; and that he did not exert himself in the way he was bound to do, and as an innocent person in his situation would naturally have done, after the attack on the Agent to the Governor-General had been actually made. The Court do therefore find the prisoner, Moonna Lal Darogha, guilty, and do further sentence him to be imprisoned for the term of twelve years.

APPENDIX TO THE TRIAL OF MOONNA LAL SHAVUGLE, DAROGHA OF THE DEORHEES.

No. 1. Deposition of Moonna Lal, Darogha of the Deorhees or Palace, 7th August.

Q.—Relate what you know regarding the attack made upon the Agent to the Governor General on the 4th of June.

A.—On that day, when the Gentlemen quitted the Durbar, all the Sirdars who were present escorted them as far as the door, whence they returned to the Sookhniwas. Sivu Singh proceeded to the Kith Sidh Pol, where he also took his leave. I went on to the Sirdkee Deorhee in advance of the Agent to the Governor-General, and Mr. Blake and Thakoor Indur-inghjee were following us, conversing together.

The Bura Sahib then went forward to mount his elephant, and I was about to return to the Deorhee to give notice that he had taken his departure; at that time there was a sudden noise of a rush of people; I turned back, and going out, asked the Chobdars what was the cause of the noise; they answered that a Gentleman had fallen under the feet of an elephant. I told them to go and ascertain exactly what the matter was. A Chobdar went forward, and presently brought back word, that some man had wounded the Bura Sahib with a sword, that this Gentleman had afterwards gone away, and that Mr. Blake had secured the assassin. When I had heard the above from the Chobdar, I went inside, and meeting all the Sirdars who were coming from the Durbar, told them what had occurred; they said, ascertain who has perpetrated this base act. I returned to the Sirdkee Deorhee and saw Mr. Blake standing upon the Chubootra with the murderer's sword in his hand. There were two of the Gentlemen's Suwars with their swords drawn, who were keeping off the people, and Chuprassee were pressing the assassin to the ground. I would have gone up to the Gentlemen, but was prevented from approaching by the Suwars and others. At length the Gentlemen saw me, and calling out, desired me to procure a charpae and rope. I sent a Chobdar and Dhuluet for these articles and they brought them. The Gentleman then had the assassin bound upon the charpae, and told me to deposit him under proper security to the Residency Garden. After this he mounted his elephant and went away, and I reported to the Moonshis when had just passed. Gunga Bishun Dhabhee was desired to conduct the prisoner to the Garden. I saw that the Gentlemen and the murderer had both proceeded beyond the Poorbean-kee Deorhee near the Kusora, on the way to the street, before I went inside.

Q.—Where were you when the Bura Sahib was wounded?

A.—I was at the Sirdkee Deorhee close to the Qunat going inside.

Q.—Did you see the blow of the sword given?

A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you know the man who used the sword?

A.—I do not know him.

Q.—What Sirdars and Mootsuddes came through the Sirdkee Deorhee?

A.—Formerly the custom was that the Sirdars and respectable Mootsuddes should go through the Sire Deorhee, and the menials, as Chelaa, Kluwases, &c., went in and out by the Sirdkee Deorhee; but for some years past, the Sirdars whose residences are near the Sirdkee Deorhee, make use of that entrance and others pass through the Sire Deorhee.

Q.—Who passed through on that day, and whose followers were outside the Sirdkee Deorhee?

A.—Rao Jeewun Singh, Rao Hunwunt Singh, Indur Singhjee, Rawut Runjeet Singhjee, and their attendants were outside, upon the Chubootra of the Bura Deorhee.

Q.—Did not Deewan Umur Chund, and his son Gyan Chund, Sivu Lal, Gyanjee Buguro and Rajoo Lal, pass through that Deorhee?

A.—I saw Umur Chund's son Gyan Chund, and Sivu Lal at the Deorhee, but I do not know if the other two were there.

Q.—When you were outside, and Mr. Blake was going away, did you hear and see any one say, "Let him not go away alive!"

A.—I neither heard nor saw such words spoken as long as I remained out.

Q.—Did any one follow Mr. Blake out of the Chuok or square before the Sirdkee Deorhee, making a disturbance in any way?

A.—I did not see any such men go away with him.

Q.—At the time the Bura Sahib was wounded, did any siphees or others attached to the Deorhee rush forward to seize or bind the assassin?

A.—The attendants of the Gentlemen did not allow others to approach.

Q.—The gate of the Tripolea was closed. Did the Durwan shut it of his own accord or did you desire him to do so?

A.—I gave no orders on the subject and do not know why the Durwan closed the gate. The doors of the Sirdkee Deorhee and the Sire Deorhee were shut by order of the Moosahibs, on account of the press of people and the apprehension of a riot.

Q.—You are Darogha of the Deorhees and must know something of most men who visit the Palace. What do you think in respect to this affair?—who can have been the author of it?

A.—From the day of the event I have been endeavoring to make some discovery as to its origin &c. I am an old servant of the Raj which is compromised in the matter, wherefore I am the more zealous in my exertions. According to the best of my judgment the man must have been injured in some way who could commit such an act; but without proof an accusation should not be advanced; when the truth can be discovered it shall be made known.

No. 2.—Darogha Moonna Lal's Deposition at the Residency, on the 24th of August 1835, before Capt. Thoresby and Lieut. Conolly.

After the Darbar in the Sookhniwas, the five Moosahibs and other Sirdars, accompanied the Resident to outside the Chela Tibars, where they took leave. The Rawul sent his eldest son Sivu Singh with me to outside the Rich Side Pak, where the Resident dismissed him, and I led on with Chobdars and Dhaluets to the Sirdkee Deorhee, which was the extent of my office. The Resident's sawree elephant was standing eight or ten paces outside the Deorhee; the Resident passed out by me and went towards the elephant; I remained standing on the Deorhee Chubootra. At that time Mr. Blake was following at a distance of four paces, talking about field sports to Thakoor Indur Singh, with whom he issued from the Deorhee in my presence. When he had passed out three or four paces I turned back to report the Gentlemen's having mounted, and at that moment a cry arose: some one exclaimed—the Sahib's elephant trumpeted, and the Sahib fell; and I saw a Sahib down between the right of the Chumbelee tree and the elephant. Then I said to a Chobdar,—"go and ascertain who has fallen, and what has happened." The Chobdar came and said, a sword has been used on the Bura Sahib, who has gone away in a Tonjan, and Blake Sahib has secured the assassin. Seeing and hearing all this, I went to report it. I met the five Moosahibs and the other Sirdars, five paces beyond the spot at which they had taken leave of the Resident, and I told them that the Bura Sahib had been wounded with a sword, and that Bijue Singh who made Mr. Blake had secured the assassin. The Rawul and others said to me—"go and ascertain what infamous wretch has done this deed"—so I ran back, and on reaching the Sirdkee Deorhee, I observed that the assassin's naked sword was in the hands of Mr. Blake, who was standing outside on the Chubootra. Two Troopers were moving round the assassin—refusing to let any of my Sirkar's people approach. In the centre a Chuprasee and a Spear-bearer were beating the assassin who was prostrate. They would not let me approach, but Mr. Blake seeing me called out, Darogha Moonna Lal! procure without delay a khat, some rope, and four carriers, for I will have this person taken to the Residency Garden. So I sent a Dhaluet for a khat, some rope, and four bearers, and when they arrived, Mr. Blake began to bind the assassin on the khat? and he said to me, go and report that arrangements may be made for a guard upon the road;

The Surbutha is I will take him to the Garden. close to the Deorhee. Then going in, I spoke to the and the Sirdars turned Rawul, who was seated with other ed into it, because it Sirdars on the south side of the was reported to them Surbutha; and the Rawul ordered that Mr. Blake had Dhabhaee Gunga Bishun left the Deorhee. to go with the Sahib and convey the assassin to the garden. Having heard so much, I came out to tell the Sahib that arrangements for a guard had been made; before my return the Sahib had mounted his elephant, and taken the prisoner off. The Sahib, the prisoner and the Suwars had safely got out of the Poorbeankee Deorhee—standing outside the Sirdkee Deorhee. I saw that they had got outside the Poorbeankee Deorhee. I went and reported to the Moosahibs, that the Sahib had safely gone out of the Deorhee, taking the assassin on a khat with him, and having Suwars in attendance.

Q.—You state, that you came out marshalling the Resident, say from what place, and to what place did you precede him, and where did you halt to let him pass you?

A.—I led from the Sookhniwas to the Sirdkee Deorhee, outside which I halted and stood on the Chubootra while the Resident passed by.

Q.—Why did you stand there? Did the Resident make any sign?

A.—It is my office to go thus far, so I halted and saluted.

Q.—Did the Bura Sahib notice your salam?

A.—I saluted, but the Sahib neither made any sign nor said any thing.

V.—You say it is your office to receive Gentlemen when they come to the Palace, and on their return, to report within their having departed, explain in what way?

A.—My custom is this, to accompany the Gentlemen to the Surdkee Deorhee, and on their making their exit to go back and report. Afterwards, on a Chobdar's coming to tell me of their having departed, I report that they are gone. My duty is to attend them as far as the Surdkee Deorhee.

Q.—Did you ever before this accompany a Sahib to the Deorhee, and then go inside to report his departure before he was gone?

A.—Formerly, in the time of Raper and other Sahibs, I acted thus: a Chobdar, having seen the Sahibs off, reported to me, then I reported within.

Q.—On a day of Darbar what are your duties?

A.—On a day of Darbar my duty is to wait in the presence, and on a Chobdar's reporting a Sardar's approach, to announce it within. For the Sahibs there is this order—"on their coming, bring them in from the Surdkee Deorhee, protecting them; and on their return, march them to the Deorhee." This practice has been in force since the time of General Ochitelony. I have charge of the Deorhees, at which Chobdars and Dhalsuets are posted, attached to these Deorhees are one hundred and twenty-five men; all of whom I know well, both as regards their persons, and their circumstances.

Q.—Who was the person that exclaimed,—"the Sahib's elephant trumpeted and the Sahib fell?"

A.—The voice came from a distance of five or six paces, and I don't know whose it was.

Q.—What is the name of the Chobdar, whom you sent to ascertain what had happened?

A.—I at that time sent a Chobdar but don't remember his person or name.

Q.—Who were attending you at that time?

A.—There are two reliefs. I don't know which of the Chokers was in attendance, but perhaps Lal Khan, Heyat Khan, Vazeer Khan Dhaluet, and Mohummad Dhaluet were by me. I don't remember the names and persons of the rest. At the time I was going in, my face was towards the Qunat Purda; hearing the cry, I turned and sent the Chobdar.

Q.—Upon what grounds do you say that the four men named were with you?

A.—I believe they were near me.

Q.—At the time the Resident was about to mount, what men were present, and how many do you suppose there were?

A.—There is no objection to servants of Thakoors and state Mootsudees, and respectfully-dressed men from the bazar, coming as far as the Surdkee Deorhee. There is no order forbidding the approach of men with swords, but matchlocks and spears are forbidden. No one asks questions and almost any one may approach.

Q.—On that day where was your brother?

A.—According to custom he had remained inside when I came out with the Sahib, for the Sardars had not taken leave within, of the Ma'ee.

Q.—Did the Rawul first hear what had happened from your mouth?

A.—I sent no one to give intelligence but reported myself. I don't know whether any other person communicated the intelligence, but believe that I first gave it, as the Rawul on hearing it from me was seized with astonishment.

Q.—Could your brother, hearing the intelligence from any Hurkaru, have communicated it to the Rawul?

A.—My brother will not have given the intelligence, for it is the office of the Darogha of Hurkaru to go within.

Q.—When Mr. Blake was outside the Surdkee Deorhee, (did any other Thakoor come out?)

A.—I saw no Thakoor except Indur Singh.

Q.—After the Bura Sahib had been taken away wounded, did any Thakoor come out and speak with Mr. Blake?

A.—As far as my eyes saw, no Thakoor came out of the Deorhee, or talked with Mr. Blake.

Q.—Where stood you, when you sent a Chobdar to gain intelligence?

A.—I stood on the Chubootra until the Chobdar returned.

Q.—Did you not see the Resident when he was being carried away in a tonjan.

A.—I saw nothing.

Q.—You say you saw a Sahib down between the elephant and the Chumbelee tree, did you not recognise him, and did you not see any other Sahib?

A.—I did not recognise him, neither did I see any other Sahib.

Q.—You saw a Sahib when he was down; how came you not to see him when he stood up?

A.—Perhaps my face may have been turned in another direction, or I may have been speaking to some one, on which account I may not have seen the Sahib when he stood up, or the Chubootra, he had but when he mounted and went away in a tonjan. I learned what had happened from the Chobdar's report.

Q.—When you turned and looked where was Mr. Blake and what was he doing?

A.—I saw him lying on the ground between the elephant and the Chumbelee tree, and from the Chobdar, I learned that Mr. Blake held down the assassin, and that the Bura Sahib had mounted a tonjan and gone away.

Q.—Did you see any of the Rawul's sons talking with Mr. Blake?

A.—I saw no Thakoor conversing with Mr. Blake, except Indur Singh, from the beginning to the end of the business. I saw no one of the Rawul's sons. When I went in I said to the Thakoors, do two things. Come to the Deorhee, and for protection send some Sirdar with the Sahib to the Bagh. The Rawul answered Dhabhee Gunga Bishu has received orders.

REMARKS.

The Testimony of Futih Singh, and the evidence given by the Dhaluet and Chobdars, respecting the conduct of the Darogha at the Deorhee, on the morning of 4th of June, when considered with reference to the proof afforded by many passages in the Deosa and Agra letter, of the connection of the prisoner with the conspirators, appear fully to justify the Court in their finding and sentence.

2. Futih Singh has shown himself from first to last, so firm and correct a witness, unvarying in the tenor of his statements, and inclined neither to exaggerate nor come short of the truth; and this spontaneously, and naturally, for not the slightest hint has ever been given to him, that he might possibly save himself by criminalizing others, or by confessing all he knows—that it would be difficult to find sufficient reason for rejecting his statement relative to the threat held out to him by the prisoner, when the latter came to him, early in the morning of the 5th of June.

3. It would seem that Moonna Lal went twice to Futih Singh before the latter quitted the precincts of the Deorhee on the morning in question. The prisoner has not denied, in his address to the Court, that the first visit was made, although Futih Singh had stated in the presence of Futih Ram Dhabhee, that the Darogha came to him, and spoke the words he had recited, several ghurees before he saw the Dhabhees. Hafiz Budrooddeen Subadar, witness for the defence, may or may not have been in the way when the Darogha first went to Futih Siegh, for it was not found possible to fix the precise time at which the words quoted by him, as proceeding from the prisoner, were spoken; but the spirit of an observation made in the dialect of Rajwara might easily have been misunderstood by the Subadar, a young Ramporee Moosulman, supposing him to have been ever so attentive to what was going on; and it may be noticed, that the purport of the latter part of the speech attributed by him to the prisoner, according to his comprehension of what was said—"now wait to see whom he implicates," is not entirely at variance with that of the words cited by Futh Singh. Such a remark, on the supposition that nothing more pointed was said, did not at all correspond with the situation of the prisoner; who, as Darogha of the Deorhee, immediately in front of which the atrocious and extraordinary outrage had occurred, was peculiarly bound to make every possible exertion to develop the source of the crime committed. It would seem, indeed, to indicate a guilty conscience, in a less forcible degree only, than the thread which has been imputed to him.

The Dhaluet and Chobdars ought not to have been mistaken upon the points to which they deposed, in the behaviour of the Darogha at the Deorhee, on the morning of the 4th of June, and they showed no inclination, before the Court, to amplify, insinuate or suggest inference; nor did they appear to be other than plain, honest witnesses, on the few facts to which they deposed.

The former depositions of the prisoner were read in Court without comment; a circumstance altogether to his advantage, as the inconsistencies and misrepresentations contained in those statements, originally served to strengthen considerably the suspicion against him, which has previously existed on more uncertain grounds.

TRIAL OF DUYA RAM BHUTTACHARJ.

Natnee ka Bagh, Thursday, 8th September, 1836.

Duya Ram Bhuttacharj prisoner, is brought in, and arraigned on the following charge:—

Having aided and abetted a conspiracy to effect by violent means a change in the administration of the Government of Juepoor; the atrocious outrages perpetrated in the city of Juepoor on the 4th of June 1835, having been caused directly by, and in fulfilment of, an attempt on the part of the conspirators to carry their designs into execution.

Note No. 35 of Agra Papers is produced.

Translation of Note 35, in the handwriting of Duya Ram Bhuttacharj.

Read my blessing. Your letter has come and I have perused its contents. Who is there that does not look to his own interests? The way to effect both works is in progress of completion, and you may be at ease with respect to both the Raj and me. The actors will now soon be at work, and I feel assured that you will have no reason to complain, but the consummation depends upon the pleasure of Huri (Vishnoo) Date Soodi 9th 1891, (the month is not given).

The year begins either with the month Chuet or on the 2nd Bha-don Soodi, according to the latter mode of computation, which is most frequently used, the month June was included in 1891.

The prisoner declares that the note in question was not written by him, and that he knows nothing of it: his pursuits and occupations have always been of a studious nature, and he has never interfered on any occasion in political matters.

Several letters written by the prisoner to Roopa

Bularrn some years ago, are looked at, and the handwriting of these is compared with that of the note. The Court give their opinion that the letters and note must have been written by the same individual; but the prisoner, taking up the letters, declares that he remembers well having employed one Champa Lal Buneea to write them. The some years since dead. He died Buneea is ago.

This assertion is useless, as there are many papers in his handwriting, which, as acknowledged by Hookum Chund, is very well known at Juepoor.

Extract from the examination of Hookum Chund relative to this note is read.

Note No. 17 of Deosa Papers shown.

All knowledge of it is denied by the prisoner.

Several passages in which Buttacharj is mentioned, are read from the Deosa and Agra Papers.

The prisoner says that he is quite ignorant of the matters referred to in connection with his name, and is altogether at a loss to conjecture why mention of him in those letters should have been made.

The case for the prosecution is concluded, and the prisoner contents himself with repeating his former details.

VERDICT OF THE COURT.

From the evidence afforded by his autographical note, the handwriting of which plainly shows who was the writer, and the tenor of the allusions to him found in various parts of the Deosa and Agra Papers, the Court are satisfied of the guilt of the prisoner Duya Ram Bhuttacharj; but, in consideration of his great age and bodily infirmities, they are induced to award to him the mitigated sentence of banishment from the city and territories of Juepoor.

Summary of the trial of Duya Ram Bhuttacharj being concluded, Phool Khan prisoner is brought into Court and arraigned on the following charge:—

Charge preferred against Phool Khan Sipahes.

Having joined in and aided an assault made upon Mr. Blake, Assistant Political Agent, in the city of Juepoor, on the morning of the 4th of June 1835, by which that Gentleman was atrociously maltreated, and was eventually murdered upon the premises of the Temple of Poorohit Manjee Das, where he had sought refuge from the attacks of his pursuers.

The witnesses for the prosecution were Nujeeb Khan, Unwur Khan and Mohummd Khan Sipahes, who were on duty with Phool Khan and Hidayut Khan at the house of Sivu Lal Sahoo; the whole party being entirely under the orders of the Sahoo with respect to the services they were to perform. Phool Khan had acknowledged in his original examination that he quitted Sivu Lal's house about the same time that Hidayut Khan did, but declared that he went to the Deorhee, in the course of his duty, to accompany Sivu Lal, when he came home; and that he took no part whatever in the tumult in the city, and never joined the mob. Hidayut Khan had stated that he saw the prisoner near the elephant of the late Mr. Blake, with his sword drawn in his hand; but that he did not see him make use of the sword.

The testimony given in Court does not go to establish the fact of the prisoner having been concerned in the assault on Mr. Blake, or having taken any share in the tumult which was raised in the city, and there is no further evidence procurable; therefore, as the Court cannot set much value upon the former unsupported assertion of the criminal Hidayut Khan, they acquit the prisoner.

The judgement of acquittal is duly recorded and signed by the Members of the Court.

SUMMARY OF THE TRIAL OF KESUREE SINGH SHEKHAWUT.

Natanes ka Bugh, Mouday, 12th September, 1836.

Kesuree Singh Shekhawut, prisoner, is arraigned on the subjoined charges.

First.—Having participated in the assault made upon the late Mr. M. Blake, Assistant Political Agent, upon the premises attached to the Mundur of Manjee Das in the City of Juepoor, on the 4th of June 1835; by which that Gentleman and a Chuprasee, named Lukshmun, lost their lives.

Second.—Having, on the day above designated, in an unwarrantable and illegal manner, possessed himself of an unkoos and sword, upon the premises of the Mundur aforespecified, which had been in the hands of the late Mr. M. Blake, or his servants Lukshmun and Daool Khan.

First Witness.—Jeevun Bhaatee, Jumadar on the Police establishment of Juepoor, called in, deposes:—When a hurkaru came from the direction of the Deorhee and reported to Taro Chund Naib, that Mr. Blake was killed, he desired me to go and ascertain what had occurred. I went to the porch of the Mundur of Manjee Das Poorohit; there were many people collected about it, and upon the premises of the Mundur; among them were several Rajhukurars. To my enquiry as to what had taken place, I was told that Kesuree Singh had carried away an unkoos and sword. I sent a hurkaru to call Kesuree Singh, who came, bringing with him the unkoos and sword. On my asking him in what way he became possessed of the two articles, he said, that he had come to his home for the purpose of taking his meal, when hearing a disturbance, with many outcries, in the vicinity of the Mundur, he came there, found the unkoos and sword upon the ground and took them up. I then called one Ram Doyal Swamee, who lodged upon the Mundur premises, and questioned him as to what he had seen during the tumult, and who were engaged in it. He told me that he had only witnessed the removal of the body of Mr. Blake after his death, by Runjeet Singh of Aukera. It was about noon that I visited the Mundur.

Witness is questioned by the Court, but no further information can be extracted from him. It is pointed out to him, that if he ascertained nothing more than what he has stated, he could not have exerted himself in the way he was bound to do in the fulfilment of his duty, yet he cannot, or will not, give any further particulars.

Second Witness.—Ram Doyal Swamee, mendicant, residing upon the premises of the Mundur of Manjee Das, deposes:—I was sitting in one of the chhutrees over the doorway of the Mundur, when the throwing of stones in the direction of the Temple commenced and I had to find shelter for my own person. A vast crowd of people rushed within the precincts of the Mundur, and being alarmed, I remained out of sight until the tumult subsided; when looking about, I saw Runjeet Singh of Aukera dragging away the body of the Gentleman. Jeevun Singh came to the Mundur one or two ghurees after this, and asked me what I had seen, when I told him that I had seen Runjeet Singh act as I have here stated. Jeevun Singh sent for Kesuree Singh, who brought an unkoos and sword with him. I never saw Kesuree Singh before that time, and do not know when he entered the Mundur premises, or when he took up the unkoos and sword. I saw the Gentleman upon his elephant as he was approaching, but I did not see him enter the Mundur building; nor did I see him again, at all, until after his death. I did not, to the best of my knowledge, see Kesuree Singh among the courts and buildings attached to the Mundur.

Witness is told, that according to his original deposition, recorded about fifteen months since, Kesuree Singh was engaged in the attack made upon Mr. Blake within the precincts of the Mundur out-buildings; and asked how he can reconcile that statement with his present evidence; in which he says that he did not see Kesuree Singh there. Replies, that there must have been a mistake in the recording of his former testimony, as he is certain that he only saw Runjeet Singh, and could not have named any other individual as having been seen by him upon the premises of the Mundur. There is no further evidence for the prosecution. The prisoner in his defence states:—At the time that I arrived upon the Mundur premises, the Gentleman was lying dead in the small court where he had been killed. I saw an unkoos and a sword upon the ground, when it entered my mind that I would take them up, and I did so, "shabashes ke waste"—(in order to obtain distinction). On returning to the Jhalejee ka Nohra, in which I lodge, the unkoos and sword were put down by me where they might have been seen by any one; and when Jeevun Singh called me, I brought them to him immediately.

By the Court. Can you call any witness as to the precise time of your going to the Mundur, how long you remained upon the premises, what you did there, and when you carried off the unkoos and sword to the Nohra?

A.—I have named no one as my witness; whom should I now name to give evidence for me?

VERDICT OF THE COURT.

There is no proof that prisoner Kesuree Singh Shekhawut was engaged in the assault directed against Mr. Blake upon the premises of the Mundur of Manjee Das; but as he has not accounted satisfactorily for having gone to the place at all, or for having taken up and carried to his home the unkoos and sword, the Court find him guilty of the second charge, or of having possessed himself of these articles in an unwarrantable and criminal manner, and sentence him to two years imprisonment, in irons, with hard labor.

REMARKS.

It is manifest, either that the first witness knows much more than he would disclose before the Court, or that he grossly neglected his duty, when deputed to the Mundur, as he himself states, to ascertain the particulars of events which had occurred there; and the most probable conjecture by far, appears to be, that he had it in his power to give a more efficient and satisfactory deposition on this trial than he has done.

The inconsistency of Ram Doyal Swamee's present evidence with his former deposition, may, perhaps, be accounted for in the following manner. At the time that his former testimony was given, Kesuree Singh had been recently apprehended, on the strongest suspicion, as was generally thought, of being immediately concerned in the death of Mr. Blake and his Chuprasee, and Ram Doyal may have looked upon him as a doomed man, and therefore thought there could be no mischief done, that no life would be lost, as the consequence of his name being mentioned, whether on suspicion only, or from a certain knowledge of the way in which he had acted; but on the trial the conviction of the prisoner depended in great measure upon the character of the evidence borne by this witness, a circumstance of which he must have been perfectly aware. Whether he has acted conscientiously in not criminating the prisoner when called on to give his final, solemn testimony, cannot but be considered a doubtful question.

There was certainly no evidence adduced in the course of the trial on which the prisoner could have been convicted of the first charge preferred against him, but under the circumstances of the case, the penalty awarded upon the second charge may be deemed almost inadequate. The demeanour and apparent simplicity of the prisoner operated, probably, in his favor with the Court.

TRIAL OF MEER KHAN SIPAHEE AND, HOOKUMA BRAHMUN, SERVANT, BOTH ATTACHED TO SIVU LAL SAHOO, DEPOSED AND ON THE 4TH OF JUNE 1835—12TH SEPTEMBER 1836.

Charge preferred against Meer Khan Sipahce and Hookuma Brahmun.

Having promoted and abetted an assault made upon the person of the late Mr. Martin Blake in the city of Juepoor on the morning of the 4th of June 1835, which ended in the death of that Gentleman and his attendant Lukshmun Chuprasee.

Both the prisoners declare they are innocent.

First Witness.—Runjeet Singh Dufadar, who was stationed at the Poorbeean ka Durwaza (gateway) between Sardkee Deorhee and Tripoleea—on the 4th June 1835—deposes—When Mr. Martin Blake passed out upon his elephant on the morning of the 4th of June, followed soon afterwards by the khat upon which was the prisoner Futhi Singh, one or two Suwars and a Bulumburdar (man bearing a spear) who was calling out to the people in front to go on one side, I was standing close to the Poorbeean gateway, and several bearers, servants of Rao Jeewun Singh, were near me. The Bulumburdar told Meer Khan Sipahce, who was standing in advance, to fall back, when Meer Khan raising his sword in its scabbard, exclaimed—Why should we get out of the way? A little further on, in the direction of the Tripoleea, Hookuma Brahmun, raising his voice, called out—Ram Singh* ka haram-khor jane nuheen pawe (don't let the enemy of Ram Singh get away). I saw and heard what I have stated with my own eyes and ears. Hookuma stood at the place where wood is stored, very near the Poorbeean gateway, and from that point, and at that time, the tumult commenced and stones were thrown. Hookuma went on with the crowd, but Meer Khan staid half a ghuree where he was; and in the mean time, Juwahir Singh, son of Chmun Singh, came to the gateway, accompanied by about two hundred armed men. On arriving, Juwahir Singh called out, repeatedly—Open the gate, or I will have it broken to pieces. When Hookuma uttered the words—Ram Singh ka haram-khor jane nuheen pawe,—the elephant, khat, Suwars and others were all progressing, but I cannot take upon me to say to whom he alluded.

* Ram Singh is the name of the infant Raja, and such words would be used to cause excitement.

Many questions are put to witness by the Court, and Meer Khan prisoner declares that he was not present at the time alluded to.

Second Witness.—Bhuwanee Kuher, servant of Rao Jeewun Singh, deposes—I saw this man (Meer Khan Sipahce prisoner) standing near the Poorbeean ka Deorhee (gateway,) on the morning of the 4th of June, when Mr. Blake, followed by a prisoner bound upon a khat, was proceeding from the Sardkee Deorhee towards the Tripoleea. I am not acquainted with his name. I did not hear him say any thing, and did not notice that he raised his sword. I do not recognize Hookuma prisoner, and can say nothing about him. There was an outcry raised of, aha! aha! marlo! marlo! and I was much alarmed, as were others who stood near me. I can't aver the prisoner did not say any thing, or that he did not raise his sword, as I was not watching him; but I am sure he was present.

Third Witness.—Mungul Singh Buss, Sipahce, who was stationed at the Poorbeean ka Deorhee, deposes—When Mr. Martin Blake quitted the Deorhee, on the 4th of June, followed by a Bulumburdar who called out to the people standing in the way to fall back, the prisoner Meer Khan grasping his sword by the handle, and stepping back one or two paces, said,—“fall back, indeed! I will not stir.”

Fourth Witness.—Mungul Deekshit Sipahce, who was at the Poorbeean ka Deorhee, deposes—I heard a noise of people, and immediately ran to my Deorhee from a short distance; a Gentleman upon an elephant, and a khat upon which was a prisoner, were passing through, and there was a Bulumburdar calling out to the people to clear the road; among the rest he told me to go aside, which I did. Meer Khan was standing upon the road, and the Bulumburdar called out to him to mare aside, upon which he put his hand upon his sword and said—“shall I go back at this time! No; I will not do so.” On receiving this answer, the Bulumburdar turned out of the way to avoid the prisoner, and went on. This is what I saw and heard, Runjeet Singh was standing nearer to the prisoner than me, and must have seen as much as I did. I did not notice Hookuma in the crowd.

The foregoing witnesses have been examined by the Court, to ascertain the correctness of their statements; the two prisoners have merely denied that they had any thing to do with the disturbance of the 4th of June.

The prosecution closes, and the prisoners are asked what they have to say in their defence.

Meer Khan declares, that he was not at the Deorhee on the day that the tumult occurred, and that there are several persons, whom he names, as being cognizant of his having remained at the house of Sivu Lal during the whole of the morning, but those individuals are not now at Juepoor to depose in his favor.

Hookuma states, that at the time to which reference has been made by the witnesses, he was at the house of Sivu Lal, as Juet Ram*, Mahunjee, who is Juet Ram*, Mahunjee, Sivu Sivu Lal's brother, has absconded. Sivu Lal's wife, and others, servants of Sivu Lal, could certify, since his being at home then was well known to them.

The prisoners retire.

VERDICT OF THE COURT.

From the evidence which has been adduced, the Court are of opinion that the following points have been satisfactorily established, namely, that on the morning of the 4th of June, 1835, in the vicinity of the Poorbeean ka Deorhee, Meer Kham Sipahce did make some demonstration his with sheathed sword, and at the same time, made use of intimidating language, when desired to move out of the way by a servant belonging to the British Agency; and that Hookuma Brahmun, at the same place and about the same time, as Mr. Black, followed at a short distance by a prisoner upon a khat, was passing along, and exclaim,—“Ram Singh ka haram-khor Jane nuheen pawe,”—his object in uttering which words he has not attempted to explain, thereby necessarily leaving it to be inferred that it was of a highly criminal nature. The Court do accordingly find the two prisoners guilty to the foregoing extent, and sentence them, severally—Meer Khan to be dismissed the service of the Juepooree Raj and declared unworthy of future employment, and Hookuma to be imprisoned in irons for the space of five years.

REMARKS.

There was no evidence before the Court from which it could be concluded satisfactorily that Meer Kham was acquainted with the plot to raise a tumult in the City of Juepoor and direct its action against the Officers of the British Agency; yet, as the overt act performed by him, although quite indefensible with reference to the time at which it occurred, was of a trivial and temporary nature, and the words spoken by him whatever they were, might no doubt be variously interpreted, the very gist of the charge depended upon a correct interpretation of his motives. The Bulumburdar spoken of by the witnesses, is not now present, and it is not exactly known who was the individual; but he must have been one among several Chuprasees and Hurkarus who quitted Juepoor shortly after the occurrences of the 4th of June.

The defensive alibi pleaded by the prisoners was ill calculated to exonerate them and procure an acquittal. Meer Khan was proved by the testimony of four witnesses to have been present, and Hookuma, by virtue of his situation as cup-bearer, was bound to accompany his master Sivu Lal with drinking-water, whenever the latter went abroad; for neglecting which duty on the particular day in question he gave no reason whatever.

As Runjeet Singh Dufadar appeared to be in every respect a credible witness, it may be safely assumed that the Court are correct in their finding upon the case of Hookuma Brahmun, and in the sentence they have passed on this prisoner.

SUMMARY OF THE TRIAL OF GYAN CHUND BUGURO AND RAJOO LAL CHUODHURIE.

Notance-ka-bagh—13th September, 1836.

Prisoners Gyan Chund Buguro and Rajoo Lal Chuodhuree are arraigned upon the following charge:

That they participated in the counsels of the conspirators Deewan Umur Chund and others, aiding and abetting in a design to effect by violent means a change in the administration of the Government of Juepoor, which resulted in the atrocious acts of bloodshed perpetrated in the city of Juepoor on the 4th of June 1835, in pursuance of the plans and contrivances of the conspirators.

Depositions of Ram Lal Deamu Brahmun as recorded in the trial of Deewan Umur Chund, Sivu Lal and Manik Chund Bhaoosa are read.

The prisoners declare that they were not at the meeting in the Chatsoo Mundur alluded to in the depositions, and know nothing of the alleged consultation or the occasion.

First Witness.—Ram Lal Deamu Brahmun is called into Court, and questioned with reference to his former evidence, his acquaintance with the persons of the two prisoners, and the certainty of his knowledge that they were among those who retired for the purpose of conferring about the measures that should be adopted by their party. He points them out individually by name, describes how he came to know them, and asserts in the most positive terms, that they were at the conference in the Chatsoo Mundur to which he has deposed: that it is quite impossible he can have made any mistake as to that circumstance.

Second Witness.—Ram Lal witness retires, and Futh Singh is called in: states the occurrences of the night of the 3d June 1835, at the Mundur of Deewan Umur Chund, as given in his former depositions. Points out the two prisoners in Court by their proper names, and avers that they were both present in the meeting at the Deewan's Mundur, describing how they sat, relatively to Deewan Umur Chund and Sivu Lal, the lamp that was burning, and the reader of the Shastru. There was both moonlight and the light of the lamp, by which to distinguish objects, and he is most positive that he saw and recognized the two prisoners in the party collected.

Gyan Chund and Rajoo Lal deny that they were at the Mundur, and ask witness two or three questions as to locality, which he answers promptly.

Futh Singh withdraws.

Various passages in the Deosa and Agra Letters relating to the four prisoners, Deewan Umur Chund, Sivu Lal Sahoo, Gyan Chund Buguro and Rajoo Lal Chuodhuree—with the copy of a petition to the British Government in the name of the four, fabricated in the house of Hookum Chund and Jothia Ram at Agra, are read.

Extract from No. 28 of Agra Letters in handwriting of Mungea Poorohit.

Several of the passages read in Court are as follows:—
Receive my blessing. Intelligence has been received from Juepoor, that on the 13th Soodi Srawun (8th July) So ——— (meant for Sivu Lal Sahoo) U ——— Dee ——— Umur Chund Deewan), Gya ——— (Gyanjee Buguro), Rajoo ——— (Rajoo Lal Chuodhuree) these four individuals were placed in confinement, and guards were quartered at their houses. In the afternoon Tha ——— (the Thakoor or Rawul) assembled every one, and sending for the abovementioned persons, told them through Moonna Lal, that they were all four prisoners, that such was the order of the Majee. Having said this he confined them, whether with or without an order to that effect he knows, who is there to ask her (the Majee). I am not aware that he has consulted the Sahib (Agent to the Governor-General), but it is likely that he has.

Extract from No. 13 of Agra Letters in the handwriting of Mungea Poorohit

Lukshmun Singh (Thakoor of Choumoon, son of the Rawul), came to the Baraduree, and sending for Gyanjee and Kajoo Lal,* said to them,

* Two of the associates of Deewan Umur Chund, the prisoners under trial. "Record that you caused the Sahib to be attacked, or take leave of your families, for you shall be put to death." They answered, "We were not privy to the assault, therefore why should we record such a thing"

No. 6 of Agra Letters by Gyan Chund, son of Deewan Umur Chund

Lukshmun Singh says if the time of our end is approaching we will put to death the four Sravugees (Deewan Umur Chund, &c.) who are in confinement, before dying ourselves. Let it not happen that he shall have it in his power to put an end to these persons without our being able to prevent it: devise some sure means in this matter.

No. 3 of Deosa Letters, by Hookum Chund.

I have sent the paper to Calcutta in my own name: in it was stated the cause of these four (Deewan Umur Chund, &c. who are in confinement.)

No. 5 of Deosa Letters, written at Juepoor.

Regarding the four prisoners, he (the Rawul) has purported reporting to the Sudur, that the Executive Officer (the Rawul himself) is not guilty, and that the Bunees (the Sravugees Bunees) are at the bottom of the affair; that this is proved, and these people ought to be punished. Matters are in progress for writing according to the above tenor, and should the report go, then there are these four, and the two bearing the same name (probably Buxshee Moonna Lal and Darogah Moonna Lal), whose fate will be decided. We shall see what will be their end; but may God avert it! They (the Agent to the Governor-General and the Rawul) have made up their minds, as I have stated. Delay may be the cause of their (Deewan Umur Chund, &c.) destruction, and then, what can be done when you shall stand alone?

No. 12 of Deosa Letters, copy of Khurestu to the British Government.

Sivu Lal, Deewan Umur Chund, Gyan Chund and Rajoo Lal, by caste Bunees, and highly respectable, who were public servants holding high appointments, these individuals, on account of an ancient grudge, he has falsely accused and confined, although they are so scrupulous in their conduct that, to the best of their power, they even avoid treading upon and giving pain to ants and flies when they move about—with how little reason therefore can they be thought capable of, or abetting in, any way, such a transaction.

No. 14 of Deosa Letters by Hookum Chund.

For all the others I have written Urzees, in which there was no difficulty. I wrote them for those (Deewan Umur Chund and the other three) who are in confinement.

The prisoners assert their innocence, and deny all knowledge of every thing that has been imputed to them, or of the motives which prompted the Sunghees to notice them in their letters. Being requested to commit to writing a summary of what they wish to say in their defence, they withdraw for that purpose, and on returning present the following addresses, which are read :—

Address of Gyan Chund Buguro Sravugee.

Ram Lal Brahmun has deposed, that on the day that Tun Sagur Juti was ill-used, he saw Umur Chund, Sivu Lal, Rajoo Lal and Gyan Chund in consultation; to this I answer, that if I had any thing to do with the consultation in question, or if I went to the Chatsoo Mundur during that day and night, then deem me a guilty person. As to what Futih Singh has stated, that he saw the four above named individuals in the Mundur of Umur Chundjee; if I have visited the Mundur of that person within the space of two years, in that case, likewise, pronounce me a guilty man: and if I have written a single letter or note to Sunghjee since he quitted the City of Juepoor, act towards me as you may judge proper.

Address of Rajoo Lal Chuodhuree.

Ram Lal Brahmun has stated that he saw me with others in the Chatsoo Mundur on the night of the day that Tun Sagur Juti was disgraced: I am not acquainted with Ram Lal, and I never visited the Chatsoo Mundur for the purpose of worshipping, between the 1st Chuet Budi and the 13th of Usarh Soodi, and I never was party to any consultation among the Members of the Chatsoo Mundur Council, or with Deewan Umur Chund and others. In case of the Members of the Mundur-committee, or those who are said to have been present by Ram Lal, confirming his deposition, then consider me guilty.

Futih Singh has deposed to having seen me in the Mundur of Deewan Umur Chund; I do not know this man, and for the last five or ten years, I have not even seen the Mundur of the Deewan, much less have I performed worship there; nor have I conferred with the Deewan, or entered his dwelling house, during the same period.

Respecting the petition dispatched from Agra, I know nothing about it: and since the day that Sunghjee quitted the Pursuram-duwara, some short time after he left the City, if I have corresponded with Deosa or Agra, by letter or through servants, then deem me guilty. Since the day that Rawuljee sent for me, and gave me assurances of protection, I have waited upon him on business connected with my situation of revenue farmer, but I have entered into the discussion of public affairs with no one at any time.

I have been in confinement for fourteen or fifteen months past, but I now hope for relief from you who are celebrated for power and justice.

The prisoners having nothing further to urge, retire, and the Court is closed.

FINDING AND SENTENCE OF THE COURT.

On a full consideration of all the evidence which has been submitted, the Court are of opinion that the prisoners are guilty of the charge exhibited against them; but as, from various circumstances, they have come to the conclusion that Deewan Umur Chund and Sivu Lal Sahoo were the immediate leaders and directors of the conspiracy at Juepoor, in subordination to whom others acted, they are induced to award to Gyan Chund Buguro, and Rajoo Lal Chuodhuree the mitigated sentence of imprisonment for the term of twelve years—the former in consideration of his age (about 55) and apparent bodily infirmities, without irons; the latter, Rajoo Lal, with iron shackles similar to those in which he has been tried,

REMARKS.

When the evidence adduced on this trial is considered in reference to its bearing and character, as connected with the proceedings of former trials, and with the nature of the defence made by the prisoners, it appears to be irresistibly strong; for, had it really been the case that Gyan Chund and Rajoo Lal did not attend the meeting of Sravugees which took place at the Chatsoo Mundur, or were not at the Mundur of Deewan Umur Chund on the night of the 3d of June, can it be doubted that at the time Deewan Umur Chund, Sivu Lal and Manik Chund were arraigned, every effort would have been made to establish this fact, and thereby give a shock to the credibility of the depositions of Ram Lal and Futih Singh, and disturb, as much as possible, some portions of the foundation of that and subsequent prosecutions.

Although the statement of Ram Lal was never entirely rejected, yet it did seem formerly to stand in need of some corroborating circumstances, beyond those which were then accessible, to render it worthy of full belief; the first and last of the late trials, not to mention the allusion to it in the Deosa and Agra letters, have supplied as much as could be reasonably desired in this respect, and served to confirm satisfactorily the veracity of the witness to the scene in the Chatsoo Mundur.

With reference to the Mundur of Deewan Umur Chund, and Futih Singh's party of soldiers there quartered, it may be observed that the pretext used for keeping and armed men at that place was unsupported by the general aspect of affairs at Juepoor, where there was no more risk of Juen Temples being wantonly violated in the month of May 1835, than there might be of Churches being treated in a similar manner in Calcutta.

APPENDIX.

No. 1.—(In the handwriting of Jotha Ram)—“Kam kur lejeeo, dheel mut kejeeo”—Perform the work, and be not be negligent.

Accept my salutation. Your letter and that of Budarunjee (Roopa) reached me, and I have read the contents.

I have settled every thing in Calcutta; now do you act according to what you have devised there (where you are or at Juepoor). You have deliberated much, but as yet have done nothing. From the execution of your design, we shall obtain the highest benefit. He (there is good reason to believe, the Rawul is alluded to) has been the sole cause of our ruin. You have discernment, and there is no occasion to say more—Sreejee knows all. I have apprised the Budarunjee: get whatever you want from her. Date, the present hour.

No. 2.—Statement made by Deewan Umur Chund, at the British Residency, in the presence of Captains Thoresby and Laddow and Lieutenant Conolly, on the 15th of September, 1835.—Usq, Budi 8th 1892.

Being shewn the letter apparently superscribed by Jotha Ram, which was found among his papers, the Deewan denied all knowledge of it. He admitted that the writing at the top of the letter was like Jotha Ram's hand, but would not say that it was his. Being asked how he could account for the letter being among his papers, the Deewan said he had heard that some time back, the Rawul's Hurkarus, posted in the ghat, had intercepted several letters written by Jotha Ram, that this might be one of them, and that some enemy might have put it among his papers. Being asked to whom it was likely that such a letter would be addressed, he answered that he could not say. When asked how long it was since Manik Chund had left his service, the Deewan said he could not tell without examining his papers.

Q.—Where are your papers?

A.—The Rawul has them.

Q.—In whose care did you leave them?

A.—With Ondue Ram Mootsuddee.

Q.—What did he do with them?

A.—He gave them to Cheetar Meena, who gave them to a Meena woman. I hear they were found in her hut.

No. 3.—Extract from Diary of Lieutenant Conolly, Assistant to the Agent of the Governor-General, Monday, 19th October, 1835.

This afternoon Hookum Chund said that his confidential servant Ubhu, Chund, had, on Saturday, observed two of the Raj deputies read a paper which they would not show to the third, but hastily threw it into the heap of unimportant papers. He said he conceived they had so done, because the letter alluded to was calculated to bring suspicion on their party and to clear his.

"Your objection should have been made when the paper was put aside? Ubbue Chund only told me what he had observed on Saturday night, and on Sunday there was 'no kuchery.'" "At any rate it does not signify; the paper, whatever may be its contents, has been put among the documents which you may take away when you choose." After kuchery, Hookum Chund begged an interview, and returned to this point, saying that it was but justice to bring forward papers calculated to prove him innocent, as well as those which might be thought to tell against him or his friends; that if I let the deputies put aside merely what they chose, they would take a few words here, and a few there, and make of his writings any meanings but the true ones. To save discussion, and to prevent his conceiving himself to be illiberally treated, I replied that if he thought his letter would do him service, and his servant could point it out, it should be sent to Juepoor with an explanatory note.

Tuesday, 20th.—Scribhatdar duly recorded Hookum Chund's satisfaction at his examination of seals and persons. Papers signed, examined and separated from 10 till 4. On the evening of the 19th one of the Agra Pundits suddenly died, in consequence the other did not attend this day, but his absence caused no interruption of business. Hookum Chund's servant, Ubbue Chund, searched among the unimportant papers, and produced the letter marked No. 27. I asked the Sungheejee what document was this, and he said that it was a letter written by him to Mangeea Poorahit, in answer to one which the letter wrote to him on the night of the 4th June, or on the following morning, when a Suwar had come to Deosa to call away the irregular cavalry stationed there. The Raj deputies declared that the letter produced from the waste papers was not the one which they had been seen to read on Saturday, and exhibited as that document the paper marked 58. (a most indecent document written by Jotha Ram to the late Majee) which, they said, they proposed throwing aside on account of its indecency.

No. 4.—Extract from the Diary of Lieutenant Conolly, Assistant to the Agent of the Governor-General Agra, Tuesday 27th October, 1835.

This afternoon, a dispute arose about the enclosed note, numbered 31. Before me lay a bag, from which I kept extracting papers, signing them, and pushing them past me to Jutun Singh and the two Mootsuddes who were seated at the able, as usual, on my right. While I was thus busied, a note was, as I conceived, handed back for signature; I endorsed it, and presently heard Hookum Chund objecting to its being put into the bag of "important documents," and saying that it was a forgery of the deputies which they had induced me to sign. I remarked that as he had searched all the Raj servants before the commencement of the day's work, I did not see grounds for his suspicion; to which he replied, that as some of the Raj party had gone out during the day to drink water, the note might have been brought in after the usual search. This assertion led to wrangling, which I stopped by saying that I would send the note and all parties' statements regarding it, to higher authority.

All the papers that the Sahib took out this day were old papers of five or seven years ago. Not one letter of Sumbuts 1891-2 turned up. At the time of examination, Lala Seeta Ram gave a note to Jutun Singh, who sat next the Sahib, saying—"on this also get the Sahib's signature; it has not been signed"—so the Sahib endorsed it when Lala Seeta Ram said—"put it into the bag" (of important papers, which always lay on the table during examination). At the time of his (first) speaking I objected, saying, "the signature was on all other papers why are you getting that signed? I doubt it is a forgery." And after the search, these men (the Raj servants) went out of the room into the Bungelow to drink water, and the Hurkaru twice went and returned.

Koonwur Jutun Singh, Lala Seeta Ram and Chutoor Bhooj, wrote—"We were as usual searched by the Serishtadar, and afterwards sat down to the examination of papers. The Sahib kept signing papers and pushing them towards us. Having signed three papers, he put them at once towards us; with them came the note in question. Chutoor Bhooj, taking it in his hand, said—"the Sahib's signature is on the other papers, but not on this." Then Jutun Singh taking the note and looking at it, said to the Sahib—"This is not signed; sign it." Then the Sahib signed it. We did not go out of the room to drink water; we drank in the room.

I often found two, three or more papers rolled together, when I used to make them over to the readers with the remark—"these were together, perhaps they are connected with each other."

N. B.—Jutun Singh makes a separate note, that, after the dispute, he left the room at my call, and returned with me. This is true.

Mewa Ram, the Agra Pundit, wrote as witness—"While a bag of old papers was being examined, Lala Seeta Ram and Jutun Singh, handed a paper to the Sahib, saying, that it was unendorsed; so the Sahib signed it. Jutun Singh said it was dated Sumbut 1891, and showed it me; I said it was not of 1891, it has been altered from 1892. Then Sunghee Hookum Chund objected, saying—he had doubts of this note. The Sahib Seeta Ram went to the lintel of the Bungala, and Jutun Singh went out once to the Sahib. A second time the Sahib called Jutun Singh, and he went and returned with the Sahib. Jutun Singh asked the (Raj) news hurkaru if there was any water man in waiting; he went out to see for a water-man. Again he went out to call the waterman."

* Mewa Ram explained that he meant the lintel of the door of the room in which we sat; this was nearly opposite to him, leading to the centre of the Bungala.

Jue Kishn, Raj news hurkaru, wrote—"Jutun Singh told me to call a water-man if one had come. I went to the outside of the Bungala (the Veranda) where Junglee Singh Chuprasee, (a Chuprasee of Mr. Mansel's, appointed to wait upon the Raj party) and one or two other of Mr. Mansel's men were sitting. They said 'no man of yours is here.' I returned and told this. Then I was ordered to tell Junglee Singh to call a man; so I went out and told Junglee Singh, and returning stood where I had before stood, near the table. Afterwards the Chuprasee brought the water-man. In the doorway of the room in which papers were being examined, Jutun Singh and Seeta Ram drank water, and sat down again, in the face of every body."

I have to remark on the subject, that the papers taken from the bag that lay before me when the dispute arose, were almost all dated some years back, but that there were a few without dates, and that Hookum Chund's papers in general were put up without strict reference to their ages. From one bag I remember I took out a letter differing twenty-three years in date from others that were with it. Mr. Mansel's officials did not, I believe, leave a scrap of paper in Hookum Chund's house, and perhaps they in some cases put loose papers into bags that were at hand. Loose documents of all dates were mixed together, in one large heap, with books, and bags—some of which were tied up, some open. With regard to the notes having been handed to me for signature, I beg to state that this happened at least five or six times

* Sometimes when documents requiring more than a glance at their contents turned up, I signed faster than the deputies could read; thus raving before me a pile with which an unsigned paper got mixed; sometimes a note was passed unobserved rolled up at the end of a partially opened letter.

Sunghes. As all papers were placed by me on the table, where they lay, (before Hookum Chund and his confidential servant, Pundit Mewa Ram, the Magistrate's Chuprasse, and often, my own "Moonshee," until taken up by the Raj readers; and as all parties were strictly searched by the Magistrate's Serishtadar, I did not dream of any doubts being raised. Whenever, during the day, a person of one party expressed a wish to leave the Kutchery room, he was invariably accompanied out by some one of the other party. Jue Kishn, the Raj hurkaru, always stood a few feet from the table, close to Hookum Chund's confidential servant. To the best of my recollection the Raj deputies were always supplied with drinking water by a boy, who came to the door of the room in which we sat (which fronted the seats of Hookum Chund, the Agra Pundit, and Hookum Chund's confidential servant) and they used there to drink as Hindoos do, pouring water into their mouths from a vessel held a little distance off. Hookum Chund used to have water brought into a window of the room and to drink in a similar manner. It is doubtless possible that a Raj water-carrier could bring a note in his hand and throw it to one of the deputies, and that the latter could slip it unperceived among papers lying on the table; but it is not probable that either attempt would succeed before so many eyes; nor is it likely that the Raj deputies, if deceitfully inclined, would have risked detection in such a fraud, at a late hour of the examination, when they had got so much indisputable evidence against the Singhees, or that resolving upon running such risk, they would have been content with writing a few words, which although they tally with expressions in other letters found among Hookum Chund's papers, do not tend to the positive conviction of any body. Hookum Chund (as before reported) expressed to me fears lest his papers should be unfairly copied, or even altered by the Raj deputies, and I at once adopted measures of precaution against this; but he never before the 27th of October, hinted a suspicion that forged documents might be introduced to the Kutchery room after the regular search, and I think it may fairly be suggested that his objections were prompted by motives similar to those which made Jotha Ram and him accuse the Raj deputies before Mr. Mansel's seals were broken.

No. 5.—Deposition of Chand Koonwur, Daughter of Duya Ram Bhuttacharj—taken 27th July 1836, before Nand Keshar and Santok Ram, Officers of the Raj of Juepoor, and Meetha Lal and Jue Ram, Pundits.

Q.—Did you ever address a letter or letters to the Sunghes, or any of their servants, at Agra or Deosa?

A.—I have never written to either Sunghes Hookum Chund, Jotha Ram, or Futib Lal, or any persons connected with their household. Should my handwriting be discovered among their papers, I will not attempt to deny my guilt before the British or Raj authorities.

Q.—Have you any acquaintance with them, and did you ever visit at their house, or did the females or others of their families ever come to your residence?

A.—I know them very well, for they were Moosahibs before,* without Hookum Chund's offering the least objection to my signing and re-passing such a paper; but I believe that all former documents passed hastily, proved to be of no consequence, and perhaps Hookum Chund would have objected to any one of them to which value seemed to be attached. "Jutun Singh thinks that he recognized the writing of the note in question, either when it was passing back to me, or when it was handed over to Mewa Ram, who sat next to the

of this Raj, and the ladies of their families used to come to our house on visiting occasions, but it never happened that I went to visit them either at times of congratulation* or of condolence. I once accompanied the Majee Bhuteeanejee to the house of Sunghesjee, when Muharaja Jysinghjee was allied in marriage with the Deoreejee; upon which occasion the Sunghesjee prepared an entertainment, and the Majee Sahib took me with her; we remained there about four ghurees. There was no business to induce me, a female, to visit the Sunghes.

Q.—Previously to the present time, have you ever addressed the Sunghes in writing on matters either of a domestic nature or connected with the Raj?

A.—I never had occasion to write to them; what business has a woman to write letters? With regard to my father, it has occurred that when he received the commands of the Maharaja to write a letter in reply to one from the Sunghes, he did so accordingly; but never since the Sunghes first set foot in the Pursam Dwara have I or my father communicated by letter with either the Sunghes or their adherents.

Q.—Paper No. 9 of Deosa Letters, dated Bhadon Soodi 14th, being shown to her, she is asked—whose handwriting is this.

A.—This letter was not written by me—the handwriting is not mine.

Q.—Whose do you suppose it to be, and to whom do you imagine it may have been written?

A.—How can I tell whose it is? It is not my writing, as I have already told you. I have by me portions of the Shastrus in my own handwriting. Six years back, I went to Gwalior, and remained with the Bueja Bae until twenty months, since that I returned to Juepoor.

Q.—Letter No. 4 of Agra papers being shown to her, she is asked—whose writing is this?

A.—The letter was not written by me. There is mention in it of Kesur having spoken by direction of the Majee. Now, I knew the Buree Majee, but I am not, by any means, well acquainted with the Chundrawut Majee. I once went to attend a birth-day ceremony at the Bura Rawula, and on that one occasion I merely saw her.

Q.—In this is written—"All the Nagus, the Battalions, Hunwunt Singh and Bharut Singhjee together with those who were before in our interest, have all been sworn to fidelity through Bhuttacharj Muharaj!" How is this? State the truth, as your father Bhuttacharj's name appears in this passage?

A.—There is another Bhuttacharj who is connected with the Sunghes and Roopa; he was brought to Juepoor by Sreejee Munt of Suleemabad, who is by caste a Daema Brahmun. Roopa gave him a house to reside in, and she presented to his wife silver and gold ornaments. He has a village yielding four thousand rupees of annual revenue. This must be the Bhuttacharjee alluded to in the letter. What had Bhuttacharjee my father to do in such a matter? He is the Bhuttacharj of the Muharaja.

Q.—The paper in which it is written—"Dadajee Sahib is ready to vouch for the truth of this ascertain"—is shown to her, and she is asked—whose handwriting is this?

A.—It is not my hand; my mind is occupied with the study of the Shastrus, and I intermeddle not with affairs of this sort.

Q.—A Paper, No. 5 of Deosa Letters, is shown to her and the question is put—in whose handwriting is this?

A.—It is not my writing, nor can I tell whose it may be.

Q.—Where is the Bhuttacharj of whom you speak as having been connected with the Sunghes and Roopa; and how long is it since he first came to Juepoor?

A.—He is in the city, and he came here when I was with the Lushkur. (the Bueja Bae's force) I heard my father speak of him after my return hither.

Signed, by Chand Koonwur. This evidence has been taken down in accordance with what I have deposed.

N. B. Specimens of the handwriting of Chand Koonwur are attached to this record of examination.

No. 6.—Memorandum of instructions given to the Officer Commanding the Detachment sent with Jotha Ram to Deosa, from Juepoor, 25th March 1835.

Jotha Ram will not be considered as a prisoner, strictly speaking, and the European Officer accompanying him, will therefore, incur no responsibility for his safe custody, beyond that of using proper precautions either against his flight, or against an attack upon him by an enemy.

His Camp will not be large: with him will be about 100 of Rawul Buere Sal's horse, which body, and the Risalu of Blair's horse, can be separately and conveniently posted; each with a certain number of horses kept constantly saddled, day and night. A few mounted Sentries should be posted all night.

The two Companies of Infantry need not be close to Jotha Ram's Camp in the day; but the Officer Commanding them can post Sentries around it at night; and should Jotha Ram wish it, he should have a small guard from the Infantry Detachment.

On arriving at Deosa, the nature of the building in which the Ex-Minister puts up, will be the Commanding Officer's best guide for securing the objects desired, without any unnecessary appearance of imprisonment. And should he desire to ride out—or otherwise take the air, a suitable escort of horse for his protection can be furnished to him.

If he prefer remaining in his tents at Deosa, precautions similar to those taken on the march can be adopted there.

No. 7.—A note addressed by Major Alves, Agent to the Governor-General, to the Ex-Minister Sunghee Jotha Ram at Deosa, dated 16th April, 1835.

As the season of heat has arrived, it becomes necessary that the Shipahees who are at present with you be withdrawn; and, consequently, Thakoor Chand Singh, with a party of horse and foot belonging to the Raj, is about to be despatched to effect their relief. The Thakoor will procure a house at Deosa with a view to affording your more suitable shelter, and placing you more at your ease and comfort. He will duly provide for your accommodation and safety, and you will continue at Deosa till the matters under investigation may be brought to a termination. A British Risalu will also remain with you.

No. 8.—A Purwana from Major Alves, Agent to the Governor-General, to the address of Sunna Odhu Khan, Naib Risaldar of Hawkes's Horse, at Deosa, dated 16th April, 1835.

You are to remain at Deosa and provide conjointly with Thakoor Chand Singh for the safety of Sunghee Jotha Ram, and you are to consult and advise with the Thakoor in the performance of this duty.

No. 9.—Deposition of Chand Koonwur, daughter of Bhuttacharj Duya Ram; taken in presence of Poorohit Mangeea, late servant of Sunghee Jotha Ram, 30th July, 1836.

Question to Chand Koonwur.—Manjee Ram states, that Ram Koonwur Brahmun came to a well situated on the high road at Deosa, and telling him that Benee Duttu Brahmun of Juepoor sent his salutation to him, gave him this paper for the Sunghees; upon which he (Mangeea) inquired—"Who is this Benee Duttu?"—and was answered—Benee Duttu is a respectable person, who was in the habit of visiting Jotha Ram, therefore let the Sunghee read the contents of this paper and give me his reply to carry back: that, in this way, that person brought letters two or three several times, when he (Mangeea) observed to him,—tell me truly, from whom do these communications come, upon which he was informed in reply, that they were written by the daughter of Bhuttacharj. What have you to say in answer to this?

A.—Mangeea may ascribe them to me millions of times, but I declare them not to be mine. I never wrote any letter to him; nor did I ever see Mangeea during the time Sunghee was in office.

Question to Mangeea.—In your presence the daughter of Bhuttacharj denies any connection with the papers, and states that she never wrote a letter to you; in what way can you prove the truth of what you assert?

A.—I speak from what Ram Koonwur told me, and from his having attributed them to a person of respectability.

Question by the daughter of Bhuttacharj to Mangeea.—Have you previously had any acquaintance with me?

A.—I was not acquainted with you formerly, nor did I ever visit at your house.

Q.—How is it, Manjee Ram, that you take my name?

A.—I speak from what Ram Koonwur told me.

Question to the daughter of Bhuttacharj—Have you any servant named Ram Koonwur?

A.—We have no servant named Ram Koonwur; Ram Nath, Ram Rutun, and Ram Sookh, these three Brahmuns were our servants, of whom Ram Rutun left us nine months since: Ram Sookh and Ram Nath are still with us: the latter four days back, went his to village G-ondur (distant seven kos) upon his own concerns. (Signed) Chand Koonwur and Mangeea.

N. B. Several specimens of Chand Koonwur's handwriting are annexed.

31st July, 1836.—Bhuttacharj Duya Ram's servant.—My name is Ram Nath; I am by caste a Brahmun, twenty years of age. I belong to Niwae and I am a servant of Bhuttacharj. I never took a note or message either from the Bhutjee or his daughter to Agra or Deosa. Besides myself, there are two other Brahmuns in his service, by name Ram Sookh and Ram Rutun. The latter is in the City of Juepoor; the former is gone to his village; he will soon return, and when he comes I will bring him to you. I never was employed to take a note to any place whatever—(the Deponent being confronted with Mangeea the latter is asked—"is this Ram Koonwur"—and replies—"he is not—I do not know this man; Koonwur is another person.")

31st July, 1836.—Ram Rutun Brahmun, in the service of Duya Ram Bhuttacharj, states as follows—My name is Ram Rutun; I have been long a resident of Juepoor, and I am forty-five years of age. Formerly, I was in Bhuttacharj's service during from five to seven years; then I left him, and subsequently I was again entertained. In this manner I have been his servant off and on, for nineteen or twenty years. I have been out of place these nine months past, and four or five months' wages are still due to me. I used to assist Bhuttacharjee at the bath, washed his dhotee, and prepared his meal. I fell sick, in consequence of which he discharged me. I have never known him to have a servant named Ram Koonwur.

(He is now confronted with Mangeea, who is asked if this is Ram Roonwur, and having looked at him declares that he is not, and that he does not know this person—having never before seen his face.)

No. 10.—A Khureetu addressed by the Mangee Chundrewutjee to Lieutenant-Colonel Alves, Agent to the Governor-General.

Jotha Ram is now on his trial, and I have learned from intelligence furnished by the news-writers, that he and Hookum Chund have heretofore drawn up documents in my name and forwarded them to the British Government. Let me request that it may be asked of them if they had my authority for so doing, and can produce any written proof of it, because if they have acted thus of their own accord, without any sanction, they have committed a serious offence, and such notice should be taken of their conduct in this instance as may afford an example to prevent others in Rajasthan from adopting a similar course at their convenience or pleasure. The matter has caused me much anxiety, and I trust you will not think it of trivial importance.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S SECOND SCIENTIFIC SOIREE.

The Governor General's second scientific Soiree was attended by the principal Members of Society, Native and European, and the objects of attraction for the eye and the ear were even more numerous and varied than on the former occasion. They were laid out in the southern marble hall, in the centre of which a semi-circular space was marked off by chairs for the scene of experimental display.

At the eastern entrance our eyes were first drawn to a well-mounted skeleton of a large Ox (from the Asiatic Society's Museum) which served to illustrate the series of fossil bones selected for the evening—these were the three fossil heads of the Buffalo (an animal not known in the fossil state in Europe) one from the Himalayas, (Mr. Dawe) one from the Nerbudda, (Dr. Spilsbury) and the third from Perim in the Cambay Gulf, (Baron Hugel). Along with the leg bones of the Ox—species were others of gigantic dimensions (Colonel Colvin) which are supposed to belong to the Sivatherium.

On various side tables, as we passed up the room, we noticed a fine collection of Butterflies and Insects from Saugur, (Major Hearsey); all the varieties of Assam Silk Moth (Mr. Hugon) with the chrysalis, the worm, and the silk, neatly arranged for oral explanation by Dr. Heller; Dr. McLelland's collection of Birds also from Assam; Lichens from the Himalayas; a model of the human eye in wax; various species of zoology stuffed; ancient Indian armour; that splendid plant, the Tree-fern from the Chirra Punji; also the China and Assam Tea-plants in pots:—more zoological drawings from Nipal; new books—among which we recognized the Macan MS. of the Alif Leila: and a small box of M. Postoulet's beautiful Cameos.

On a round table at one end was placed Dr. Wallich's very fine compound Microscope for the purpose of rendering visible the circulation of the sap in vegetables, a discovery of modern time. At the opposite end three tables were occupied with a selected portion of the Cabinets of Bactrian and Indian Coins belonging to Colonel Stacy, Captain Cunningham, and Mr. J. Prinsep. The subject was explained in the course of the evening, and the relics from Manikyala, first discovered by General Ventura, were also exhibited.

The principal business of the evening, as it may be called, was an experimental elucidation of the properties of Oxygen and Hydrogen Gases, particularly in regard to their united direction in a stream upon a cylinder of lime, which is the principle of the very intense light applied by Captain Drummond to distant signals and light-houses. The interesting lecture of Professor O'Shaughnessy was terminated by an explosion of the mixed gases which astonished the native spectators. The Professor also exhibited a very beautiful and simple method, just discovered, of ascertaining the presence of arsenic by placing the suspected substance in a vessel for generating Hydrogen by solution of Zinc in sulphuric acid. The Hydrogen disengaged holds the arsenic in solution, which it freely deposits (after combustion) on tube or plate of glass.—Calcutta Courier, Dec. 8.

ST. ANDREW'S DAY.

Our Reporter has not given an account of the Dinner on St. Andrew's Day, a circumstance which we should have much regretted had we not been enabled to avail ourselves of the following brief notice which we extract from last evening's Courier.

"The annual gathering of the clans was celebrated at the Town Hall last night in excellent style, with an assemblage of about 140 persons. Having had the honor and good fortune to be one of the guests, we are enabled to publish the toasts upon the Stewards' list, with such additions as were made to it till the last was given, when we retired at about half past eleven. The Chairmen, however, kept his seat long after that hour, and many did not leave the festal board till past two o'clock. Mr. Leith went through the duties of the Chair with his accustomed spirit. The principal seats of honor beside him were filled by the three Judges of the Supreme Court. Lieut. Colonel Beaton being kept at home by a bad cold, Captain Hope volunteered to perform the office of Croupier, and acquitted himself much to the satisfaction of the Company. Messrs. Thomson, Mellis and McNeil gave us three songs in capital style, but what assistance the feast received from the vocal powers of the company after the regular toasts were over we cannot say. Of the speeches we took no notes, but there was one so spirited and appropriate though short, that it electrified the room, while the just sentiments it conveyed fixed their own stamp upon the memory. In giving the health of the Chairman, Sir John Grant adverted to the beneficial influence of these national Meetings. He said (we regret that we cannot give the words) he regarded them as a wholesome stimulus to virtue. Scotchmen were thus reminded of their obligations, to each other—he was not one of those who would boast of being a citizen of the world and of blending all national distinctions in a common feeling of humanity—his pride was to be a Scotchman, and to feel all the national ties of a Scotchman; and he was convinced that the more strong was this national feeling, the more virtue was to be found in the people who possessed it. He regarded it as the index and source of other virtues: the warm social affections, the highest sense of honor, were most naturally associated with the greatest affection for the country of our birth; and where the love of country was weak or wanting, there also the moral principle was weak and deficient.

List of the Toasts.

CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The Annual Meeting of the Corresponding Committee of the Church Missionary Society was held last evening, at the Old Church Rooms, and was numerously attended.

The Report contained much evidence of enquiry on matters of Religion, a growing desire for instruction, and set forth the responsibility of Christians to supply, as far as they may be permitted, the spiritual necessities of our fellow men, who are united with us in the same temporal, as well as eternal interests.

It was forcibly stated that pecuniary aid was urgently required, not merely for the extension of Missionary labors, but for the continuance of the work. Many Stations requiring School Teachers, there being a strong appeal for Native Chapels, and in several quarters, the necessary support for local associations was earnestly desired.

There were liberal contributions made by the parties present, and the strong claims of the Society will, we trust, be met promptly by the Christian public.—Cal. Courier, Dec. 14.

THE PARENTAL ACADEMY INSTITUTION.

On Thursday, the 15th December, the pupils of the above institution were publicly examined before a very numerous and respectable company of ladies and gentlemen, who appeared to take a lively interest in the business of the day. Among them were Archdeacon Dealtry, the Rev. Messrs. Charles, Parish, Campbell, Piffard, Ewart, Col. Sissmore, Captain Birch, G. J. Gordon, Esq., and F. Corbyn, Esq.

The interesting business of the day commenced with the junior classes, which were examined in Spelling, Geography, use of the Globes, Grammar, Grecian, Roman, and Scripture History, &c. and evinced great proficiency in all they had been taught. The higher classes then succeeded each other in consecutive order; whilst the first, which may more than any other indicate the character of the institution, continued to be examined in the strictest manner in the various branches of knowledge that are taught in this seminary. Among others Evidences of Christianity, Moral and Natural Philosophy, Chemistry, Political Economy, the History of India, Book Keeping, and the higher branches of mathematics, formed object of particular attention. The visitors who took part in the examination expressed themselves highly satisfied with the readiness and address with which these questions were answered and explained by the students.

The youthful appearance of several of these aspirants in the Temple of Minerva, compared with the progress they had made, elicited from many the expression of astonishment, and reflected the highest credit on the teachers and managers of this institution.

The business of the day concluded by the distribution of prizes to the successful candidates, which were delivered to each by the head teacher, with suitable observations, tending to encourage the pupils in their future exertions. The Secretary to the institution and several of the managers were very attentive to the visitors, and endeavoured to make them as comfortable as the crowded state of not a very small hall permitted them. The increase in the number of the pupils of this Academy, and more so the increasing interest which the public take in it, render it necessary that some arrangement be made for the accommodation of a larger company than the room now used on these occasions can hold. Several who came late were obliged to return without being able, owing to the crowd, to obtain access into the hall of examination: perhaps a gallery on one side of the hall, something like the one opposite the bench in the Supreme Court, would obviate the difficulty.—India Gazette, Dec. 19.

PROCEEDINGS ASIATIC SOCIETY.

DECEMBER 7, 1836. Present—Sir Edward Ryan, President, H. T. Prinsep, Esq., W. Adam, Esq., Dr. Helfer, Principal Mill, G. J. Gordon, Esq., Dr. Maclellan, Colonel Caulfield, W. Spier, Esq., J. Bell, Esq., J. H. Stocquer, Esq., C. Brownlow, Esq., Dr. D. Stewart, Dr. Brett, N. Baillie, Esq., and James Prinsep, Esq., (Secretary.)

The following gentlemen were duly ballotted for and elected members:—Principal Bramley, H. Walters, Esq., Dr. Drummond, Newauß Telowey Jung and Shah Qabir Udin.

A considerable number of books on different subjects and in different languages, together with several specimens of natural history, were laid before the meeting. Amongst the former were a copy of the Bible in the Burmese language, by the Rev. Mr. Judson, printed at a press at Moulemein; several translations into French of Hindostanee works, &c. Amongst the presentations to the Museum were a stuffed Albatross and a stuffed Adjutant—an otter—a monkey, &c. &c.

The Secretary read a letter from Government upon the subject of the Alif Leila. The Government, as is already known, subscribes for 50 copies of this work, for distribution amongst the schools where Arabic is taught, and for presentation to public libraries and other institutions in India and Europe. The Government expresses its hope that some person may be induced to undertake the translation of the work into English, Government being well disposed to promote such an undertaking. (The Secretary mentioned that he believed a gentleman in the Civil Service had already volunteered to perform the task. The name of the party did not transpire.)

A letter was read from the Asiatic Society of Paris, in which that distinguished body volunteers to assist the Asiatic Society of Bengal in completing the printing of Oriental Works, and in promoting their sale and distribution. The Society likewise offers to become the agent of the Bengal Society. This letter was elicited by the discussions which took place several months ago, when the Government intimated its withdrawal of the allowance hitherto granted for the advancement of Oriental literature.

Sir Edward Ryan then proposed to the Society the formation of a Sub-Committee for the purpose of collecting statistical information from all parts of India, and, after briefly advertng to the nature of the enquiries which it might be desirable to make, and to the system on which the Sub-Committee should probably proceed, the President named Sir B. Malkin, Mr. W. Adam, Mr. G. J. Gordon, Mr. N. Baillie, and Dr. Stewart as fit persons to form the Committee. Dr. Stewart had already expressed a readiness to act as Secretary. Some little opposition was offered to the proposal, on the ground of the means and time of any Sub-Committee being disproportioned to the magnitude of the undertaking; but on putting it to the meeting, Sir E. Ryan's recommendation was unanimously adopted.

When the proceedings of the Meeting had been closed, Dr. Helfer read a paper on the Silk worm of India, by way of accompaniment to, and illustration of, a paper and sundry specimens of the Assam silk worm from Mr. Hugan in Assam. The paper excited a great deal of interest, and will, we believe, be published at length in the next number of the Journal of the Asiatic Society. Dr. Helfer commenced by a series of observations on the importance of silk as an article of wearing apparel throughout the globe. He stated that the discovery of India and China was valuable to the ancient Greeks and Romans, chiefly on account of the precious web of the Bombyx, called Ser or Ser, whence the newly discovered countries derived their name of Serica. Justinian, and Dr. H., obtained an insight into the secret of its manufacture from two Persian monks, the first silk being fabricated at Byzantium. Dr. Helfer followed up his subject, by stating, that the Sicilians in the time of Roger I. became wealthy by the introduction of silk into Palermo,—that the Venetians acquired riches by the trade of silk with the Levant, and that in our days it is an unlimited source of income to countries cultivating it on a large scale. France alone exported in the year 1820, 130 millions of francs worth of silk, and England consumes annually 4,700,000 pounds, for which it is chiefly indebted to foreign countries. Dr. H. then adverted to India, which he considers particularly suited for the cultivation of the article, and deems it very interesting and important, that India possesses already eleven known different kinds of silk worms, producing in abundance silk of different qualities, and having by this internal means of providing all Europe with this precious material. Dr. H. enumerated the different eleven species, of which seven (though silk from them has been manufactured,) never have been mentioned before. (The subject was illustrated by the exhibition of all the different qualities of silk, the preserved moths, cocoons, chrysalis and eggs.) Two of the silk worm species, the Tussah and Amiridy, were known in India, and their silk was considered singular enough in Europe, and regarded as inferior quality of the mulberry silk worm,—though Dr. Roxburgh and D. Buchanan, had long ago published an account of them, which Dr. H. quoted. Two different species were discovered by Dr. H.,—four others were mentioned as problematic, and three other new species from Assam by Capt. Jenkins, accompanied by a very interesting memorandum. Dr. H. deems those sent from Assam exceedingly valuable, as the cocoons which the produce are considered by Mr. W. Prinsep, exceedingly fine.

Dr. Helfer then, after giving a systematic description of all the new species, went into the question as to whether the silk of India is naturally inferior to that of other countries. He regards the question as undecided, and considers that every thing must depend upon the rearing of the worm in houses—upon the quality of their food—upon the first chrysalis operations—and upon the manner of working the silk. He proposed that all moths producing cocoons,—which, judging by analogy, be computed at upwards of 130 kinds in India,—should be examined, and specimens of raw and wrought silk sent to Europe; and he thinks it certain, that, by the manufacture of silk on a large scale, a vast revenue will accrue to this country. He referred to the value set in Europe upon the coarsest material produced by the Arindiy silk worm. The Doctor concluded his very interesting discourse by narrating a fact communicated by Dr. Glass of Boglipoore. It appeared, that Dr. G. had sent specimens of the silk to England: when it was shewn to the different manufactures they answered, that the people in India had been deceiving them by stating that the fine cashmere shawls are manufactured from the wool of the goat: it was plain to them that the shawls were composed of the silk, and they said, that, with that material, they, the English manufacturers, could make better shawls than any which came from India.

The President, on behalf of the Society, acknowledged their obligations to Dr. Heller for his interesting paper and the meeting broke up.—Englishman, Dec. 9.

Wednesday Evening, the 7th December, 1836.

The Honorable Sir Edward Ryan, President, in the chair.

H. Walter, Esq. C. S., Principal Bramley, Dr. James Drummond, Nawab Tahawur Jung Behadur, Shih Qabir Adin, and Dr. A. R. Jackson, proposed at the last meeting, were balloted for and duly elected Members of the Society.

Mr. W. Dent was proposed by Mr. H. T. Prinsep, seconded by the Secretary.

Mr. Manuk, proposed by Dr. Stewart, seconded by Mr. Baillie.

Babu Herambanath Thakur was appointed to officiate as Collector to the Society, during the absence of Babu Ram Comul Sen, on a visit to the Upper Provinces.

The following reply from Government regarding the Alif Leila was read:

TO JAMES PRINSEP, ESQ.

Genl. Dept. Secretary to the Asiatic Society.
Sir,

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, dated the 7th ultimo, relative to the proposition of Mr. C. Brownlow, to publish at his own private risk a complete edition of the Alif Leila, or Arabian Nights' Entertainments, in the original Arabic, from a very complete manuscript purchased by him from the estate of the late Major Macan, and requesting the same support to this work as has usually been accorded both by the local Governments, and by the Honorable Court of Directors to literary undertakings of a similar description.

2. In reply, I am directed to state that in compliance with the recommendation of the Asiatic Society, and in consideration of the manner in which the publication of this work has been undertaken, and of the credit that will attach to its completion in the manner proposed, his Lordship has been induced to subscribe for fifty copies at the price stated, viz. 48 rupees per copy.

3. The copies when printed will be appropriated for distribution as prizes in the Seminaries of Education at which the study of Arabic is cultivated, with the reservation of such number as the Governor of Bengal may present to the public Libraries and Institutions of Europe or of this country. Mr. Brownlow may be desired to deliver the fifty copies at this office, where his bill for them will be discharged.

4. But the Right Honorable the Governor of Bengal cannot close the reply to this reference from the Asiatic Society, without expressing a strong desire to learn that the translation of the complete work is likely to be undertaken by some competent scholar of this Presidency. His Lordship will be glad to be informed of any scheme for procuring the accomplishment of this desirable object, that the Asiatic Society may be able to suggest and think deserving of encouragement.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

H. T. PRINSEP,

Fort William, the 2nd Nov. 1836. Secy. to Govt.

Resolved, that a copy of the reply be transmitted to Mr. C. Brownlow, the publisher of the work in question.

It was intimated that a gentleman in Civil Service, eminently qualified for the task, had volunteered to make an English translation of the portions of the "Nights' Entertainments" as yet unedited.

The following letter from the Asiatic Society of Paris, brought out by the Chevalier General Allard, was also read:

Société Asiatique, Paris, le Mars, 1836.

Messieurs :—Les encouragemens que le Gouvernement Anglais dans l'Inde a accordés pres que en tout temps à la publication des ouvrages classique dans les langues savantes de l'Orient ont toujours été regardés en Europe, comme un de ses plus beaux titres de gloire. Ces publications ont puissamment aidé au développement que les études historiques et philologiques ont pris depuis le commencement de ce siècle, et elles ont servi à répandre le gout des lettres orientales. Ainsi les ouvrages classiques publiés par le Comité d'Instruction publique de Calcutta, quoique destinés immédiatement aux écoles Indiennes ont rendu aux écoles de l'Europe les plus grands services. Ils ont commencé à remédier à la rareté des manuscrits sanscrits en Europe, et ont facilité l'étude d'une littérature dont l'importance pour l'histoire de l'esprit humain n'a pas cessé d'accroître.

Le Comité avait donné, dans les derniers temps, l'espoir que l'on verrait encore s'agrandir le cercle de ses entreprises. Il avait annoncé que le Mahabbârat, le Rûja Tarangini et plusieurs autres ouvrages de la plus haute importance, étaient sous presse, et qu'il préparait des matériaux pour une édition des Vedas et des livres sacrés des Bouddhistes. Ces annonces ont été recues en Europe avec un intérêt marqué, et les savans ont suivi avec une grande sollicitude les progrès de ces ouvrages. Mais on a appris dernièrement, que le Gouvernement du Bengale a cru devoir suspendre toutes les impressions en langues Orientales, et destiner les fonds qu'il devait y pourvoir, à un but différent.

Il n'appartient pas à une Société littéraire de juger des raisons politiques ou financières d'un gouvernement étranger, mais la Société Asiatique croit pouvoir exprimer ses regrets qu'on ait abandonné des entreprises qui auraient servi les intérêts de la science, et qui auraient honoré la nation qui les avaient commencées. Aussi, a-t-elle sincèrement applaudi à la détermination que vous avez annoncée, Messieurs, de reprendre la publication de ces ouvrages, et elle désire vivement pouvoir vous aider dans l'accomplissement de votre plan. Elle vous offre en conséquence de servir d'intermédiaire entre vous et les Savans du Continent. Elle espère pouvoir trouver un nombre plus ou moins considérable de souscripteurs aux différents ouvrages que vous avez l'intention de faire paraître.

Si vous agréez ce plan, elle vous pri de lui communiquer la liste des ouvrages à publier, et les prix approximatifs de chacun. La Société redigerait alors un programme et une circulaire, pour faire appel à ses membres et aux divers corps savans, a fin d'exciter autant que possible l'intérêt du public pour les importantes publications de la Société.

Il est impossible d'apprécier d'avance le résultat de cette démarche, mais la Société croit ne faire que son devoir en donnant aux savans Européens les moyens de s'associer à votre généreuse entreprise.

Nous avons l'honneur de vous offrir, Messieurs, l'assurance de notre haute considération.

P. AMIDEI JAUBERT, Président de la Société.

EUG. BURNOUT, Secrétaire de la Société.

Resolved, that an appropriate reply be returned in the same form to the Asiatic Society of Paris, accepting with pride and satisfaction its generous offer of aid in promoting the completion of the abandoned oriental works, and of acting as the channel of their circulation and sale on the continent of Europe.

A letter from Major Trower, tendered, in the same spirit, his service as agent to the Society at Parties, and acknowledged receipt of presentation copies of Sanscrit works.

Extracts of letter from Messrs. Burnouf, Jacquet, and Professor Lassen, connected with the same topic, were read; also from Messrs. Cassin, agent and bookseller to the Paris Society, suggesting arrangements regarding the prices of the several works.

A letter from M. Rouy de Rochelle, President of the Geographical Society of Paris, stated that a resolution of the Society had determined to present the Asiatic Society with a complete series of their Bulletin, anterior to the period when its relations with Calcutta had commenced.

Resolved, that the compliment be returned by presenting a copy of such former volumes of the Researches as are in store.

A letter from Mr. Edward Thomas, C. S. at Almorah, presented three manuscript volumes in short-hand of the late Mr. Laidlay.

They appear to be private note books, and memoranda of the author's reading—not in the common form of stenography, and therefore illegible.

Dr. D. Stewart presented copies of the Proceedings of the Statistical Society of London for 1835-36, and series of questions and forms for circulation, with a view of extending its information on subjects connected with the science.

The President founded upon these documents, a motion for the formation of a Committee in the Society, which should direct its exclusive attention to the Statistics of India, both by inviting returns to circulars modified to suit the circumstances of the country, and by searching, with permission, the records of Government.

Mr. H. T. Prinsep urged that the magnitude of the object was beyond the power of a Committee; the Government had at one time expressly commenced such a record, and had given it up after spending a lakh and a half of rupees on three small districts.

Dr. Stewart thought that the materials collected might be examined and abstracted by the Committee, and, without aiming at minute detail, much useful information might be obtained on the population and mortality, for instance, of the principal towns. He had himself lately roughly estimated the mortality of Calcutta, and was appalled at finding it 1 in 26, the highest rate almost on record. After some discussion it was—

Resolved, that a Statistical Committee be formed, consisting of Sir B. Malkin, Mr. J. G. Gordon, Mr. W. Adam, Mr. Millie, and Dr. D. Stewart, the latter gentleman kindly undertaking the duties of Secretary.

Captain Jenkins forwarded a copy of the Ahom alphabet, compared with the Bor Khamti, Shyan, Laos, and Burmese, with explanatory notes by Rev. N. Brown.

This alphabet has been a desideratum for some time, and as very few indeed of the inhabitants of Assam are now acquainted with this extinct character, preserved chiefly on the coins of the indigenous rajahs, an opportunity had been sought in vain for recovering it, until Mr. Brown's residence and study brought him in communication with some pandits who have given the desired information.

A fine series of butterflies, moths, and insects from Sagur was presented by the Secretary, being part of a rich collection forwarded to him by Major Hearsey; Commanding 2nd Local Horse.

Volcanic ashes picked up at sea by Captain Ferguson, of the ship Henry Tanner, presented by Mr. T. L. Henry.

"The position in which these ashes were picked up was 35 miles South lat. and 15° 50' west long. The sea was in violent agitation."

On a former voyage by the same commander, in nearly the same place (lat. 1° 35' S. and long. 20° 45') much alarm was created on board by a violent rumbling noise, the captain and officers believing the ship to have struck and grating over a coral reef: no bottom, however, was found on sounding.

In the same latitude and about a degree more easterly, there is a shoal laid bearing the name of some vessel, but considered doubtful.

The ashes are black, and resemble cinders or pumice in consistence.—Journal of the Asiatic Society for Nov.

AGRICULTURAL AND HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY OF INDIA.

A General Meeting was held at the Town Hall on the 14th Dec.

PRESIDENT.

THE HON. SIR E. RYAN, Kt., President, in the Chair,
The Hon. Col. Rebling, Nawab Towhoo Jung,
W. Stern, Esq., C. Trebeck, Esq.,
H. Walters, Esq., Willis Earle, Esq.,
D. Hare, Esq., J. C. Wilson, Esq.,
A. Grant, Esq., Mr. Masters,
Dr. N. Wallich, M. D., John Bell.

Visitors.

Dr. Helfer, and G. A. Prinsep, Esq.

The proceedings of last month were read and confirmed.

The following gentlemen proposed on the 9th of November, were duly elected Members of the Society by ballot, viz :

Col. Caulfield.	Thos. Wyatt, Esq.
J. P. Grant, Esq.	J. W. Payter, Esq.
Baboo Rajkissen Mookerjee,	Robt. Smith, Esq.

The following gentlemen were proposed :—

G. H. Smith Esq., C. S. Delhi, and Lieut. E. Baker, Engineers, proposed by the Secretary on behalf of Colonel Colvin, seconded by Sir E. Ryan.

Dr. B. Burt, proposed by the Secretary on behalf of the Hon. Mr. Melville, seconded by Mr. Bell.

W. M. Dirom, Esq., C. S. proposed by Charles Lyll, Esq., seconded by Mr. Bell.

J. H. Stoequeler, Esq. proposed by Mr. Bell, seconded by W. Storm, Esq.

W. G. Rose, Esq., of Ramnaghur, Colherriah, proposed by W. Storm, Esq., seconded by John Bell.

The Revd. Mr. Boaz, proposed by Archibald Grant, Esq., seconded by Dr. C. C. Egerton.

Proposed by the President and resolved unanimously, that Dr. Wallich be requested to become a member of the Committee of papers, in the room of the late James Kyd. Dr. Wallich, who entered as this resolution was adopted, expressed his willingness to form one of the Committee.

The President submitted to the Meeting a report from the Agricultural Committee of their proceedings, during the past month, which embraced the measure recommended and adopted by the Secretary with their concurrence in regard to the distribution of a further supply of American cotton seed. The Committee had also visited the Society's nursery, situated on the outskirts of the Botanical Garden, and expressed their entire satisfaction of the great care which had been bestowed upon the plants, and the high state of order in which every thing appeared; all which was owing to the care of Dr. Wallich with the zealous co-operation of Mr. Masters.

Dr. Wallich stated that the extent of land apportioned to the Society was not sufficient for the grand objects in view, and offered more ground, and a continuance of his valuable aid, both which were thankfully accepted.

The Committee also suggested the inconvenience of having the annual exhibition of vegetable at 3 o'clock, instead of, as heretofore, at 10 o'clock, and their views were supported by the President and meeting generally.

Resolved—That the annual exhibition be at the usual hour of 10 A. M., and that in reference to the lateness of the season the annual show of vegetables be postponed until Thursday the 12th of January next.

Resolved—That Dr. Wallich, Mr. Masters, Mr. Storm and Mr. Bell, be elected judges to determine the prize baskets.

Resolved—In reference to a proposal from the Committee, that a dinner shall take place at the Town Hall on the evening of the annual exhibition, and that the Secretary be requested to circulate this Resolution to all resident members, in order that those who feel disposed may have an opportunity of conveying their assent.

Mr. Walters, the Commissioner, addressed the meeting on the great importance of extending Branch Societies throughout India, as a means of introducing a greater zeal for Agricultural improvement, among the native landholders, and submitted a paper bearing upon this question. Mr. Walters dwelt upon the main point, which ought to incite every one to come forward, viz. the very existence of the revenue, which would sooner or later be felt by all classes not excepting the Commissioner's own salary, if we went on, taking all we can collect, without improving the resources of the country.

Proposed by the President, and resolved, that Mr. Walters' suggestions be considered by a Committee, and that H. Walters, Esq., J. P. Grant, Esq., Baboo Dwarakanath Tagore, and the Secretary, be solicited to form a Committee for this purpose.

The Secretary submitted a note, which he had that instant received from J. H. Stoequeler, Esq., proposing, in reference to some remarks in his paper of this morning, to reprint some of the most interesting papers from the 1st volume of the Society's transactions, and asking if the Society would be disposed to take 25 copies, when made up into a pamphlet.

Proposed by the President and resolved, that it be left to the Secretary to communicate further with Mr. Stoequeler on the subject, and to take a certain number of copies, depending on the price, and on condition that Mr. Stoequeler be guided by Mr. Bell's selection of the papers, if it be not possible to print the entire volume.

Dr. Wallich brought with him a fine specimen of the Otaheite cane cultivated in the Botanical Garden, which negatives the crude notions entertained by some, that this cane will not surpass all others, even the China cane, which is lauded as being impervious to the tooth of the wild hog.

The following communications and presentations were respectively read and submitted, viz:

From Captain Watt to the Secretary, dated Allahabad, 11th of November, intimating the receipt of American cotton seed, referred to in Mr. Bell's letters of the 29th September and 10th October, and giving an account of the manner in which it has been distributed.

From Colonel Dunlop, dated November 10th, (Camp Kurrah), enclosing a statement of the distribution of cotton seed that had been consigned to Captain Watts, and stating that all the seeds and plants which he received in Calcutta had been given to parties on his way up.

From Messrs. Gisborne and Co., dated November 26th, giving cover to an invoice of American cotton seed, received per Bland, to the address of John Richards, Esq., on account of the Society, in virtue of an order from the Secretary. This supply consists of 87 bushels Upland Georgia, 78 bushels New Orleans, and 30 bushels Sea Island.

From Messrs. Jamiesons and Co., dated November 30th, presenting for the acceptance of the Society, 4 bags of Upland Georgia cotton seed, received from a correspondent in Glasgow, with a request that the result of experiments made with it, be made known to him, and a portion of the produce sent home for trial.

From Colonel John Colvin, of Engineers, dated Dundapore, Nov. 19th, enclosing a report upon some tobacco seed, also upon grass seeds sent up to that gentleman by Dr. Wallich.

Colonel Colvin adds that his experiments in American cotton and Otaheite sugar-cane have been very encouraging, and that from native report, Colonel Skinner has been very successful. The Colonel intends giving particulars hereafter.

From Captain Dixon, dated Mhairwara, October 28th, stating that the supplies of vegetable seeds forwarded by the Society, were ample.

The Tobacco and American cotton seed had also vegetated freely, the first promising good returns. The latter had suffered from the heavy rain which fell about the end of August, when the greater portion of the plants became sickly, and shed their leaves, and Captain Dixon feared that the frosty season would overtake them before the pods ripened, for the Thermometer about Beaur, fell frequently below 20th.

Captain Dixon adds that "the cotton of such pods as have ripened, is of a very superior quality; compared with the desce, it is as silk to wool."

From James Gibbon, Esq., dated Shahabad, December 6th, stating, that in consequence of the last season having proved very unfavourable, the small quantity of Egyptian cotton seed sent him by the Society, has not had a fair trial, since all country crops, save what actually grew in water, were destroyed. The few plants of the Egyptian cotton which remained, were, at the date of Mr. Gibbon's letter, in flower, but rather sickly.

Mr. Gibbon's communication contains some very opposite remarks, on the little attention paid to manuring land in India, and draws a comparison between the means adopted to secure this desideratum in the West India Islands, into which manure is imported from England, and even soil is brought from Barbice, Esquebo and Demerara.

From the Secretary, submitting a specimen of Egyptian cotton, detached from the seed, as well as some of the entire full blown pods, raised in his garden, from seed received from Mr. Vaupell, of Bombay, and planted on the 28th April last. The plants had been subjected to removal twice after they had attained maturity, and on the first occasion had been carried a distance of 3 miles, notwithstanding all which, they are now ripening their pods daily. Mr. Bell advances an opinion that the Egyptian cotton is that which is destined to occupy a large share of attention in India.

From Dr. Wallich, dated December 1st, forwarding extracts from London's Gardeners' Magazine, &c. on the subject of the cow cabbage, and mentioning that one of the two seeds sent to him by the Secretary had vegetated, and is now thriving very well.

From Mr. J. W. Masters, dated November 14th, forwarding a paper, entitled "a few plain directions for cultivating some of the most approved European and native vegetables in Bengal."

From A. Acken, Esq., Secretary to the Society of Arts in London, to Dr. Wallich, acknowledging the receipt of the last box of samples of sundries sent for examination by the Agriculture and Horticulture Society of India, on which a report will be speedily furnished. Mr. A. intimates his readiness to correspond and forward copies of detached papers written by himself and other eminently scientific men, among which are the following:—

1.—Description of the Graphic Telescope and Microscope, by C. Varley.

2.—Paper by Mr. James Marsh, on the mode of separating small quantities of arsenic from substances with which it may have been mixed.

3.—On Timber and on Ornamental Woods, by A. Acken, Esq.

4.—List of specimens of wood from India, by Capt. H. C. Baker, Bengal Artillery.

5.—Improvements on the Microscope, by Mr. Edmund Turrell, Mr. James Holland, and Mr. Henry Slack.

6.—List of premiums, for the sessions 1836-37 and 1837-38.

From Dr. W. Stevenson, Secretary to the Assistant Society of Lucknow, dated Nov. 17th, advising the despatch to the care of Captain Watt, at Allahabad, of some Otaheite sugar-cane cutting, promised in a former letter. Dr. Stevenson adds, "I this morning met a person to whom I gave 80 canes last season, and he told me he had just sold the produce for 160 rupees."

From Capt. Watt, dated Allahabad, December 2nd, advising the despatch by a Steamer which left that station on the 3d instant, of the canes alluded to above.

From Dr. Charles Haffnagle, dated December 13th, presenting a small box of American garden seed, for the acceptance of the Society, which had been given to him by Capt. Smith of the ship "George Gardener," and soliciting a return in kind from the Company's Botanic Garden.

Dr. H. states that all the cotton seed he had planted, has vegetated freely and is in a thriving condition.

From Capt. Jenkins, dated Assam, November 30th, stating, that the creole rice and English wheat forwarded by the Society are thriving, but reports unfavourably both of the West India seed and of the medical seeds brought out by Lord Auckland: alludes to the success attendant on a trial of the Bujrasseed,* and suggests one on a more extensive scale. The Egyptian cotton seed plants had not yet produced flower.

The thanks of the Meeting were ordered to be offered for all the foregoing communications and donations.—India Gazette, Dec. 16.

TRANSACTIONS OF MEDICAL AND PHYSICAL SOCIETY.

At a meeting of the Medical and Physical Society, held at the Asiatic Society's apartments, on the 3d of December, 1836. R. B. Cumberland, Esq., assistant surgeon, was proposed as a member of the society by Dr. Goodeve, seconded by Dr. O'Shaughnessy. The following books were presented for the Library:—

A work in Sanscrit upon the medical plants of India, entitled Raja Ballabha, presented by Dr. Cameron on behalf of Baboo Radacant Deb.

A copy of the proceedings of the medical society of Rio Janeiro, presented by that body, accompanied by complimentary letter.

The Secretary was directed to forward to the said society, in return, a copy of the forthcoming volume of transactions.

Dr. Goodeve laid upon the table, for the inspection of the members, an iron arrow head that had lately been removed from a patient in whose right lung it had remained for three years (since the first Cole campaign). The patient had been shot in the back and the head of the arrow was left in the chest; the skin closed over it, but the patient suffered severely from symptoms of phthisis until an abscess formed on the site of the wound, and the offending body was removed; since that time the man had completely recovered his health.

Dr. O'Shaughnessy then read to the meeting his account of the identification of the strychnos nux vomica, with the false angustura bark, the nature of which has hitherto been altogether a matter of uncertainty. Dr. O'Shaughnessy proved by a series of interesting experiments, that his researches upon the point have now placed the question beyond the possibility of dispute. He shewed most clearly, that the nux vomica, the false angustura bark, and the bark, sometimes sold in the bazar under the name of rohuuna were products of one and the same tree, but the details of the experiments having already been laid before the public, it is unnecessary to repeat them here.

Dr. O'Shaughnessy likewise exhibited, to the society a new method of detecting the presence of arsenic for toxicological purposes, being recently discovered by Mr. Marsh, of Woolwich. The process consists of mixing the suspected substance with hydrogen gas, and if arsenic be present, thus giving rise to the formation of arseniuretted hydrogen. The gas so formed is then ignited, and allowed to play in a small jet upon the surface of glass, whereon it deposits the arsenic in the form of a metallic crust. The usual tests for arsenic may then be applied to this crust, and the identity of the metal established. So delicate is this process, that less than the 500th part of a grain of arsenic may thus be detected.

Mr. Spencer's paper upon the fever prevailing at Moradabad was then read and discussed.

Mr. Spencer states, that the fever began at Bareilly in March last, and spread gradually to Moradabad which it reached in April. It appeared first in the town, and afterwards in the jail, where it committed extensive ravages. The fever was characterized by yellowness of skin occurring towards the latter stages of the disease, attended by severe cerebral action, and finally the setting in of symptoms of a typhoid nature. The fever was of a pure remittent type, one paroxysm occurring every 24 hours, appearing usually between 9 A.M. and noon. The first paroxysm was usually mild, but if neglected, the 2d assumed a formidable character. In the course of the fever, the alterations for the worse were generally very sudden. The pulse sank rapidly, the skin grew cold and clammy, the tongue dry and crusty, with sores; a low delirium ensued, and languorous evacuation were passed, while the skin and eyes became of a bright yellow color. These symptoms often came in the course of half an hour, except the yellow ness which in a slight degree usually preceded the rest. If not promptly met by active treatment, the disease, when it had assumed this aspect, generally proved fatal in 12 or at most 24 hours. The preceding yellowness however often enabled Dr. Spencer to ward off the other bad symptom by the use of appropriate remedies. These were blister to the neck and epigastrium combined with bark, hyoscyamus and camphor. The yellowness of the eyes and skin usually came on about the 4th day. The other cases of the disease was more lingering and typhoid, and unaccompanied by the icteroid appearances. The treatment consisted in purging the milder cases when seen early, and the employment of quinine in the intermission. When the fever was more severe, topical bleeding from the head to epigastrium was resorted to in the early stages, and two grains of blue pill with the same quantity of extract of jalap and antimonial powder were given every three or four hours. Bleeding from the arm was tried in a few cases, but it did not promise well, and was not again resorted to; indeed, it seemed to aggravate the symptoms where it was employed. Mercury also was tried in some cases, but it produced no benefit in the worst cases—the system could not be affected by it at all. Post mortem examinations shewed a more or less general state of psalcar enlargement. Dr. Spencer could not in any case recognise distinct inflammatory action in any organ, but congestion was very apparent sometimes in the head, sometimes in the abdomen, rarely in the thorax. When the disease did not prove directly fatal the sequelae were often very troublesome, dysentery of a severe and obstinate character was very frequent and generally fatal in the end. Abscesses too, in many cases, followed recovery, and in others occurred in the course of the disease; in some cases these appeared to be critical. The blistered surfaces occasionally gave considerable annoyance by sloughing. Dr. Spencer considers the fever to have been contagious under certain circumstances. This was more especially observable in the jail and amongst the lowest of the inhabitants of the town where it was decidedly propagated by infection. The mortality was very great both in the district generally and in the jail, though every precaution was taken in the latter to prevent its extension and to bring the prisoners early to the notice of the medical officer. The author states his inability to offer any remark upon the specific cause of the disease, although the unusual scarcity of rank in the preceding year may perhaps be regarded as producing some influence upon the air to determine the prevalence of epidemic miasmata in the neighbourhood. In speaking of the state of the jail Dr. Spencer makes several judicious observations upon the closeness and confined state of the jail hospital, strongly recommending that buildings of this nature should be placed on the outside of the prison, not as too frequently occurs, consisting merely of a ward within the walls. The frequently crowded state of the hospital together with the notoriously dirty habits of the prisoners renders this exceedingly bad arrangement, and though at all times a native prison hospital must be of necessity a filthy and offensive place, much better means might be adopted to improve their condition in many instances. In this case every precaution was taken by the authorities to preserve cleanliness and ventilation. After the disease in question made its appearance, and choppers were erected outside the walls wherein the patients were much more favourably placed than they could be in the hospital, the good effects of this change of locality were very apparent in the improved condition of the prisoners after their removal.

In a subsequent account it appears that this formidable disease has now almost entirely disappeared.—India Gazette, Dec. 14.

H. H. GOODEVE, M. D.

Secretary Medl. Phys. Society.

We were glad to hail once more, the publication of the Medical and Physical Society's Transactions; a long time has elapsed since any labors of that useful body have appeared in print. Save that a brief abstract of their monthly proceedings, and the advertisement of the forth-coming Quarterly review, reminded us occasionally that the society existed, we should have been inclined to consider it defunct, or at least asleep; but we rejoice to perceive that the members have not been altogether idle during this long silence. The present number of their transactions evinces, that there are many amongst them whom the enervating effects of an eastern climate have not reduced to sluggishness, and the promise of the quarterly proclamations to the world that the members of the society are not loitering in their onward path. Still we regret to remark, that this volume is inferior in many respects to most of its predecessors. After two year's total silence we should have expected something more weighty in material, and more valuable in quality than the contents of the work before us. The papers are good enough of their kind, but there is a great absence of sterling matter, such as we have seen in former numbers, and the table of contents is unusually short. This deficiency can scarcely be attributed to the rivalry of Dr. Corbryn's journal, for we do not remember reading any communications in that periodical, which would have increased materially the value of the Society's transactions had they appeared in its pages. We fear rather, that it springs from a sufficient want of activity amongst the members; but we trust they will display more energy in future, and that we shall not again have similar cause for complaint.

We are much pleased to observe that the volume opens with a memoir of the late Mr. Twining written by the secretary, Dr. Goodeve. It is a tribute justly due from the Medical Society to the memory of that lamented individual. For so many years its chief support and most distinguished ornament; none could appreciate his loss so fully as that body, and none could better commemorate his worth whilst, as an individual member, the author of the memoir, from his intimate friendship with the deceased, was well chosen to execute the task. It is much to be regretted, that more ample means for forming a sketch of Mr. Twining's early career could not have been placed at Dr. Goodeve's disposal; but, in this distant country, it is impossible to collect such materials at a short notice, and in this case the difficulty was peculiarly great, as it appears that Mr. Twining had no relations or early friends in India to whom application for assistance could be made. The historical part of the memoir, therefore, contains little beyond what we have been already made acquainted with in the notices which appeared in the papers at the time of Mr. Twining's death. Dr. Goodeve seems to be an enthusiastic admirer of his late friend, and speaks, of him on all occasions in the warmest terms; but the subject of his memoir was fully entitled to all he has said of him, and to write otherwise, would have been to do injustice to his memory. Indeed, the manner in which the Professor has treated the subject throughout, is highly creditable to him. The author's notice of Mr. Twining in the capacity of a medical practitioner, will find an echo in the hearts of all who have had an opportunity of judging its truth:—

Already a distinguished Military Surgeon, well prepared by education, and with a mind stored with knowledge and experience of the most valuable kind; possessing habits of patient investigation and unwearied industry, with an acuteness of perception, and a power of generalization, enjoyed by few individuals; placed, moreover, in a situation where ample opportunities were daily ly offered for the exercise of these qualifications, it is not surprising that Mr. Twining should have risen to the eminence which he so deservedly reached.

Mr. Twining was not long in the General Hospital ere the public began to discover his worth, and to value his services, proportionately—he soon became extensively engaged in private practice. People of all ranks and religions, Europeans and Natives, flocked to him, and perhaps no man was ever better fitted to succeed in this department of his profession. His profound knowledge of disease in every form under which it could be presented to him, together with the natural firmness of his character, gave a marked decision and promptitude to his manner which at once inspired the sick with confidence and hope. This decision of manner never degenerated into sternness; for in nothing was he more remarkable than for the kind, soothing, and even affectionate treatment, and unremitting attention, by which he won the hearts of his patients, making his approach to the bedside a moment of joy to the sufferer, unmingled with that dread, which the physician's visit too often produces. He formed his judgment upon the nature of the diseases before him rapidly but coolly, and few men perhaps surpassed him in the correctness of their medical opinions and prognostications. His practice was bold and energetic, yet very simple. When Mr. Twining had once resolved upon the mode of treatment which he considered necessary for any particular case, he pursued the plan which he had marked out with steadiness and determination, until a favorable result rewarded his efforts, or till some new feature in the case imperiously required a change of measures. He had a strong contempt for that vacillation which often induces a less decided practitioner to alter his treatment with every trifling symptom, and to abandon some acknowledged method of cure, before it can have time to produce a due effect upon the disease—a course too often pursued, either because the patient, rendered irritable by sickness, appears discontented that the remedy is so slow in its operation, or peevishly declares it useless; or because the physician has not perseverance, or confidence enough, to allow it a sufficient trial. Some indeed have accused Mr. Twining of having been too firmly wedded to his peculiar views. He did perhaps usually prefer his own opinions to those of others, and acted upon them with considerable ardour; but surely such a proceeding is far more satisfactory to the physician, and safer to the patient, than that of the waverer, “who is blown about with every wind of doctrine.” The successful nature of Mr. Twining's practice affords a convincing proof of the justness of his own conclusions; but so far from refusing to adopt any improvements or new views which were from time to time introduced to the notice of the profession, never was any man more ready to give them a fair trial. His almost unequalled love of medicine as a science made him naturally curious about every thing connected with it, and when convinced of the value of any proposed alteration, he was ever ready to proscribe its reception. Indeed, we owe to Mr. Twining the adoption of many admirable modes of treatment in this country, besides the introduction of those which he has himself the merit of originating. He was remarkable for never seeking a second opinion, unless he felt that some good might accrue from it. He had an innate repugnance to ordinary consultations, and seldom acceded to the requests of his patients in this point, unless he thought that something might be gained by it. When, however, he did take the opinion of another, it was invariably followed up, though it might be in opposition to his own, provided it was supported on reasonable grounds.

The following remarks, too, upon Mr. Twining's private character, will be read with much gratification by those who had the pleasure of a personal acquaintance with him, or who have experienced his kindness and attention, and in this country, the latter class are by no means an inconsiderable number:—

Mr. Twining's whole character was marked by a large proportion of that benevolence which was stamped upon his countenance, and it was no where more conspicuous than in the unwearied kindness and attention, with which he regarded the sick of all ranks and descriptions, who were placed under his care. This feature of his character was not less strongly developed in the relations of private life. He was a most warm and sincere friend, and was delighted to have any opportunity by which he could serve those around him. In him his friends were never at a loss for council, or assistance; he gave both most freely, and when he thought it would be of service, he did not require to be solicited for either; though always offered on his part with a delicacy which could not offend the most sensitive mind.

None felt the effects of his kindly disposition more strongly than the Assistant Surgeons who were placed in contact with him in the General Hospital, on their first arrival in the country. He delighted to point out to them all that was interesting and important in their profession, and the benefit of his instructions will not easily be forgotten by those who have experienced them. While his talents commanded their deepest respect, he treated them with a degree of personal attention, in some instances approaching to paternal kindness, which at once won their attachment, and created in their hearts a feeling of regard for him, which was equally creditable to the pupils and to their instructor.

In domestic life, he was most affectionate; indeed it formed for him the greatest attraction in life. To a man of his studious and industrious habits, the gaieties of society had no charms; even had his professional avocations permitted him sufficient leisure to mix in the world, he would have preface preferred at all times to enjoy the tranquil pleasures of home and his books, enlivened by the intercourse of a few intimate friends, to all the joys which a gayer life could offer him.

Mr. Twining's amiable qualities, however, did not prevent him from possessing a remarkable degree of firmness and decision. His judgment too was very sound, and though not obstinate, he did not readily yield to another opinion, when he had once made up his mind upon any subject.

His industry appears to have been unremitting, as the following quotation will show:—

The extent of his practice had latterly become so great, and his exertions were so severe, as visibly to impair his health; though with unshaken fortitude, he never permitted illness to serve him as an excuse for idleness: and he refused to boast, that he had not been absent from his duty for a single day since he had been in Calcutta.

Though naturally of a robust and healthy constitution, the most iron frame could not have withstood the intense labor which he underwent, and no doubt he was gradually laying the foundation of the disease which destroyed him. Besides the extensive nature of his general practice in Calcutta, his public duties were by no means light. In addition to his appointment in the Hospital, he was Surgeon to the Calcutta Jail and the Upper Orphan School, and he was unremitting in the discharge of the duties attached to these appointments. He attended the General Hospital at all hours of the day and night, and much of his valuable observation upon disease was drawn from the close attention which he paid to the cases under his charge in that institution.

Not content, however, with all these occupations, Mr. Twining was a persevering student: he kept pace in his reading with the latest medical works, and was better informed, upon the progress which was making in Europe in all matters of science, connected with his profession, than many who have far more ample leisure. He was constantly engaged in some interesting investigation, which required difficult experiments and deep thought for its elocution; and occupied as he was, it its singular how he could have found time to write the numerous papers which he brought before the public, so replete with research, and enriched by valuable information as they invariably were. He had however acquired the desideratum of economising his time, so as to accomplish what others less industrious are apt to believe impossible. He was frequently at work during a large portion of the night, and when he had any great object in view, he used not to go to bed at all.

We fully agree with Dr. Goodeve in his observations upon Mr. Twining's writings:—

As a writer, Mr. Twining was clear, forcible, and unpretending. He wrote nothing for effect; all that he said was the result of experience and mature reflection, illustrated by a copious reference to the facts from which he had formed his opinions: so that his readers had an equal opportunity with himself of judging of their value. His observations were well arranged, the mode of reasoning fair, and very accurate; and his deductions stated with simplicity, and great modesty. His practical directions were exceedingly clear and intelligible. He never indulged in the vague though often ingenious speculations and groundless theories which scientific men of all classes are too apt to fall into; such a proceeding would have been entirely opposed to the general character of his mind, which, far from being imaginative or credulous, was strongly marked by a love of patient investigation, and a careful examination and comparison of facts, without which he would take nothing for granted.

His style of composition was plain and concise, without any attempt at ornament, or fine writing; but far from being clumsy, dull or constrained. It was indeed impossible to rise from the perusal of any of Mr. Twining's works, without being firmly possessed by a conviction of the superior mind and extensive knowledge of the author, and a deep sense of respect for his qualifications.

How much have the profession and the world at large lost by the early termination of this lamented individual's career!

The account of his last illness is painfully interesting, but even if our space permitted us to dwell longer upon this subject, the details of the case are too professional for extract in our columns. We must conclude by recommending the perusal of the memoir to all who know Mr. Twining and lament his loss.

The next paper is one by Dr. Griffith, upon the family of the Rhizophoræ, or some such frightful name. We are glad enough they are not a family of our acquaintance, we never should be able to pronounce a title of their patronimic. These, however, are a tribe of "gentle florets" not of young damselfs, so we may be excused for a want of politeness in declining to make their acquaintance. We certainly did attempt to introduce ourselves, but the sight of such jaw-breakers as Homamelidæ, Bruguetia, Macroshizæ, &c. deterred us completely. We made our bow therefore and walked off, inwardly cursing the detestable system of nomenclature which prevails amongst naturalists, it indeed an arbitrary choice of Greek derivatives and metamorphosed proper names can be dignified with the name of a system. Will no method of calling God's creatures by rational epithets ever be invented, or must the greater part of the world for ever be shut out from an acquaintance with scientific subjects arrested upon the very threshold of the temple of knowledge by the impossibility of mastering or at any rate of carrying away in their remembrance the jargon of terms which are applied to the objects they would study? We have no doubt that botanists will find most valuable matter in Dr. Griffith's paper; his character as a scientific botanist is too well known to admit of a question upon the subject; and we have been informed, by competent judges, that this communication is highly creditable to the author, but verily it is not for us to offer an opinion on the matter.

Next comes a case of Ranula, in which the left submaxillary gland was successfully extirpated by Dr. Malcolmson, of the Madras service. It appears that the operation was performed in opposition to the generally received opinion upon the mode of curing this disease. It was formerly considered too dangerous to resort to this method of removing it, although it might in many cases be very desirable. Dr. Malcolmson, therefore, deserves great credit for his boldness and the correctness of his judgment. The tumor was an enormous one containing at one time 20ozs. of fluid, and had been punctured several times without success, but it entirely subsided when the gland which secreted its contents was removed.

This is followed by a paper upon diseased veins, by Dr. Mount, of the 13th Light Dragoons. It contains two cases in which inflammation of the femoral and iliac veins proved fatal, together with a well-executed lithograph of the state of the vessels after death in one of the patients. The principal points of interest connected with these cases, is the similarity which they present in many of their characters to the Whiteleg or Phlegmasia Dolensæ of lying-in women, and their analogy with Beriberi. Dr. Mount, indeed, seems to regard the latter disease and the one he describes in his paper as identical.

Mr. A. K. Lindsey's history of a case of fatal stricture of the œsophagus succeeds. The account is well drawn up, and presents an interesting history of a very melancholy case.

Next we find "observations on Dramaculus, by Dr. Morehead, of the Bombay establishment," a very elaborate paper, in which the author endeavours to point out a connection between the localities of the guinea worm and the geological formation of the districts in which the insect abounds. He seems to regard the various trap formations as those in which the insect prevails, chiefly in secondary trap and he furnishes copious data in confirmation of his opinion.

There are two botanical papers by Dr. Wallich in this volume, one upon the plants called pucha pat, and Mishmee Teeta. The other upon the Cassia Lunceolata and the plant which yields the true senna leaf of the Bazaar. The Mishmee Teeta is a root growing in the borders of Upper Assam in high estimation as a powerful tonic and stomachic amongst the people of the country wherein it abounds. Dr. W. calls it a Coptis from a note by Mr. Twining, appended to this paper, it would appear that his experiments upon the Mishmee Teeta shew it to possess active qualities in restoring appetite and increasing the digestive powers, equaling in these respects our best bitter tonics. The Pucha Pat is found in every bazaar in Hindoostan, and is used by the natives as an ingredient in their chillums, and for scenting the hair of the ladies. The botanical history of this plant has not been well ascertained, but Dr. Wallich considers it to resemble one of the Marrubiums. The account of the senna plant, would, perhaps, present a subject of rather more general interest but "Horrescimus referentes." A certain uncomfortable sensation creeps over us upon the bare mention of this unsavory herb, and to enter upon the subject in detail would conjure up so lively a recollection of blank draughts and their "brethren of that ilk" that we must pass the subject over in silence, in the propriety of which conclusion we doubt not most of our readers will agree with us. Our worthy friend Dr. Wallich must pardon us; therefore, if we pay more respect in this instance to our own sensations than to the merits of what we have no doubt is a very excellent, and may be, to many, a most entertaining account of the "Two species of cassia which produce the senna a third distinct species of which bent of India, said by Roxburgh to that article." Besides the botanical and others in this number referring to natural history. One of these is a scientific and accomplished naturalist Dr. Cantor, entitled "Sketches of two undescribed species of venomous serpents with fangs behind the maxillar teeth." We thought there were already serpents enough in India for ordinary purposes; but it appears not, for Dr. Cantor's indefatigable industry in the pursuit of his favorite science, has discovered some dozens of new ones we believe, and the few which from the subject of this paper are but an insignificant portion of the result of his researches upon this point of zoology. Amongst other interesting matter connected with the peculiarities of these hide out-pets, Dr. Cantor says that he has kept one of them, the "Potomophis," in an empty jar for seven months during which time it declined all proffered food without any visible effect from this protracted starvation. When, however, the jar was filled with water, the snake exercised its appetite very extensively upon living fish which were given to it. We believe this species of self-denial is common to all venomous serpents in captivity and forms a very interesting feature in their natural history. From this quality also they form excellent good nourishment to send to the western world. We have heard of a gentleman who purchased a large cobra di capella at Madras for 8 annas, and sold it in New York for 100 dollars, the whole of which went to the credit side of his account, as the creature's board had cost him nothing during the voyage. Dr. Cantor remarks that these serpents with posterior fangs are not so venomous as those which are armed with fangs in front of their maxillar teeth.

The other subject of natural history to which we alluded, is an account of the fin of the Balista, by J. W. Knight, Esq. This Balista is a fish, which, by a curious mechanism, has the power of erecting certain spines growing upon its dorsal fin, these spines serving it as weapons of war upon occasions. A well-executed lithographic engraving of the apparatus accompanies the paper, without reference to which it could be difficult to describe the arrangement by which this fish-sepoy fixes his bayonets and prepares to charge. In connection with the subject of serpents and other offensive animals, we should not omit to mention a case of snake-bite successfully treated by venesection, drawn up by T. Smith, Esq., of the Madras Establishment. The patient, who was a strong active cooly, was said to have been bitten by a cobra di capella, and stimulants were tried for a short time without success; he appeared to be dying, when Dr. Smith resolved to try the effect of bleeding: 15ozs. of blood were drawn at first, but this was followed by no decided improvement; afterwards 18oz. more were abstracted, the patient then appeared to revive, and in a short time recovered completely. It must be remarked, however, that stimulants were employed at the same time in large quantities, so that it may even yet be questionable whether the blood-letting or the ammonia had the largest share in effecting the cure. Amongst other papers there is an elaborate and very well written history of scurvy, as it appeared at Nusseerabad, by D. Macnab, Esq. and a short account of the same disease in the 4th Regiment of Native Cavalry at that station. The disease seems to have prevailed to a frightful extent, reducing the sufferers to a most loathsome condition, but not often proving fatal. Every species of antiscorbutic was tried without much benefit; the only remedy which proved valuable was entire change of air, and this acted as a specific in all cases wherein it was tried.

The remaining communications, are a case of extensive liver abscess, containing upwards of 7 pints of fluid, which was successfully treated by puncture, by Dr. Colquhoun, of the 12th N. I. and a paper by Dr. D. Stewart, entitled "Observations upon diseases of European Seamen in Bengal." But our limits, already exceeded, will not permit us to extend our notice of these articles further than to state that Dr. Stewart's paper displays much acuteness of observation, and is altogether well worthy of attention. We have, indeed, carried our remarks upon the body of the transactions so far, that we have scarcely room to notice the appendix, and must content ourselves with merely referring our readers to some of the most interesting articles which it contains. Amongst these are a case of Extra uterine pregnancy, by Dr. Login. A report upon the climate of Vandie man's Land, by Dr. Milligan, and Dr. McRitchie's topographical account of St. Helena. A case of laryngitis complicated with Bronchocele successfully treated by friction with croton oil, by Dr. A. Campbell. Abstract of cases of rupture of the spleen by Drs. Leckie, Geig, and Hutchinson. Dr. Benza's account of a post mortem examination of a tiger, and Dr. Goodeve's account of a human monstrosity in the museum of the Medical College. To all of these gentlemen we must apologize for being compelled to treat them thus cavalierly, but we are helpless in the matter. We are glad to observe a new feature of the volume before us, in the shape of the abstract of the monthly meetings, an addition which must be very interesting to the members as forming a record of their proceedings to which they can, at any time, refer for information. In looking at the final page, we could have wished that a more numerous list of donations to the museum had greeted our eyes. Surely there must be ample opportunity for collecting materials for this purpose in India, if the members would only exert themselves a little to procure them; six or eight preparations in two years is surely slow work for the contributions of a body of nearly four hundred members. We must, however, take leave of the Transactions of the Medical Society, and we look forward with pleasure to a more frequent intercourse, in future, with that body through the medium of its Quarterly Journal, the hour of whose birth is now closely approaching.—India Gazette, Dec. 26.

THEATRICALS.

FRENCH OPERAS.—The French Operatic Company, burst forth on Thursday evening the 1st Dec. in all its strength on the Calcutta public.

The pieces selected were necessarily confined to such as did not require the aid of scenery or decoration, and a more pleasing and better executed Scenic Concert, looking at the two representations given in this point of view, we have hardly ever witnessed.

THE CHALET, the literary portion of which owes its being to Messrs. Scribe and Melesville, and the music of which is given to M. Adolphe Adam, is a pleasing little piece, and was well calculated to put forth into prominent notice, the musical qualifications of Messrs. Welter and Bonniol. The scene of Monsieur Welter with the air 'Vallous de l'Helvetie,' was a beautiful morceau, and finely executed; it sounded to us as belonging to the Italian school. If it were the production of Monsieur Adolphe Adam, he was, we suspect, indebted to his memory rather than to his invention for this piece of composition. Monsieur Bonniol and Made. de Ligny, who was, as usual, costumée à ravir, acquitted themselves with great merit in their respective parts. The concerted pieces in this little Opera were very pleasing. We observed Fleury, Mademoiselle Fleury, Fradin, and Mad. Thonon, in the chorus—it is needless to say the chorus was excellent. The Orchestra was conducted by Monir Thonon, and the usual good effects of the presence of this gentleman, were visible in this department.

The next piece, the Folies Amoureuses, was a sort of musical "pot pourri" or hodge podge, the ingredients of which were very choice, as our readers will incline to think, when we tell them, that the words of the piece, which is in verse, are written for the several musical compositions of the following eminent masters:—Mozart, Cimarosa, Paer, Rossini, Pavesi, Generali, and Steibelt; the piece itself is the production of M. Castil Blaze, who has adapted to the French stage, several of the Operas of Mozart, Cimarosa, and Rossini. The ground-work of the Folies Amoureuses, is of course taken from the Comedy of Regnard. The dialogue, savoured of the racy and vigorous style of Regnard, and the character of Crispin, gave to Fleury, who was admirably dressed, an opportunity of exhibiting some piquant acting. The concerted pieces throughout this Opera, were very carefully got up. Messrs. Bonniol and Fleury, among a great variety of other music, sang the well known duett from Tencredi, in which Mad. Schierom as Tancredi, and pizzoni, as Argiro, were wont to be so effective—Ah se dei malimiei—Fleury was the Tencredi on the occasion, and acquitted himself admirably. We did not, we confess, like our old friend the duett, in this novel shape quite so well as in its Italian costume: it was, nevertheless, an exceedingly well executed morceau. Mademoiselle L'Levery was in very good voice. The first trio between this lady, Mad. de Ligny and Welter, was beautifully executed; and was at once recognized as an old acquaintance: it was,—"Si dira chiesiete un orso, from the Agnese. Fleury sang a comic scena from the old opera Le Trame Deluse, of Cimarosa—well known to musicians, and commencing with the words, sei morelli, e quattro bzai.

The Duett between Welter and Mademoiselle L'Levery from the Festa delle Rose of Pavesi, was very pleasing—Io ti vidi, t'ammirai. The lady exhibited her great vocal powers, and, moreover, a considerable degree of archness and pleasantry of manner, in her execution of her portion of this duett, and the fine bass of Welter harmonized admirably with her clear and glassy soprano.

The quintett from the Nemici Generosi of Cimarosa, was very fine—it was executed by Mademoiselle L'Levery, Welter, Mad. de Ligny, Bonniol, and Fleury. The old musicians present appeared to be in ecstasy. To such as were not present, we beg to communicate the fact, that this piece, "stanco ma non ferito," was a treat, which they will do well to avail themselves of on the next opportunity presented.

Mad. L'Levery sang shortly after this, a Spanish Seguidilla—with a pretty lament at the end of each couplet, ai, ai, ai.—beginning with the words.

Plus fraîche que l'Aurore
Qui vient d'éclorer
La Jeune Laure
A subjugué mon cœur.

Ai, ai, ai.

She is supposed to have gone mad for the occasion. It is impossible to conceive a prettier or more agreeable phasis of insanity than that, thus exhibited by the French Prima Donna. The next air, was from the Elizabetta of Rossini—Vendicar Sapré l'Offesa. This was given with great effect by Mademoiselle L'Levery.

The duett between Bonniol, and Madlle. L'Levery, dressed as Calotta, was beautiful—che bella vita e il militar from the Donna Soldato of Ceperali.

The finale was an old friend of the Calcutta musical world—and consisted of Questo Nido Svillupato, from the Cenerentola—and sino il piante e Negato al ciglio from the Gazza Ladra. This morceau was exceedingly well executed, and the curtain fell amidst the well merited applause, and acclamations of a delighted audience. We have now an excellent Operatic Company; they have proved themselves strong in every department of Opera; they have in addition to a good tenor, not possessed by the last Company, a female chorus, Mad. Thonon, Madlle. Fleury, and another lady, with the addition also of Mad. Welter. When we say chorus, as applied to these ladies, we mean not to designate them as mere chorus singers, but only to remark, that the excellent understanding, which pervades this company, induces these ladies to officiate in opera in this capacity very much to their own credit, and to the increased effectiveness of the representation presented.

We passed a most delightful evening—such a musical treat we have not for a long time enjoyed. We have not seen the subscription book of late, we trust it is by this time filled. One hundred and twenty subscriptions will ensure the performance of the series of sixteen operas, without a loss to the artistes. Remuneration for their labour can only be derived from any addition to this number of subscribers; and, we must needs say, the dence himself must be in the Calcutta beau monde, if their love of good music and their Mecenas like attributes as patrons of the arts, will not induce them to take by the hand these deserving and accomplished strangers.

Are Briton's sons so good or so cold as not to be tempted by the bill-of-fare we published some time since? and are rupees, Company's rupees, so scarce, that 12,000 of them cannot be marshalled in array on this interesting occasion?!

An Opera was, we ever understood, one of the necessities of life, to the educated English classes. Taking Calcutta, in point of commercial and political importance, Rio Janeiro, Marseilles, Leghorn, Brussels, &c. &c., are not her equals, and yet they must have an Opera. Indigo is up, sugar on the rise—the British Merchant has been heretofore a princely fellow—why should he now, in prosperous times, be less princely than before? However much the salaried and the Covenanted may dread a clipper, for the Calcutta Merchant a clipper has no terrors.

The cutting system may affect others, we trust it will not operate on the mercantile world, and that they will patronize, and not cut—the French Opera!—India Gazette, Dec. 5.

THE HUNCHBACK.—On Tuesday, the 6th Dec., we paid a visit to the Theatre, where we found all in full bustle and activity, preparing for the ensuing campaign. The Hunchback, will be presented with pretty much the same cast as before, the only alterations of consequence* being the substitution of the Count Almaviva for the Proteus, in the part of Sir Thomas Clifford, and the Secretary for another amateur, in the part of Wilford. The dresses and scenery, will be entirely new.

The Theatre itself is really beautiful. The house was of course in deshabille when we inspected it, but its natural beauties were quite apparent. The hand of innovation, and we will add of improvement, has been busily employed. The prompter's box is abolished, and the Trou du Soffleur substituted for it, quite in the foreign style—a decided improvement we should say, for inasmuch as it is the wont or nature of amateurs to have short memories, they will, under the present arrangement, receive much more effective aid from the prompter when he speaks from centre of the lamps, than, as heretofore, from the side wing. Then the old green curtain drop, has given place to a new and fashionable looking thing, green also in its general hue, but picked out with beautifully mystical looking hieroglyphics in frosted gold. A new drop scene is also in preparation, and will, we are told, be a splendid piece of scene painting. The house will be lit by a magnificent cut-crystal chandelier. Of the body of the Theatre itself, we will say nothing at present; it shall, as far as we are concerned, burst in all its splendour on the admiring eyes of that numerous audience, which will certainly be present to hail the drawing up of the curtain on the eventful night of the 15th instant. Suffice it to say, that the proprietors have spared neither care, pains nor expense; that good taste and magnificence are allied on the occasion, and that their union has been productive of the happiest results.

At a meeting of managers held on Tuesday morning, we understand that seven honorary associates were elected, and this compliment, we are glad to learn, has been conferred on those amateurs, not proprietors, whose exertions in the cause of the drama have been so favourably received by the public. The privileges attached to this title of honorary associate, are, of course, exceedingly gratifying to those on whom they are conferred; it gives them access at all times to the mysteries of the green room, and is, moreover, a delicate attention on the part of the proprietors to those, whose tastes and predilections lead them to take a lively interest in the prosperity of the theatre. We understand also, that the active and zealous stage manager, is about to institute a small dramatic club, confined exclusively to those who have "strutted and fretted their hour" on the stage. Something of the sort has, in our estimation, long been a desideratum, and much good will come of it; the dinners of the society will constitute a sort of Theatrical Cabinet Council, in which all measures for the promotion of Dramatic interests will be discussed. And considering the fact, that most of the Amateurs who will take part in these discussions, are immersed in matters of business during the day, these meetings will give opportunities for discussion, and arrangements, which their avocations do not permit of during the hours of business. Beside which, when we look at the names of the body of Amateurs, and recall to mind the talents, both social and otherwise, in the possession of most of them, we cannot but anticipate much ambrosial conviviality from these Thespian regulations. The Chowringhee Greenroom may henceforth have "its noctes" as well as other places.

Of the proposed arrangements we can speak in the highest terms of praise; for the first two nights, the private boxes as well as the public section of the Theatre, is to be thrown open to the public; after which arrangements will be entered into, for the letting of the private boxes by the night or for the season.

The next performance to follow the Hunchback, is, we understand, to consist of a Grand Scenic and Dramatic Concert, in which all the talent, both foreign and native, in and out of Calcutta, will be called into requisition. After this, Verginius is, we believe, to be performed. Of further arrangements we at present cannot speak.

With reference to the French Operas, we are told, that a talented amateur of known liberality proposes, supposing the attractions possessed by the French Company should not produce on the public the effect anticipated, to assist them by performing something English on each night of their Operas, and for this purpose arrangements are making with the English professionals; to secure their services in this matter at a reasonable rate of remuneration. We apprehend no difficulty will be experienced on this score.

We trust that one or two sterling comedies will form part of the bill of fare, for the ensuing season. The company of Amateurs, is decidedly strong in this line. Proteus, the Count Almaviva, the Secretary, Modus (a host in himself), the Lord Tinsel of the Hunchback, Captain Absolute, and, though fast not by any means least in dramatic stature, Bob Acres! Here is a goodly phalanx of amateurs, all good men and true, and all capable of filling with effect any of the casts of parts in Ben Johnson, Congreve, Farquhar, Sheridan, &c. These, with the aid of Mrs. Leach and Mrs. Francis, added to the probable accession of a successful debutante or two during this season, will render the effective strength of the amateur corps in genteel comedy, most delightfully formidable.

We should like to see "Every man in his humour", the "Recruiting Officer", with his Serjeant Kite, the "Beaux Stratagem", &c, &c., any one of which is easily cast in the present state of the dramatic forces. We understand that Mr. Linton has something very choice in preparation for his night.

Rumours of Lodoiska, and Freyhüts have reached our ears; but these are mysteries we may not seek to penetrate and which time and the hour can alone disclose.

We wish the proprietors and their spirited managers, all possible success.—India Gazette, Dec. 9.

Of all modes of recreation for the rich, the drama is certainly the most intellectual, and, if properly conducted, the most useful to the amateur performers and their co-exiles of either sex. If a dramatic poet (worthily so called) is rare, the cause is to be found in the rare combination of various (some apparently inconsistent) qualities, requisite in him who is faithfully to represent the virtues and vices, beauties and absurdities, of all ranks and descriptions of this motley world; to mould and dovetail those qualities in subservience to one single plot; to accomplish one single object which is called unity of action, in language adapted to the period of the story, drawn from, and illustrated by, incidents co-existent with the actors, constituting 'unity of time,' and bring the actors in contact, within such an area as may reasonably be traversed within a few days,—the modern license for 'unity of place.' The ancient Greeks, and the French of Louis XIV. were so staunch for 'the unities,' that the whole drama was performed in one apartment, without lowering the curtain, and the tyrant 'comes to be killed' to the spot where the conspirators had just been concocting his downfall. But to conceive a character such as might exist, but the world ne'er saw; untrue but probable; which shall startle, yet please; shall utter noble, or sarcastic, or witty sentiments in appropriate language, on fitting occasions; requires hardly more talent, judgment, knowledge of life and power of nice discrimination; than the actor must possess, who can worthily embody the conceptions of the poet. To look to perfection the various 'actors in real life,' to preserve throughout, the gait, the voice, the tone of mind, the simulated passions raised and adapted to the persons and situations of the drama; requires more than mere study,—it demands a superior capacity. It is as necessary to be born an actor as a poet. Good acting is poetry.

These are the reflections of a visitor at Calcutta, on witnessing the amateur representation of the Hunchback, which was performed in a masterly manner. The principal actors possess some of the first and most essential qualities, namely, ease and self-possession;—there was nothing guide about them; another great quality,—they were or appeared to be, independent of the prompter; 3rdly, their dresses were rich and appropriate; 4thly, their bye play—"the all in all," was unremitting: 'the eye was not silent.' Such actors can bear, and are worthy of criticism. They will, therefore, excuse me if I 'lay it on' where my conception of the characters does not quite tally with theirs, promising, that, as I am quite sure I could not act so well as they did, I may be equally as incapable of comprehending the author.

The object of the author is to shew the rise and fall of the innocent, but proud-spirited JULIA, whose conversion from a love of fine dresses and town amusements, is effected by the plots and combinations of her father and lover; to plunge her on to the verge of despair, and out of the 'nettle danger to pluck the flower, safety.' JULIA becomes a female Bonaparte. When the moment comes in the fifth act, which she fancies is to tear her from CLIFFORD by giving her to ROCHAMBEAU, her character displays itself not in tears, but in fury: she threatens 'like empty tigers or the roaring sea.' When I saw Fanny Kemble, after the words 'Do it, nor leave the task to me,' I was electrified by the wild haggard expression of her eyes; the rigid extension of our arms; not the sorrow, but the desperation of despair. She was Cassandra enacting the future woes of Iliad, or the bride of Lammermuir about to stab 'the bonnie bridegroom,' or (not to speak it profanely) a female Satan defying the Almighty. Pretty, clever Mrs. Leach, whose pathetic tones (above all when weeping) are more musical than I have before heard upon any stage, instead of playing, as JULIA intended, upon the fears of WALTER, melted into tears and fell at his feet. This is the only fault I could find in that delightful actress, who would astonish some critics in London. MASTER WALTER was too serious in the first scene between CLIFFORD and JULIA: he should have rallied them kindly when he found them coquetting, as he brought CLIFFORD there on purpose; and when CLIFFORD appears as secretary by the second connivance of Walter, there should have been (for the audience), a secret exchange of glances, to shew the object, and how they were acting in concert. CLIFFORD's acting, wherever it was necessary to betray his passion, was graceful and animated; but he (I humbly submit) quite mistook his cue when he first appeared as secretary. He has lost his fortune, but 'the man's a man.' He should have entered with a proud humility; this mantien should have been erect, though his eyes were dejected. His pace should have been firm, as became one who, though depressed in circumstances, still felt himself by birth a gentleman. The amateur entered 'like a guilty thing,' as if he were not quite certain he was worthy of being even a secretary, and crawled forward with the letter, as if it had been a bowl of poison of his own drugging. Kemble, whenever he does not catch JULIA's eye upon him, puts on the countenance of a surgeon who is probing a wound in the breast, watching how much more pain the patient can endure without fainting.

LORD TINSSEL was well dressed and acted, but he missed some of the best hits, by being always serious. Instead of laughing at his own joke about the rector, he turned his head to suppress the laugh. LORD TINSSEL laugh at himself and all about him;—he is only serious before company of their own rank. MASTER MODUS is such a fool, as no talent could make other than disagreeable. It was written to shew off the merit of Miss Taylor in the extremely difficult, and complicated character of his cousin. MODUS was played as well as it could be played. FANNY was impayable.

On the whole, the performance does great honor to the society of amateurs. It infinitely surpasses any thing of the kind I have seen in any part of Europe, and the audience by their support of such a refined amusement, prove themselves worthy of the exertions of gentlemen to contribute by their (no trifling) labour, to the recreation and instruction of the ladies of the colony.—Englishman, Dec. 17.

CHARLES THE 2ND AND THE DUEL.—We, on Monday the 26th Dec., attended the Theatre, the House was very well filled, and the two pieces went off admirably. Lord Auckland and the Misses Eden were present.

Charles the 2d was exceedingly King was very good, and his fi admired. Rochester was horridly delighted, only he made the people ought to have cried; but this was only on Captain Copp, the Secretary, was decidedly hero of the piece, to judge from the plaudits with which his acting was hailed. Mrs. Leach was a very interesting Mary, and the Page was an exceedingly good specimen, of a dashing and slightly sentimental Court Page. The duet between this Amateur and Mrs. Leach was very well executed.

The second piece, the 'Duel,' was apparently very successful. The Amateurs were very perfect in their parts, and played with much spirit. Mr. O'Mauley, by a well known and favorite Amateur, who appears but too seldom, was greatly and most deservedly applauded. The Secretary was apparently exhausted by his efforts in Copp: he played, we thought, with much judgment, and was very well dressed; but occasionally inaudible, a great defect, in as much as most of his points, which were well put, fell into the orchestra, and so were burked almost in the instant of their birth. There was a sublime cockney, Mr. Rumfit, but his drollery was not duly appreciated by the audience.

Mr. Augustus Boyant, a regular London swell, the Patron of boxing, pigeon shooting, dog fighting, and sporting of all sorts—well known at Tufhill fields, Westminster, and who backed the hundred rats against the celebrated dog Billy, who now sleeps with his fathers, was personated with much success by Count Almaviva. His brother, Lieut. Boyant, was played by another Amateur, who looked his part well, and Snooks the Bailiff, was a perfect picture. The audience laughed much, and received the efforts of the Amateurs with much of courteous and deserved applause.—India Gazette, December 30.

DAME BLANCHE. We were very happy to observe on Wednesday evening, the 28th December, the very considerable number of persons present, to witness the performance of the two Operas, the Maitre de Chapelle of Paër, and the Dame Blanche of Boieldieu. The house was exceedingly well attended; we should say there were present at least one hundred and fifty persons over and above those belonging to the List, which contains about one hundred and fifty subscriptions.

Of the performance and of the execution of the charming music of the first opera, the Maitre de Chapelle, too much cannot be said. The strength of the piece lay with Fleury and Madlle. Léméry, not to omit to mention Monsr. Thonon and his Orchestra. It was a delightful musical recreation, perhaps the most perfect, taken as a whole, which has as yet been presented to a Calcutta audience. The Dilettanti, were evidently in raptures, and to your unscientific ears, we confess, the precision, aplomb, good taste, and execution, manifested by the two talented performers we have just mentioned, was a source of much gratification. We suspect that the idea of that very successful little opera, la prova d'une opera seria, must have originated in this pretty little musical bijou. Be that as it may, we hope to hear this opera repeated. The music is of the best order, purely Italian, and Madlle. Léméry especially shines on it. The libretto is the production of Monsr. Alexander Duval; but it has been thrown into its present shape by the celebrated Sophie Gay; and the music of the 1st act, which is the only one of the two ever performed, owes its creation to Paër. The composer of the Agnes, need not blush for the Maitre de Chapelle, it is well worthy of his genius. To those curious in the story, it need only be observed, that Gertrude (Madlle. Léméry) is the cook pupil of Barnabi, an old but enthusiastic Italian composer, who has produced a magnificent de profundis, worthy of Pergolesi, and an opera Seria called Cleopatra; but neither of which have as yet been submitted to the public. Barnabé is in love with the pretty, lively and espiegle Gertrude, but he is not quite certain to which of her talents he has resigned his heart, to her singing or her cooking qualifications. We can only say that if the lady can cook half as well as she sings, she owes to this community, to work a reformation in the present state of the culinary art in this city. The above is all of the plot that transpires in the few scenes of this opera, which stage etiquette, of course regulated by the public taste, permits to be presented. The musical pieces consist of a comic trio, between Fleury, Fradin and Maillé. Léméry, a fine scena, executed by Fleury, something in the style of the grand scena, in the fanatico, al es tro mio sublime, and lastly, in an exquisite duett, between Barnabé (Fleury) and the charming Gertrude, the music of which is delicious. These are the only pieces we recollect to have heard, but they are graceful, in their construction, and, we are told, highly scientific in their accompaniments—we can depose to their beauty and simplicity. The whole thing does not occupy three quarters of an hour, and we venture to hint, that the artists will consult their subscribers' tastes, in again, and shortly too, presenting this most agreeable composition.

(Of the Dame Blanche, we have not time to say half as much as it deserves. It was very well got up; but to us it appeared, that there was seen and heard, a great deal too much of the tenor, (Banniol), and a great deal too little of Madlle. Léméry and Welter.

This opera is written for one part, the Tenor; he is the Atlas of the piece, and has almost all the business to himself. We, as political economists, are for a division of labour in future. The company is very strong, let them cast operas, in which the business is more equally distributed; at all events, place an Dames! If we are to hear one person all night, let us have the prima Donna in future, and not the Tenor. The music of the Dame Blanche, is very pretty; as a composition, we infinitely preferred the first to the second act; but they both are pretty. The old air of Robin Adair, is very scientifically treated in the second act. We think out of the slender materials afforded by it, the composer has worked up a quartet, chorus and scena. The opening chorus, Maillé, de Ligney's couplets, ah quel plaisir d'être soldat, the duett beginning c'est la cloche de la Tourelle between Madlle. Léméry and Welter, the duett between Madlle. Léméry and Banniol, when she appears to him in the haunted chamber, beginning "Ah, que cette main est jolie," and the grand auction scene: all these pieces of music were exceedingly well executed and greeted with much applause, by the audience.

After what we have said, it is needless to observe, that the two operas went off extremely well. The prospects of the French Company, we therefore think, are excellent, and they certainly deserve all the patronage, which we begin to think, they will receive. Lord Auckland, the Hon'ble Miss F. Eden, with General Allard, and a party, occupied the Vice-Royal box.

We take the freedom of again suggesting to the Managers, that the stage was enveloped in a murky gloom, very fit for the Witches Cavern in Macbeth, or the Wolfs Glen in Der Freischutz, but exceedingly out of place in any other scene which we remember. It is at present, when most desirous of shining, at best but a sort of darkness visible. We recommend the re-instatement into office, of the old proscenium chandeliers, no matter for the scenic anomalies: light is a primary object, especially in a Theatre dedicated principally to amateur representations. We could hardly distinguish the star and garter of his Majesty, Old Rowley, on the latest performance but one; and delicate French rouge is lavished in vain, if there be not a sufficiency of light to develop its exquisite tints.

The efforts of Moner, Thonon, and his Orchestra, deserve the highest praise. They were completely successful.—India Gazette, Dec. 31, 1836.

INSOLVENT COURT.

In the report of some proceedings in the matter Cruttenden and Co., published in our paper of Saturday, we stated that the order nisi would be drawn up, on the putting in of certain affidavits. We understand that Mr. Cullen, the gentleman who has to swear, applied on Wednesday morning for further time.—Englishman, Dec. 1.

THURSDAY, 1ST DEC. 1836.

In the matter of Cruttenden and Co.

The following is the substance of Mr. Cullen's affidavits put in this day:—

1st ADDITIONAL AFFIDAVIT.

That he entered into the service of the then members of the firm of Cruttenden, Mackillop and Co. in December 1817, (which firm consisted of George Cruttenden, James Mackillop, and G. Mackillop) with the ultimate prospect of being a member of the firm in the event of any vacancy; that James Mackillop went to England for his health in June 1820; but previous to his departure empowered G. Cruttenden and G. Mackillop to make such alteration in the firm, by the admission of additional partners, as they thought fit; and that it was intended on the departure of James Mackillop that he (James Cullen) and James William Taylor should be admitted partners. But circumstances occurred which rendered it expedient to wait the return of the said James Mackillop, previous to adopting such measure. That James Mackillop in August 1821, proceeded to sea, and authorized George Mackillop to form a new co-partnership; that James Mackillop having returned in September 1821 resumed his duties but on a recurrence of ill-health it was necessary that he should again proceed to sea, and that George Cruttenden having proceeded to China and being absent longer than was expected, it was necessary to make arrangements for carrying on the business, the old firm; therefore, ceased on 1st January 1822, it was arranged that James Mackillop should retire from the firm, and that he, and David Bryce should be admitted parties, and that the principle of in lieu was that James Mackillop should accept a specific sum, in adjustment his share of the capital then standing to his credit in the books, and that his interest and claims should cease on that day, and as an indemnity against loss he should make over to the continuing members a certain percentage, in the shape of what was called the reserve fund on all bad debts then out-standing of which the recovery was at the time considered to be doubtful, and that these partners released him from all responsibility. That on this occasion a strict scrutiny as to the state of the finances and balance sheet took place, and a valuation of such debts and property as had become doubtful or precarious since James Mackillop entered the firm, was made, for the purpose of making such addition to the reserve fund, as in their judgment would cover such doubtful debts, before dividing the profits. And on this occasion an estimate was made and the same amounted to Rs. 36,72,448 on 1st January 1822, and that to his belief this was the true ascertained and estimated amount, which was by mutual consent agreed upon for the losses that had accrued, or might hereafter accrue. That by a deed of dissolution and co-partnership of 5th March 1822, a dissolution took place of the old concern, and that James Mackillop made over to the new partners, his share of the said sum of Rs. 36,75,448, and of all the property of the firm; that a new partnership was formed between G. Cruttenden, G. Mackillop, James Cullen and David Bryce, for the next five years from 30th April 1822, being 3-16 to G. Cruttenden, 3-16 to G. Mackillop, 2-16 to Cullen and 2-16 to Bryce, the remaining 6-16 to go to the reserve fund, and appropriated as an accumulating fund for the discharge of losses, and added to the sum of Rs. 36,75,448. He also states that James Mackillop's account of the actual profits was on 30th April 1822, the sum of Rs. 25,54,369 7 2 of which 18,37,724 was credited to the reserve fund, to meet such bad debts, which the new partners took upon themselves the realization of; and that the balance after sundry disbursement was 5,08,484 9 7 and was credited to him as due; states that at this period he verily believes, and still believes that the concern was in a prosperous and solvent condition, and that the adjustment was fair and equitable. That subsequent to the retirement of James Mackillop notice was given by advertisement and letters sent to the creditors. That on 31st December, 1824 the said balance of James Mackillop's account of Rs. 5,84,484 9 7, was reduced to 2,74,251-1 he having received in the intermediate years 2,34,233 of the balance originally placed to his credit.

That in February, George Mackillop wished to leave the firm and that a further investigation and strict scrutiny took place, of their balance sheets, &c. on such debts as had become doubtful since the formation of the new co-partnership; the result was that the 6-16th share of the profits, and out turn of the said firm, appropriated towards accumulating and augmenting the reserve fund, had amounted with the former sum of 36,75,448 to 41,70,678-10-6, to which sum was added a further sum of 4,62,843, for assets of the firm considered available, placed to the credit of the reserve fund, together with the estimated share of 6-16th of the net profits of the said concern, for the current year, which 3 sums amounted to Rs. 47,35,516-10-6; that the estimated amount and allowances for the bad debts that might accrue during the new partnership, in addition to the sum of 36,75,448 on 30th April 1827, amounted to 49,16,000 and this deponent believes that the sum of 47,35,516-10-6 being deducted, the sum of 1,84,483-5-6 was left to be made up by the partners, G. Mackillop, paying 1 lakh, and the remaining partners the balance. That on 30th April 1827, the sum of 4,64,216, was due to G. Mackillop, on his private account. That by a deed of 7th Feb. 1827. The partnership was dissolved, and G. Mackillop made over the full amount of profit that might hereafter ensue, from 30th April 1826 to the new firm, consisting of J. Cullen, D. Bryce, T. Hutton and Browne, which was joined for 5 years, from May, 1827.

That 6-16th of the apparent profit, should be set aside for the reserve fund — the remaining 0-16th to be divided, thus, 5-15th to James Cullen, 5-15th David

Bryce, and 3-15th each to Brown and Hutton. On retirement of G. Mackillop, the usual notices were given. He further states that the adjustment was fair, that the affairs of the said firm were considered so very prosperous and solvent when James Mackillop left, that he the deponent and David Bryce, then in the Military service of the Honorable East India Company, and holding an office of emolument in the college, sought and obtained admission; and that in 1827 when George Mackillop retired their affairs and concerns were not only considered perfectly solvent and prosperous, but in such a flourishing condition as to induce R. Browne a medical man in extensive and profitable practice, and Thomas Hutton a Merchant, and agent, to join, who each brought 1,40,000 Rs. into the house. He also states that during the period which has elapsed since the agreements that were entered into, when James Mackillop left, and subsequently when G. Mackillop left; their fairness or validity has in no one instance to his knowledge been questioned, or in any respect impeached, either by them, or the continuing partners; or have the claims of James or George Mackillop to the balance standing at their respective credits in the books, been in any instance called in question, until after the insolvency of the firm. That, from the 1st January 1822, up to 31st December 1833, the sum of Rs. 3,34,000 was drawn by, and paid out to James Mackillop; and that during the said period no less a sum than 5 lakhs or upwards has been received from or paid to his credit in the books of the firm including the accumulation of interest.

Also states that by 23d clause of the deed of dissolution and co-partnership of 7th February 1827, it was agreed by the new firm that if any of the partners should be compelled by ill health or other cause to proceed to Europe or any foreign settlement with the prospect of being absent from office more than 4 months, it should be optional with the remaining partners to close his account and put an end to his interest in the concern, as they might think fit. On 12th March 1828. David Bryce having left Calcutta, his interest and share was put an end to by the remaining partners on 30th April 1828;—that a strict scrutiny took place, and a valuation of such debts as had become doubtful and precarious since the period of the new partnership and that it was considered necessary to make such addition to the reserved fund as might be sufficient to cover the risk before dividing off the profits; and that the account of David Bryce of, and in the actual profits, was at the date his interest ceased, adjusted, and that the same amounted on 30th April 1828, to Rs. 2,33,00 from which Rs. 1,82,948 was considered a sufficient sum to be added to the Reserve fund, or full indemnity for all loss which the continuing members took on themselves. That the balance on 3d February 1829, Rs. 55,027 was due to his estate, he having departed this life since leaving India. That certain sums from a Life Insurance have since been added to it, and that on 30th April 1829, the sum of Rs. 71,963 was due to his executor, since which and during the year 1829, other sums have been received from the Insurance Office, and a sum of 40,000 Rs. from the account of James Mackillop, as deponent believes a present, or charitable contribution for the benefit of his family; that the estates of D. Bryce continued at the usual interest, and amounted at the insolvency of the firm to Rs. 1,20,306. That at the period the interest of David Bryce ceased, this deponent verily believed, and still believes, that the firm was in a prosperous, and solvent condition; and the adjustment that took place was fair, equitable and bona fide, and that he believes that subsequent thereto the usual notice was given as formerly. He also states that during the period which has since elapsed until the insolvency of the house, in no instance, to his knowledge, has the fairness or validity of this adjustment been impeached by the continuing partners, or has the claim of estate of D. Bryce been called in question, but has been treated on the same footing as the claims of the other creditors, with the usual allowances of interest, and due acknowledgment of the debt.

2ND ADDITIONAL AFFIDAVIT.

James Cullen maketh oath and saith that by a deed of copartnership of 7th February, 1827, Thomas Hutton and others made a partnership for 5 years from 1st May 1827. And that as before a clause was inserted that in the event of being obliged to go away sick for upwards of 4 months, the remaining partners could close his account, and determine and put an end to his interest in the concern. That Thomas Hutton brought in Rs. 1,66,820, which sum was credited to his account. That subsequently the sum of 90,000 was credited to his account by transfer from that of George Mackillop; and that the capital so brought in amounted in the aggregate to Rs. 2,26,820, as will appear by a reference to the books. In January, 1830, Thomas Hutton was obliged by ill health to proceed to Europe, and they agreed to put an end to his interest in the concern and to place at his credit on 1st May 1830, after a strict scrutiny and valuation of the accounts and assets of the firm, the sum of 2 lakhs in the balance due to him, and in full of his share up to and including the commercial year 1829-30, as a consideration for the transfer of his share of the real and personal property in the concern; and by a deed of dissolution of 27th January 1830, his interest and his share in the effects became the property of Cullen and Brown, and that all debts should be paid and borne by them. That the principle of adjustment on this occasion was, that he should accept a specific sum in compromise of the capital he brought into the firm, and of his claims to a share of the net profits of the copartnership up to 30th April 1830; and as indemnity for loss he made over to the firm the residue of his balance at credit, and in consideration of which the continuing partners relieved him from further risk and responsibility, in the debts and concerns of the establishment. He further states that on this occasion an investigation and strict scrutiny took place as to the state of the assets and finances of the firm, and of their balance sheet, &c. Valuation of all debts as had become doubtful or precarious since the period of his joining, and to make such addition to the reserved fund as the remaining partners might deem sufficient to cover the risk of doubtful and precarious balances, before dividing the profits of the said partnership. That his share on the said dissolution, amounted on 30th April 1830 to Rs. 3,53,298 and that the sum of 1,53,268 was considered a sufficient sum to place to the reserve fund as full indemnity against loss, and that his balance amounted to 2 lakhs, when he retired from the firm, that he verily believes the concerns of the Firm were in a solvent and prosperous condition, and still believes them to have been so; that the adjustment which took place was fair, equitable, and bona fide. That the usual notice was given and that from that period up to the insolvency of the firm, in no instance has, to his knowledge, its fairness, or validity been in any respect impeached by the partners, or by any of them, nor has his full claim to the balance at his credit in question been called in, but that his account has been made up with the usual interest and acknowledgment.—Englishman, Dec. 3, 1836.

DEC. 10, 1836.

An application was made on behalf of Mr. R. C. Jenkins to be discharged from the office of Assignee of Mackintosh and Co. on the ground that he is going to England, and that the estate is nearly wound up. In reply to a question by the Chief Justice, Mr. Holroyd, the co-assignee, stated, that the accounts were filed up to a late date in October. Chief Justice,—"That is not sufficient. The Assignee has power over the estate until the day of his discharge. Take your order nisi to be made absolute next court day, but the assignee must file his accounts to the day on which the order is to be made absolute."

Manickchunder Khan and Sibnarayan Sein were brought up and declared entitled to the benefit of the Act. One Shaik Choono was opposed and examined at great length by the Advocate-General with a view to prove a collusive adjudication; and the Chief Justice thought there was sufficient ground to postpone the case, to allow the petitioning creditor an opportunity to come in and show cause why the adjudication should not be revoked.

IN THE MATTER OF JAMES YOUNG AND OTHERS.

The Advocate-General had on the 8th of October obtained a rule to show cause why the Bank of Bengal should not be admitted as creditors of the estate of the late firm of Alexander and Co. to prove their claim for Sa. Rs. 5,56,749 0 3 and 1,73,269 12 7 and to receive dividends on these two sums rateably with the other creditors, and why the Assignees should not pay dividends on the same, out of the assets of the estate. The Advocate-General and Mr. Prinsep appeared for the Bank of Bengal in support of the rule, and Mr. Longueville Clarke and Mr. Leith opposed it on behalf of the Assignees.

Mr. Clarke's address to the Court lasted upwards of two hours, and referred throughout to several long accounts and calculations, its substance therefore can only be given. He commenced with stating that the point in dispute, put in the shortest manner was this: The Bank had possessed themselves of funds belonging to Alexander and Co.'s estate amounting to Sa. Rs. 7,35,411, which they had appropriated to themselves by applying it to the payment of the debt due to them from Alexander and Co.; and they now claimed a dividend on a further sum of 7,30,018 12 10 being the balance of that debt. The Assignees insisted that the Bank had no right to appropriate the first of these sums, but that it belonged to the estate, and ought to be divided among the creditors generally, and that the Bank, instead of being paid the first sum in full, and receiving a dividend on the second, should hand over the first sum to the Assignees and receive a dividend on both, that is on 14,65,429-12-10. Mr. Udny as Secretary to the Bank, and Mr. Boyle the Attorney of the Assignees, had each put in affidavits with accounts annexed to them, and this was the only evidence before the Court. As the affidavits were long and the accounts voluminous, Mr. Clarke said he would not ask to have them read, but he would endeavour by way of statement, to possess the court of the substance of each. First as to Mr. Udny's affidavit. By this it appeared that the firm had failed on the 10th of Jan. 1833, at which time the Bank held 27 Bills or Notes which they had discounted for Alexander and Co. amounting to 17,73,051-3-9, and that by way of collateral security, they took an assignment of certain real property, which had been previously conveyed to trustees as a collateral security for the three firms of Mackintosh and Co. Crutenden and Co. and Fergusson and Co. who had since become insolvent and who were all parties to these 27 Bills as indorsers or acceptors. That part of this property thus mortgaged to the Bank had since been sold or redeemed by the Assignees of Alexander and Co. under an order of the Insolvent Court, and that the sums so realized had been applied in part satisfaction of the 27 Bills, but that there still remained due on them Sa. Rs. 5,56,749 0 3. This formed one transaction, the affidavit then went to another. It stated that at the time of the failure of Alexander and Co. the Bank also held 16 Bills and 2 notes making eighteen together, which had likewise been dishonored and on which there was now due Sa. Rs. 3,28,282 4 8 and from which the Bank had offered to deduct 1,55,012 0 8 being the amount of the profits accruing from working certain indigo factories. The affidavit then set forth the application by the Bank to the Assignees to register this claim on the 27 notes or bills, and on the 18 notes or bills which they held a above stated and to pay dividends on it, and their refusal was then stated. The Affidavit on behalf of the Assignees had been made by Mr. Boyle their Attorney; he stated that he had minutely inspected all the accounts rendered by the Bank, and the different deeds held by them,—that the partners of the late firm of Alexander and Co. were also the proprietors of the Bank of Hindoostan,—that as such proprietors, they had in December 1831 agreed to stop the issue of notes from their Bank, on condition of the Union Bank undertaking to give them a running credit in account to the extent of five lacks of rupees, as a security for which credit Alexander and Co. deposited with the Union Bank the title deeds of six valuable indigo factories and likewise executed a deed poll for that purpose. In February 1833 the 3 firms of Mackintosh and Co. Cruttenden and Co. and Fergusson and Co., agreed to give their signatures, to assist Alexander and Co. to negotiate Hills to the extent of 20 lacks of Rs., and as a security for the 3 firms, a deed poll was executed by Alexander and Co. to trustees, for the benefit of the 3 firms, conveying to them certain real estates, subject to a prior mortgage to the Loan Government Committee, and the Union Bank. That about 18 lacks of rupees worth of Bills bearing indorsements or acceptances of all the 3 firms had been discounted at the Bank of Bengal. [Mr. Clarke here stated that they were the 27 Bills mentioned in Mr. Udny's affidavit.] On the 17th Feb. 1832 an indenture of bargain and sale was executed, by Alexander and Co., to trustees, for the benefit of the 3 Firms, assigning the rents and profits of certain real estates, and of certain parcels of indigo then manufacturing at eight different factories, but subject to prior incumbrances; the trusts being 1st to pay a debt due to the Loan Committee and then to cancel the liabilities of the 3 Firms. That in December 1832 the 27 notes on which the 3 firms were liable to the extent of upwards of 17 lacks of rupees were in the Bank of Bengal, and Alexander and Co. having suspended payment, the trustees of the 3 firms executed to the Bank, an assignment of all their interest, in the properties so pledged to them by the deeds of February and September, in consideration of the Bank giving time. The affidavit then took up another transaction. On the 31st December 1832 Alexander and Co., owed the Union Bank 53,127 as a general cash account and 1,05,581, on the separate account, that was the account under the agreement of December 1831 for a running credit of 5 lacks; most of this was composed of drafts, and bills, drawn in favor of Alexander and Co., by Indigo Planters, indorsed by that Firm, and discounted by the Union Bank; among these were 3 drafts of Noran and Hills. The Firm failed in January 1833, but previous to that, it had advanced Sa. Rs. 40,370 to work the six factories pledged to the Union Bank; and on an application by the Assignees, the Union Bank advanced the sum of Sa. Rs. 2,23,000 to complete the cultivation of the season for those six factories. The Assignees had anticipated that they would have been able to work the 8 Factories pledged to the Bank of Bengal out of the proceeds of certain Indigo which had arrived in Calcutta, and which had been consigned to two mercantile Firms; but the Bank of Bengal had induced the consignees to deliver the indigo to them, under an indemnity. The Assignees thus stripped of their funds, by the act of the Bank of Bengal, were obliged to apply to that establishment, to make advances as the Union Bank had done to prevent the property from being destroyed. The Assignees entered into a written agreement to receive the advances, as the Agents of the Bank of Bengal, to be responsible to them for the entire produce of the season, and to obtain from the Planters a declaration, that they held the factories, and would produce indigo for the Bank of Bengal. This was only the customary agreement entered into by all proprietors of factories with their Agents, who made them advances; the Agents receiving, and selling the indigo, paying themselves principal, interest, commission, and expenses, and crediting the planter with the surplus. Previous to their failure Alexander and Co., had advanced 27,735 Rs. for the cultivation of the season; and on this agreement the Bank of Bengal advanced 3,79,333. The Assignees received and sold the indigo, paid over the produce to the Bank of Bengal, and charged no commission what ever. The affidavit then set forth another transaction. The Bank of Bengal were desirous of getting rid of the prior claims of Union Bank, and they therefore proposed to pay that establishment in full and to take an assignment of all its interest in the estates of the late firm of Alexander and Co. This was of course acceded to by the Union Bank, and the Assignees also gave their consent in a letter containing the following passage:—“We beg leave to state that if the Bank of Bengal pay off the debt of the late firm to the Union Bank, we agree that the Bank of Bengal should be placed in exactly the same position as the Union Bank previously was, and that it should in all respects hold precisely the same lien and claim in the securities, as that at present held by the Union Bank signed, W. C. Hurry, F. H. Burkinoying.” Under this arrangement the Bank of Bengal took an assignment from the Union Bank, and paid them 5,49,655 rupees; that was 3,20,157 rupees due on the separate or running credit account, and 2,29,498 due for advances for cultivation of indigo. At the time of the failure of Alexander and Co. they were in partnership with Moran and Hills in certain factories 9-16 of which belonged to Alexander and Co. and 7-16 to Henry Hill, who was largely indebted to Alexander and Co. who held his title deeds as an equitable mortgage. The affidavit then referred to a schedule marked (A) which was taken from accounts rendered by the Bank of Bengal; from this it appeared, that after paying the Union Bank the sum advanced by them for the cultivation of the indigo in the six factories pledged to them, together with interest and commission thereon, the outturn of the season, yielded a net profit of 2,94,431 rupees, of which, the Bank of Bengal under the assignment to them had possessed themselves. These six factories had been redeemed from the Bank of Bengal by the Assignees paying them Sa. Rs. 6,90,000. The next matter was termed the loan account, and it arose out of money borrowed by the late firm, from the Bank of Bengal, on the deposit of Company's paper. This paper not having been redeemed was sold by the Bank and yielded a surplus beyond the debt for which it was pledged of 1,51,251. The Bank of Bengal instead of refunding this amount to the Assignees, had applied it in payment of two bills drawn by Connyloll Burrall and accepted by Alexander and Co. one for a lack of rupees the other for 50,000 Rs., and the remainder in part payment of a third bill for 30,000 Rs. and for which bills there was no collateral security given by Alexander and Co. In order to get rid of the prior claim of the Loan Committee on the property pledged to the Bank of Bengal as a security for the 27 bills, the Bank paid off the amount of the debt to the committee amounting to Sa. Rs. 7,30,791; and thus by getting rid of the Union Bank and the Loan Committee, they got all the property unencumbered. Of this property so cleared from the Loan Committee's claim, certain parcels of the real estate, were sold for 9,62,400 which left a profit or balance of 2,31,709 available to the liquidation of the 27 notes some other parcels of the real estate sold for 2,30,969 and which two sums had been brought to the credit of the 27 notes account. In regard to the 18 notes the account due on these was 3,46,433 Rs. Mr. Clark proceeded to state, that he had now given to the Court, as briefly, as he could, the substance of the two affidavits put in by each of the parties, he considered the course adopted by the Bank of Bengal to be highly reprehensible, as they had peremptorily refused repeated offers to arbitrate, and yet it must be evident from what the affidavits disclosed, that the whole was a case of account and mercantile usage which could best be settled by persons conversant with such matters. The Bank had possessed themselves of funds to a large amount, which they had applied to the payment of their own debt, but which the Assignees contended was the property of the general body of creditors; these funds, were composed of the following sums:—

1st. rs. 1,51,251, being the surplus of the Company's paper deposited to secure the payment of specific loans after the failure; the Bank had no right as against the general creditors, to apply this to any other purpose than that for which it was deposited. The surplus from the moment of the failure became the property of the Assignees. The 2nd sum was 19,910 rupees; this arose out of three payments, made to the Bank of Bengal, by Mr. Morley the Company's Treasurer; in part liquidation of his promissory note to Alexander and Co., and which they had discounted at the Bank: the Bank must do one of two things, either they must give the note up to the Assignees, together with what they had received on it, or, if they received instalments from Mr. Morley, they must give the Assignees credit for the full amount. But the Bank could not make, Mr. Morley, pay the full amount, and at the same time take dividends from the estate of Alexander and Co. on that account. The 3d sum was 2,77,369 rs. the net profits arising from the cultivation of the 6 factories pledged to the Union Bank, and Assigned by them to the Bank of Bengal. By turning to the letter of the Assignees it will be seen, that the Bank of Bengal, were merely to stand in the same situation as the Union Bank. Now the Union Bank held these factories subject to two sums; one was the separate account of rs. 3,20,157, for which the block was pledged, and this had been more than paid off, by the redemption of the factories for rs. 6,90,000; the other was the advance account 2,29,498 rs. and they had been more than paid off by the sale of the indigo which left the balance now claimed: had the assignment not taken place, the Union Bank must have paid this to the Assignees, and as the Bank of Bengal stood in their place they were equally liable. A fourth sum was 46,428 rupees; this was advanced by Alexander and Co. previous to their failure, for the cultivation of the six factories, and must therefore be allowed them in account. Another sum (a fifth) was 7,458 rs. which consisted of payments made by Mr. Henry Shakespeare, and Mr. W. H. Oakes, as instalments on two promissory notes of theirs, discounted at the Union Bank by Alexander and Co. These notes had been handed over by the Union Bank, to the Bank of Bengal, at the time of the assignment and formed part of the sum, paid by the Bank of Bengal; this sum had been repaid to the Bank of Bengal by the Assignees, by the redemption of the factories, and the profits of the season; the Bank of Bengal therefore, having been repaid in full, what they had paid for the notes, were not entitled to detain, what they had they had received from the parties themselves on the notes. The next item, was an unknown sum; it arose from a promissory note from Mr. George Siddons, which the Bank of Bengal had compromised with that gentleman, without any permission from the Assignees, and given them no account of the sum, which they had received on the compromise. Another sum was 2,44,086 rs.; this arose out of a difference of accounts between the Assignees, and the Bank of Bengal. It was the profits of the eight factories, which the Bank of Bengal stated to amount to 1,55,012 rs. It was impossible to understand these accounts, they were such a mass of unintelligible confusion; instead of keeping the accounts of the eight factories pledged to them, and the six factories pledged to the Union Bank perfectly distinct, they had rendered an account in which, both were blended together; but it was very easy to get at the true amount of the profits of the 8 factories; for the profits of the whole were known, and the profits of the 6 belonging to the Union Bank were known, and by taking the latter from the former, it was clear that the Bank of Bengal were chargeable with the balance. The last item was 29,800 Rs.; this was the principal, and the interest accruing on it, which had been advanced by Alexander and Co. for the cultivation of the 8 factories pledged to the Bank of Bengal. The above is the explanation given by the learned Council of the items claimed. Another point was the law charge, amounting to about 12,000 rs.; of this no account was given, or explanation, excepting the comprehensive words et cetera, et cetera: now there had been no suit in Court between the parties, nor any deeds, instruments, or conveyances, and it might therefore be fairly presumed, that under such circumstances, no better account of 12,000 Rs. of law charges could be given, than by an et cetera. He then proceeded to argue the various points arising on the case.

Mr. Leith followed.

The Advocate-General with whom was Mr. Prinsep, in support of the order, read a letter from Mr. Wight, the attorney of the Assignees, dated 5th June 1835, which he contended, was a complete admission that the Assignees consented to the Bank of Bengal taking the assignment of the 6 factories from the Union Bank, not only as a security for the money paid by the Bank of Bengal, to the Union Bank; but as an additional security for all further sums, owing by the late firm of Alexander and Co. to the Bank of Bengal; he also argued, that by that assignment they, the Bank of Bengal, stood in the situation of 2d mortgagees, and that there was nothing in the terms of the Assignees letter, to limit the rights, which as second mortgagees they would hold; he likewise contended that as the Assignees had consented to act as the Agents for the Bank of Bengal, they were not entitled to receive any profits arising from the working of the factories, but to such only as the Bank might be pledged to allow them.

The Chief Justice. Why, Mr. Advocate, do you mean to contend, that when the Assignees have paid you interest and commission, for money advanced by the Bank, that they are not to have the profits made by that money, but that the Bank are entitled to charge interest and commission, for using money for their own profit?

The Advocate-General.—The Assignees have entered into an agreement to that effect, and are bound by it.

Chief Justice.—It does not appear to me, that they have; but if they had, it could not be sustainable in any Court of Law or Equity. It is not necessary to enter here on the question of trading by the Bank; I have before expressed my opinion on that point, and I will again say, that the whole arrangement as to the factories appears to me, to be contrary to the provisions of the Bank Charter.

The Advocate-General said he had not been consulted upon the arrangement. If he had been, he should have had no difficulty in giving his advice; and if the Government should ever consult him, as to whether the Bank had been guilty of a breach of their Charter, he should have as little difficulty, in giving his opinion on that point: he would again repeat, that his opinion had not been taken, on this part of the proceedings. He then proceeded to examine Mr. Clarke's statement of the accounts, and to answer the arguments which he, and Mr. Leith, had urged in support of them.

Mr. Prinsep, who was about to follow in support of the Rule, was stopped by the Court.

The Chief Justice stated that had he known what the case was likely to have taken, he would have stopped it in the commencement, but that he had viewed it, in a very different light, from the account which had been given to him by Mr. Justice Malkin, who had granted the Rule: he should make the Rule absolute, with one exception, and his reason for doing it was, that the Bank of Bengal only required to have a claim for about 7 lacs registered, whereas the Assignees admitted, that they, the Bank, were entitled to a dividend on about 14 lacs; as the case had however proceeded so far, he would give his opinion shortly, on each of the items claimed by the Assignees. He must however observe, that nothing could be more loose, or unsatisfactory, than the evidence before the Court, both in support of, and in opposition to the claim,—perhaps occasioned partly by the difficulty of investigating accounts in that manner. In regard to the first sum being the surplus of the sale of the Company's Paper, the Assignees had no claim to that, either at law or equity; for as a larger debt was due, the Bank could plead a set off against them, as well as they might have done, against the late firm (Alexander and Co.). In respect to the 2nd sum, Mr. Morley's note, the Bank had a right to go against all the parties to that note. The third sum, was the profits of the indigo season, arising from the cultivation of the 6 factories pledged to the Union Bank. He considered the Bank of Bengal were, under that assignment 2nd mortgages of the block, and he could not see, how the letter of the Assignees, stating that the Bank of Bengal were to stand, in the situation of the Union Bank, could interfere with the Bank of Bengal, to prevent them from acting as such second mortgages. On the 4th item, the notes from Mr. Shakespeare and Mr. Oakes, he had entertained considerable doubts; but as the Bank of Bengal had received the instalments from these gentlemen, before they parted with the notes, he thought they had a right to apply them in payment of their general debt, due to them from the estate of Alexander and Co. The 5th and 6th items, the one relating to Mr. Siddons's note, and the other, as to the difference, of the profits of the season, the Assignees had not brought forward sufficient evidence to make out their claim. The 7th item, the law charges, he should disallow, as the Bank of Bengal had offered no evidence to support them—with this exception the rule must be made absolute.

Mr. Clarke. Not absolute: for the rule direct payment of the dividends, which the Court will hardly order.

Chief Justice. Then the rule is drawn up wrong. I will not direct the Assignees to pay. I will merely direct them to register the claim; but they may contest the payment, as they may be advised.

DECEMBER 24, 1836.

The cause of James Mackillop and others having been called on Mr. Leith stated that he had to shew cause against the order Nisi, but before doing this he should apply to the Court that certain persons, among whom were Mr. Cullep, Mr. Lightfoot and Mr. Paton should attend as witnesses to be examined, and that the present order should be enlarged until after the examination. He stated that he appeared on behalf of several creditors, and that he had affidavits shewing that the evidence of the persons named was necessary to enable the Court to come to a correct decision.

Mr. Advocate General said he had no objection to Mr. Leith's application provided he would file his grounds. He was anxious that this should be done as a most unusual circumstance had taken place. The Attorney of the petitioners had been informed, that the affidavits for the opposition were voluminous, and contain many matters of account, it was therefore, necessary, not only for the purposes of justice but to save the time of the Court that he and his friend, who was with him, should not be called on to argue against grounds founded on accounts before they were apprized of their nature; accordingly, his Attorney had written to the opposite Attorney begging that the affidavits might be shewn to counsel. This was the invariable practice, and he had never known such a request refused; but what was the answer, not a mere refusal but assigning a most extraordinary reason, that those who employed him had directed him not to shew the affidavits to the opposite counsel until they came before the Court.

Mr. Leith.—The reason was the affidavits were not sworn—they were not ready.

Mr. Pearson.—No such thing. I take it no paper is an affidavit until it be sworn, and he says he will not shew the affidavits: but the words are, I am directed not to shew even those which are ready, which is a complete answer to his friend's excuse. Now what fair or candid reason can be assigned for endeavouring to conceal that which has been stated on oath; he hoped, therefore, the Court would make them file their grounds.

Mr. Leith.—My friend will see them in Court.

Mr. Justice Malkin.—The counsel for the petitioners must be apprized of the nature of your affidavits and have ample time to prepare themselves. I will not direct the affidavits to be filed now, but let them be filed when the witnesses are examined, and cause be shewn on the following Court day. The witnesses may be examined on the 7th, and cause be shewn on the 14th.

Mr. Leith suggested, that as the other side made the application, they ought to be required to prove their case, in fact the witnesses ought to be called by them, and they should shew grounds to the Court for making the order which they asked for.

Mr. Clarke.—We say that we have done so.

Mr. Justice Malkin.—And if they have not, so much the better for you. If you can shew that their grounds are insufficient, why not shew cause at once.

Mr. Leith.—I had rather first examine the witnesses, but I think I might ask the Court to let me cross examine them.

Mr. Pearson.—Well, I have seen many extraordinary things in Courts at home, and still more in Calcutta, but this is the most extraordinary proceeding I have ever witnessed. My friend is actually endeavouring to get the Court to advise him how to conduct his case.

Mr. Leith.—I am not in the habit of doing that more frequently than my friend; but in this matter one of the witnesses was formerly a partner in the firm, and I submit that I should have an order to permit me to cross-examine him as he is an unwilling witness.

Mr. Clarke.—My friend has been taught to say that; for I affirm, that he knows the gentleman to whom he alludes too well, to have uttered it of himself.

Mr. Justice Malkin.—No such leave can be granted; when a witness under examination prove to be unwilling, the Court will interfere, but certainly no before.—India Gazette, Dec. 28, 1836.

SUPREME COURT.

Nov. 29, 1836.

JOYMONEY DO-SEE V. SEEBHOOSONDY DOSSER.

The issues in this cause have now nearly been tried, the defendant all but closed her case this evening, and there is a probability of a settlement.

In which event the motion of Pattie, v. Patton will come on.

JOYMONEY DOSSER V. SEEBHOOSONDY DOSSER.

Mr. Clarke closed his case, and the Advocate General replied at great length. Verdict for Plaintiff.

IN THE MATTER OF JAMES PATTIE, ESQ.

The Advocate General shewed cause.

Mr. Clarke, Mr. Osborne, and Mr. Grant in support of the Rule.

Chief Justice, and Sir B. Mulkin, for discharging the Rule.

Sir J. Grant for granting the Certiorari.

We will give a more full account to-morrow.

The Court was crowded with members of the Civil Service.—India Gazette, Dec. 2.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 30.

In the Supreme Court on the 30th Nov., the Advocate General shewed cause against the rule nisi for a writ of certiorari obtained by Mr. Clarke to remove the proceedings in the Ballygunge Tank case into the Supreme Court. We understand that a protracted discussion took place, the Advocate General appearing in behalf of Government, and not as we stated the other day in behalf of Mr. Patton. Mr. Clarke, Mr. Osborne, and Mr. Grant, supported the rule. The Court discharged the rule, each party paying their own costs. Englishman, Dec. 1.

IN THE MATTER OF JAMES PATTIE, ESQ.

The Advocate-General shewed cause against the order nisi for a certiorari to the Magistrate of the 24 Pergunnahs T. H. Patton, Esq., to remove a conviction made by him on the Fouzdary side of the Zillah Court, on James Pattie, Esq., a senior merchant in the Company's service.

The learned counsel stated, that he appeared to shew cause on behalf of Government, and that he should not have appeared but for certain doctrines laid down by his friend, Mr. Clarke, in moving for the order nisi. The learned counsel contended that the Supreme Court possesses no power over the Mofussil, but in cases where such power was given to it, by act of Parliament.

The Chief Justice stated, that the Court had also powers under the charter.

The Advocate General. Yes by charter also in some points. The Court then has no power, but by act of Parliament or by the charter, the 53d of Geo. 3d, c. 155, is the only act which gives to this Court a right to issue the writ of certiorari, to remove proceedings from the Court of the Magistrate of a Zillah, and that only in such cases, as are mentioned in the act, giving the jurisdiction. There are many requisites necessary to enable the Court to issue its certiorari under this act of Parliament. The injury complained of must be made upon a native, and accompanied with force; now Mr. Pattie's affidavit itself discloses the fact, that a native was not the complainant in the case in which the conviction was made, and that on the contrary the complainant was one Kirchhoffer, a native of Ireland, and that the injury complained of was not an injury accompanied with force. The learned counsel expressed his surprise, that Mr. Pattie should have imagined himself convicted under the 53rd. of Geo. 3rd. C. 155. That act was not made for the protection of the natives of Ireland, but for the natives of India, and he could not imagine what was the nature of that gentleman's mind, at the time he made his affidavit and swore to his belief of the conviction being under the act. There has been no conviction at all made on Mr. Pattie under this act. The conviction is not for any injury committed with force upon any one by Mr. Pattie; the conviction which I admit, is a conviction of Mr. Pattie for a contempt of Court and of his authority as Magistrate of the Zillah. Now the affidavit of Mr. Patton, expressly denies that the conviction was not under the act of Parliament, but under the regulations of Government—which regulation or what, I will not disclose, that is not necessary. The conviction has not been made under the only act under which this Court has the power to issue its certiorari. This is expressly sworn by Mr. Patton, the matter therefore disclosed on the affidavit, which would warrant the issuing of the certiorari is now negatived, and the writ cannot go.

We understood the learned Advocate-General to lay down the doctrine, that a British subject had no right at common law in this country to his writ of certiorari; and that this court, had not the power to remove by certiorari the conviction by a Zillah Magistrate of a British subject, unless that conviction were under the 53rd Geo. 3d. c. 155.

Mr. Clarke, in support of the rule, addressed the court at very considerable length. The learned counsel contended, first that there was nothing in the affidavit of Mr. Patton which went to shew that the conviction was not under the 53rd. of Geo. 3rd. c. 155. except the mere assertion to this effect, which was directly refuted and contradicted by the facts set out in the affidavit itself.

First, the summons was issued to Mr. Pattie to attend before Mr. Patton and answer the complaint, signed by Mr. Patton as justice of the peace. Mr. Pattie attended by his valet, witnesses were examined, the cause entertained, and the conviction duly and deliberately thereupon made. It is not shewn that Mr. Pattie knew any thing of any previous order made with respect to the tank, upon another person by Mr. Patton, and there can therefore be no disobedience of this order assumed, in order to support the affidavit of Mr. Patton, that the conviction was for a contempt of an order of the Court, and of his, Mr. Patton's, authority as a Magistrate. Mr. Patton cannot be supposed to have contemned an order, which it is not shewn or sworn he ever saw, or even knew of the existence of. Nor if the conviction has been made by Mr. Patton as Magistrate of the Zillah, it must have been made under the 53rd. Geo. 3. C. 155., for that is the only act under which a Zillah Magistrate has any authority whatever over a British subject. If not made under that act, the conviction is wholly illegal, and that is a reason, why this Court should give Mr. Pattie relief and grant the certiorari. If the conviction be made by Mr. Patton as a justice of the peace, then under the 33rd. Geo. 3. C. 52. section 153, Mr. Pattie has a right to his certiorari. If he has acted under neither of those statutes, then he has exceeded his authority, or acted altogether without law, or both, and then the cases in the 2d Burrows, and in 1st Manning and Ryland, apply. Under the 4th section of the charter this Court has all the powers of the Court of King's Bench throughout Bengal, Behar, and Orissa, and Mr. Pattie, as a British subject, has a right to his certiorari, which cannot be taken away by regulation, or by any thing, but the express words of an act of Parliament. It would have been fairer had my friend disclosed the Regulations under which the conviction was had, but until a contempt of the Zillah Court be shown in Mr. Pattie, he, as a British subject, is not amenable to Regulation Law, and if in contempt, Regulation Law is not necessary, for every Court has an inherent power to punish contempts of its authority or process, supposing such contempts to be clearly made out. Here there is no pretence whatever except in the assertion in Mr. Patton's affidavit, that there is any contempt whatever by Mr. Pattie of the authority of Mr. Patton as the Zillah Magistrate.

Mr. Osborne followed in support of the rule. He stated that he came there prepared to urge a legal argument in support of the rule, and nothing else; but the Advocate-General had thought proper to comment on the affidavits of Mr. Pattie, he should permit himself therefore a word or two on Mr. Patton. The learned counsel then proceeded to animadvert on the conduct of Mr. Patton, in coming into Court, and swearing an affidavit to prevent the removal of his own proceedings into this Court, in order, if found wrong, to have them set right. A British subject, swore himself aggrieved by the judicial conduct of Mr. Patton, and yet Mr. Patton who had committed the wrong and injury, comes into Court to support by affidavit his own acts as a Magistrate. There was a want both of dignity and propriety in such conduct. The learned counsel was then proceeding in further comments on Mr. Patton, when he was stopped by the Court, who directed him to confine himself to the point of law. He then went shortly over the same ground of argument previously held by Mr. Clarke.

Mr. Grant followed, and after an able and argumentative address, concluded with some very cutting observations, on the eager and fidgety interest taken by Mr. Patton in this matter. The whole question was whether his proceedings in the case should be removed in order if found erroneous to be set right. There were appeals daily in this Supreme Court from the decisions of their Lordships, and yet no one of their Lordships thought it necessary to swear affidavits, to stand behind the back of their counsel, or to use their endeavours to check the appeal.

The Chief Justice stated that there was a difference on the Bench which he very much regretted, but stated that he was of opinion the rule should be discharged. The Court has no jurisdiction to remove the convictions of Magistrates of Zillahs made on British subjects, but under the 53rd. Geo. 3rd. C. 155, the affidavit denies that the conviction is under this act, and states it to be under certain regulations of the Bengal Government—we have no power to issue the writ of certiorari, and have no means of quashing the conviction were it returned into Court. The Magistrate may have acted illegally, and without authority—he may be responsible on the criminal side of the Court, but we can do nothing in the present proceeding, a Court having no jurisdiction over a British subject, which may or may not be the case in this instance, has still a jurisdiction over all persons, for contempt.

Mr. Justice Grant also regretted that there should exist any difference on the Bench. This is the case of a British subject who swears he believes he has been convicted under the 53rd. Geo. 3rd. C. 155. The Magistrate swears, he did not make the conviction under the 53rd.; Geo. 3rd. now the act itself sets forth that at the time of making it, there existed in the Zillah Magistrate no jurisdiction over British subjects—this is an express Parliamentary declaration. The Magistrate admits a conviction of a British subject, but not under the act. Now the affidavit of Mr. Patton sets forth a conviction, it contains all the essentials of a conviction: summons issued to Mr. Pattie, attendance by his vakeel, cause entertained, and conviction made after examination of witnesses, and a full investigation of the matter. Now there is no contempt shown here, this is in itself an initiatory proceeding, and fully disclosed by the affidavit of Mr. Patton himself; a contempt of course may be punished, it is an indictable offence, but this is no contempt.

The Advocate-General says there is a conviction of a British subject contrary to Law; now Mr. Patton cannot be allowed to come here and swear that his has proceeded not according to Law, and to make that his excuse for eluding the Court's jurisdiction under the 53rd. of Geo. 3rd. he cannot be allowed to plead his own wrong in estimation of his own illegal acts. I apprehend, therefore, that his conviction is contrary to Law; we cannot take the conviction, to have been according to Law if it were contrary to the only Law under which he could act in the case of a British subject. He has clearly acted under the 53rd. Geo. 3rd. only he has exceeded the limit of his authority, and that is an additional reason why the writ of certiorari should go to quash his irregular proceeding. The judgment of Lord Mansfield is express on this point. 2 Burrows, 1040. Every excess of jurisdiction is a proceeding coram non jure, and is a nullity, it must be set aside. I am of opinion therefore, that this Rule should be made absolute.

Mr. Justice Malkin thought the case one of very considerable difficulty, but under all circumstances of the case thought the writ should not go.

Much had been said at the bar, and much stress laid on the hardship of the case on British subjects. If the certiorari were refused, they had no remedy against the illegal, or capricious convictions of Zillah Magistrates who had only to swear that the conviction was not under the act, and the certiorari would not go; they could not succeed in an action, or hope to be successful in an indictment. Now he, Mr. Justice Malkin was not prepared to give the argument much consideration. If the Zillah Magistrate swore falsely, he might be indicted for perjury; and if when the writ did go, he made a false return that the conviction was not under the act, then he also was liable to an indictment for perjury, so that the British subject had his remedy.—Rule discharged.

REX. ON THE PROSECUTION OF BULRAM SING.

VERSUS

THOMAS HYDE BENNETT.

The prisoner was indicted for manslaughter. The nature of the case is disclosed in the evidence of the first witness; the evidence of the other witnesses being in substance similar to that given by the witness Holmes, who stated, I am a seaman on board the Edmond Castle, and shipped from Liverpool. The prisoner I believe is an Englishman. I do not remember having heard that from himself. I saw prisoner first at Ennore about ten miles from Madras. I was sometime in August standing at a place called the Salt Gholahs. I can't recollect the date of the month; the prisoner came there after me. He is a sea-faring man and belonged to the Bark Caledonia; he was the second mate. I don't know the native's name who died. He was a peon, and the Captain of the Caledonia had hired him. I have heard the second mate say so. I saw him strike the peon two or three times, and then the man stood, as if he dared him, whereupon the second mate took and shoved him from him, and then he fell. The blows were given upon the head; they were not very hard. The second mate applied his hands upon the shoulders of the peon and pushed him from him, the man then fell upon his hands; he put them forward to break his fall; he then got up and stood upon his feet, and then he fell with all his weight down upon the ground. When he was standing up a second time, his eyes stood in his head, but no other blow or push was given him. After prisoner had struck the man, he walked into the Salt Gholahs, and when he came out, he sent to fetch some water. They were a long time bringing it; at last two women came out, and splashed some water over the man. After the water was fetched the man was carried over to where the chokedars were.

Cross-examined by Mr. Osborne.—The prisoner sent for a doctor as soon as he could make them understand him, and sent for water for the prisoner. The prisoner complained to me, that the peon, had been repeatedly absent from his post. The salt was in charge of the prisoner, and the peon was set to watch it.

Several native witnesses were called, who deposed to the assault, and subsequent death in about 3 quarters of an hour of the peon.

Doctor Jackson.—I examined the body on Sunday the 28th August. The body was in the Company's compound. The only external mark of violence was a slight graze upon the right ear, and a small wound a little above the right ear, on the temple; no bone was broken, nor was there any other mark on the body: I should suppose the graze on the ear was caused by a blow from the fist. I should consider it must have been rather a sharp blow. I afterwards opened the body; I opened the head in the first instance, and found that the brain was in a perfectly healthy state. I then examined the abdomen, a large quantity of blood flowed from the incision; on removing the whole of this carefully, which might amount to two quarters, I examined every organ within the body, and found a rupture of the spleen. This was quite sufficient to have caused death. I have no doubt in my own mind, that the rupture of the spleen caused the death; the spleen was very much enlarged, about 4 times the size it would be in its usual state. That is not an uncommon disease with natives. The man might have carried it about with him for years, without feeling pain; it would not produce any loss of appetite. There were no marks of violence on the body: either a blow, or a push or fall, might have produced the rupture; had he fallen upon any hard substance, that might have occasioned the rupture. The walls of the body, the parietes, were exceedingly thin in this individual, and the spleen was more superficial, than it usually is. The stomach was enormously distended with blood, which would cause the rupture more easily, so that a blow not likely to cause death, might, under these circumstances, have occasioned it.

Cross-examined by Mr. Osborne.—A push on the shoulders, and subsequent falling forwards on the hands, by the deceased, would not have ruptured the spleen.

The case for the prosecution was then closed, when Mr. Osborne took several objections on behalf of the prisoner. 1st, to as there being no proof of the jurisdiction as laid in the indictment; 2d, that the deceased being in the service of the prisoner, and in charge of the salt, he might lawfully administer moderate correction, and cited, 1st, East's pleas of the Crown, and 1st Leach's reports R. versus Wiggs, and that the evidence did not support the indictment which charged, and unlawful, violent, and felonious beating; and 3d, that such an interval had occurred between the first, and second fall, as to separate the latter from forming part of the corpus delicti.

Mr. Justice Malkin, decided that there was evidence to go to the jury.

Mr. Osborne then called three witnesses of great respectability, two of whom deposed that they had known the prisoner for some time, and that he was of a mild, peaceable, and humane disposition.

Captain Symers, of the bark Caledonia, stated he had known the prisoner for eight months, that he had been his second mate, and had always given him satisfaction; he was mild, and humane in his department towards the crew. This witness, in answer to a question from the Bench, stated that the prisoner was an Englishman, and so proved the jurisdiction.

Mr. Justice Malkin, summed up the evidence at some length, and the jury retired.

After an absence of about three quarters of an hour, the jury returned, and found the prisoner guilty, but strongly recommended him to mercy, and to the consideration of the Court.

Mr. Justice Malkin ordered the prisoner to be brought up for judgment, on Friday morning; but the prisoner was suffered to remain out on bail.

November 9th. The prisoner was brought up.

Mr. Justice Malkin.—Thomas Hyde Bennett; you have been convicted of manslaughter, and no reasonable doubt can exist but that this poor man, met with his death in consequence of your conduct. The circumstances of the case are not those of any considerable aggravation—the amount of violence was not such, as to be likely to produce such serious consequence. If the transaction had been between native and native, or between European and European, I should have imposed a mere nominal fine, and have caused you to be discharged out of custody; but these sort of cases are, I fear, but too likely to happen, in consequence of Europeans abusing their superior strength, and exercising it on natives, in support of their imaginary superiority of privileges and position. Under the peculiar circumstances of this case, in consideration of the very little violence exhibited, I feel myself at liberty to pass a sentence upon you, which is mild, and which I hope will not interfere with your future prospects; but which, in what I understand of your circumstances, is not a mere nominal punishment. I do not think it necessary to imprison you, or to impose a fine so heavy that in default of payment, you would have to remain a prisoner. The sentence of the Court therefore is, that you pay a fine of one hundred Company's rupees, on payment of which you are discharged.

Mr. Bennett paid the fine, and was discharged from custody accordingly.—India Gazette, Dec. 12.

DECEMBER 12, 1836.

The King on the Prosecution of Sumbhoohunder Moorjee, v. Seetemtollah, Jabboo, Kadabux, and others.

Mr. Prinsep with whom was Mr. Leith, stated this was an indictment for a violent assault, riot, &c. committed by the prisoners in the house of Gooropersaud Coondoo, and on the person of Sumbhoohunder Moorjee. The prisoners were seventeen in number, and consisted of three Naibs, Seetemtollah, Shaick Jabboo and Kadabux, and fourteen chokedars, all belonging to the day force, the thannah situate near the Chappatollah Ghaut.

The learned Counsel stated the case to be one of importance, because if involved, on the part of all the prisoners, a gross abuse of authority. The facts were in substance, these: on the 29th October last, the Naib Seetemtollah came to the prosecutor as he was sitting at his desk up two pair of stairs in the house of his employer and told him there was a charge against him; and that he must go to the thannah. The prosecutor said he would not go without a warian', and that neither the Naib nor his Father should take him; upon that the Naib went away and shortly after returned with the rest of the prisoners, they fell upon the prosecutor with clubs, bamboos and rulers, and beat him unmercifully in the room, beat him all down stairs from the second story to the door, when he fell senseless; prosecutor remained in this state for 3 hours—after being deposited in the thannah, and was then on coming to his senses, carried off in a palankeen to the hospital.

The prosecutor, and two women were called, who confirmed this statement in full—several other native witnesses also deposed to parts of the statement.

Mr. O'Brien the Head Assistant of the Chandney Choke Hospital, and Mr. Hypher, a Medical gentleman who were called for the prosecution, stated that they saw the prosecutor, the 1st on the afternoon when the alleged assault took place, and the latter on the Tuesday or Wednesday following, when his body presented no marks of violence whatever, other than four or five stripes inflicted apparently by a rattan.

Mr. Osborne addressed the Jury for defendants. He commented upon the gross exaggeration of the statement of the native witnesses as contrasted with the evidence of the medical gentlemen—and pointed out many improbabilities and contradictions in the other parts of the evidence—exposed the want of probably native, or sufficient cause to induce the prisoners to behave in the violent and outrageous manner imputed to them, and pointed out the want of evidence of identity, as to most of the prisoners.

Mr. Justice Malkin summed up—the Jury retired or about half an hour, and on their return found the three Naibs guilty, and acquitted the fourteen chokedars.

Mr. Justice Malkin then passed sentence to the following effect.—You have been found guilty of some misconduct, on this occasion. I undoubtedly do not believe that you have been guilty of the misconduct imputed to you. Your proceedings have been irregular—but you had some reason for your interference, although it was slightly illegal, you have used unnecessary and improper violence in the substantial, although informal discharge of your duty and it is quite impossible, to allow you to go on in this manner.—I do not feel at liberty to pass such conduct over without some punishment. I do not see any reason to make any difference between the cases of any one of you, who have been convicted. You have acted with undue violence. The sentence of the Court therefore is that you pay a fine of 40 Company's Rupees, upon payment of which you may be discharged.—India Gazette, Dec. 14.

SUDDER BOARD OF REVENUE.

WEDNESDAY, 4TH JAN.

There was a special meeting of the Sudder Board on Wednesday, the 4th January 1837, to consider a very important letter from Government relative to the rights of the Badshahes grantees. Our readers may remember that some time ago we published a petition to the Governor General in Council from certain parties, late holders of rent free lands, in Behar, resumed by the Supreme Government. The petitioners set forth their sufferings under the operation of Regulation 2 of 1819 and Regulation 3 of 1829, for the resumption of rent free lands under Badshahes tenures, and prayed that their right 'to the consideration of the Governor General, under Regulation 13 of 1825, section 5, may not be superseded, either by repealing that enactment or by any circular order, by which last indeed, the provisions of a regulation cannot properly be set aside; and that at all events, the circumstances may be taken into consideration under Regulation 13 of 1825, section 5, before abandoning their cases to be provided for by a circular order, totally inadequate for securing their rights, comforts or respectability,' &c. &c.

The petitioners received a reply from Mr. Secretary Macnaghten, stating that, 'though his lordship in council feels himself precluded from granting to lakhirajedars, claiming to hold under a Badshahes title, a general and indiscriminate exemption from the rule which prescribes that in cases of resumption the settlement shall be made with the malik, yet that full consideration will be given to any case of long possession by any occupant of land, or his ancestors, which may be brought before Government, with a disposition to exercise in all proper instances the discretion which has been vested in the Government by section 5, Regulation 13, of 1825.'

At the same time, as we understand, Government requested an early communication of the Board's opinion as to the best mode of carrying into effect the views of the Supreme Government, for giving to Badshahes lakhirajedars a preferable title in resumption cases. Minutes were prepared on this subject by the First and Second Members, but before they were sent in Government received a letter from one Kubee Ooddeen Ahamed and others of Behar, which complained, 'that although the Governor of Bengal has directed that they shall be kept in possession, yet, that the settling officers, acting under the Commissioner's orders, are making the settlements of resumed royal grants, not with the dispossessed lakhirajedars, but with the maliks, contrary to the Governor's orders.'

On the 20th ultimo, the Board were directed by Government to adopt measures to prevent steps being taken to prejudice the rights of the petitioners, and for this purpose there was now a special meeting.

After the letter from the Secretary to Government had been read, the Second Member, briefly noticing the proceedings touching this subject, said that the question now was, how the intention of Government was to be fulfilled. There were open to them two modes of proceeding; first to direct the local authorities to refrain for the present from completing settlements in behalf of the nature in question; secondly, to direct them to make every case of settlement a special one under section 5, Reg. XIII of 1825. He preferred the first mode and proposed it accordingly.

After a few words of explanation from Mr. Millett, who was present by invitation to assist at the Board, the resolution was agreed to, and corresponding orders issued.

The Second Member then stated that he had prepared the following Rules for the assessment of resumed or expired Badshahes grants, at the same time intimating that he was much indebted to Mr. Millett, and Mr. A. J. Colvin for the able assistance they had given him in framing the rules.

The following are the proposed rules:—

When the lakhiraje tenure and the right of property are vested in the same parties.

1. Assessment and Settlement.—When any Badshahes grant in which the lakhiraje tenure and the right of property in the lands are vested in the same parties, shall be resumed, or expire, the lands shall be assessed, and the settlement made with the parties in possession under the general rules contained in regulation VII. 1822, IX. 1825, and IX. 1833.

When the lakheraje tenure and the right of property in the land are vested in distinct parties.

2. With what party the settlement to be made —

When any Badshahee grant, in which the lakheraje tenure and the right of property in the land are vested in distinct parties, shall be resumed or expire, if the lakherajedar and his ancestors shall have continued in the possession of the land for a period of 60 years, if the lands be situated in Bengal, Behar or Orissa (excepting Cuttack and its dependencies) or Benares; or from the date of the acquisition of the country by the British Government if the lands be situated in any other part of the territories, the settlement shall be made with the lakherajedar, and the tenure, when so settled, shall be held to be hereditary and transferable, and the parties claiming the Zemindaree interest or other proprietary right in such mohaul, shall not disturb the possession of the lakherajedar or his heirs and representatives; and any suit preferred by such persons in a court of judicature, contrary to the intent and meaning of this rule, shall be dismissed with costs.

3. Rates of Assessment.—If the lakherajedar and his ancestors shall not have continued in the possession and management of the lands for the periods specified in rule 2, the settlement shall be made with the party in whom the proprietary right in the lands may reside under the general rules contained in Regulation VII. 1822, IX. 1825 and IX. 1833.

4. If the settlement be concluded with the lakherajedar under rule 2, the assessment shall be adjusted on the actual assets according to the rules contained in the above mentioned Regulations, after such deductions for malikana as may be required under rule 5.

5. Malikanah Allowance.—Cl. 1. When the lands may be settled and assessed under rules 2 and 4, if the Zemindars or other proprietors of the land shall have received malikanah or proprietary dues, whether in the shape of a percentage in money, kind or land, or otherwise, during the existence of the lakheraje tenure, he shall continue to receive the same in like manner as if the resumption had not taken place, but he shall not be entitled to any land, rent, produce, or profit beyond what he may have enjoyed up to the period of the resumption of the tenure, or would have been entitled to receive, in the event of Government having confirmed the same in perpetuity, free of assessment.

Cl. 2. If the party claiming the Zemindaree interest or other proprietary right in the mohaul shall not have received malikanah during the existence of the lakheraje tenure, he shall be entitled, on proof of his proprietary right, to the satisfaction of the officer conducting the settlement, to an allowance in money at the rate of ten per cent. on the net produce of the mohaul.

Cl. 3. The decisions of the settlement officer, in regard to the malikanah under the two preceding clauses, shall be liable to revision by the Commissioner and Sudder Board of Revenue, but no claim to the proprietary due, or respecting the nature or amount of it, which may be finally disallowed by the Revenue authorities, in such cases shall be cognizable in any court of judicature.

But the prohibition shall not be construed to extend to bar the jurisdiction of the courts in respect of claims between individuals to the proprietary allowance, when that allowance shall have been sanctioned and adjusted by the revenue authorities.

6. The nature and amount of the malikanah fixed under the preceding rule, shall be duly recorded in the settlement proceedings; and if the malikanah be enjoyed in the shape of a specific portion of land, the limits of such portion shall be defined with proper land marks, and described in the map accompanying the proceedings of settlement, and in the case provided for in clause 2 of the said rule, a stipulation for the payment of the malikanah shall be inserted in the annual doostuk and cooboolent of the lakherajedar on the conclusion of the settlement.

7. The malikanah in money, or kind settled under rule 5, shall be payable to the proprietor by the lakherajedar with whom the settlement may be concluded, and any arrear of such malikanah which may from time to time become due, shall be recoverable in the ordinary civil courts.

8. In the event of a lakherajedar, entitled under rule 2 to a settlement of his resumed tenure, declining to engage at the jumma proposed to him, the officer conducting the settlement shall proceed as in the case of a Zemindar refusing to engage for his lands; but on consideration of the loss to which the government may be exposed by such recusancy by the deduction of a double malikanah in the event of the lands being let in farm or held khas, the percentage to be allowed to the recusant lakherajedar shall be fixed at a rate of not less than five per cent. and not exceeding ten per cent. on the net produce of the lands after deducting the malikanah of the proprietor.

9. Escheats.—Should the tenure of a lakherajedar, settled as described in rule 2, escheat to government, the party possessing a Zemindaree interest or other proprietary right in the lands shall be admitted to engage for the revenue subject to a fresh assessment, to be adjusted on the actual assets under the general regulations.

10. Forgeries.—If the title deeds on which a lakherajedar claimed to hold his lands free of assessment, shall be declared by a final judgment of a competent court to have been forged or fraudulently altered, no length of possession either in the occupant or his ancestors shall be held to entitle him to a settlement for the lands, but the settlement shall in all such cases be made with the proprietors of the lands under the general regulations.

11. Pensions to lakherajedars not entitled to a settlement.—The cases of Badshahee Lakherajedars who may be excluded from the privilege of obtaining the settlement of their resumed lands by the operation of rule 3, but who, either in their own persons, or as representatives of the former lakherajedars, or both, shall have been in the enjoyment of a specific portion of the produce of the lands under the denomination of the rent for the periods specified in rule 2, according to the part of the country in which the lands may be situated and shall be specially reported to government, it shall be lawful for the Governor of the presidency to grant to such of them as are entirely destitute, such pension for life or otherwise as he may deem proper.

THE SUDDER DEWANNY AND NIZAMUT ADAWLUT.

A Sketch of the establishment and constitution of the Courts of Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut at Calcutta by an English Pleader of those Courts.

In the following pages will be found a Sketch of the early establishment and constitution of the Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut, or superior courts of appeal in the daccier resort.

It will not be uninteresting to advert, first, to the institution of the Bengal Code of the Regulations on which is raised the superstructure of the whole of the Company's courts in the British territories; secondly the early Judicial establishment of the Sudder Courts; and thirdly, their constitution.

1st. Without any further remarks it must be unequivocally assumed, that the Judicial functionaries of the Supreme Government, who are duly vested with the powers of our Indian Administration, have a perfect acquaintance with the Bengal Code of the regulations which were instituted and passed in the year 1793 by Marquis Cornwallis, and which may be deemed the corner-stone of the system of polity for the government of the territorial possessions of the East India Company; for, previously to that period, there was no general code of British laws or regulations, although many rules and orders were passed by successive governments. It is worthy of remark, that besides these regulations, there was another class of laws made by the local governments for the special jurisdiction of His Majesty's Supreme Court in Calcutta, which did not become laws unless they had been registered under certain formalities, as being deemed 'just and reasonable' and not repugnant to the laws of the realm*; but these provisions have been recently abrogated by an act passed for the better government of British India, wherein it is explicitly stated, that the regulations made by the Governor General in Council, are not to be subject to registration; and that they are to be of the same force and effect as any act of Parliament; provided the Court of Directors do not signify their disallowance of such regulations; otherwise they are forthwith to be repealed.

2ndly. The Courts of Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut were established in conformity with the provisions of the regulations passed in the year 1793, from which period down to the early part of 1835, they were held at the presidency, immediately within the jurisdiction of the King's Court in Calcutta. These two Company's superior courts have recently been removed to a splendid and spacious building, notoriously known under the designation of 'Combermere Folly,' situate in the suburbs south of the town.

Sir Elijah Impey, the first King's Chief Justice in India, is said to have framed the rules and process of these superior courts.

3dly. The original constitution of the two courts, from the year 1793 to 1800, comprizing a period of seven years, consisted of the Governor General and the other members of the Supreme Council, except the Nizamut Adawlut, or, criminal court, which, in its penal executive jurisdiction, was assisted by the head Cauzy of Bengal, Behar, and Omissa, and two multies. This system for the administration of justice, was first introduced by the Marquis of Cornwallis, and having been found to be productive of unavoidable delays in the proceedings of the courts, it was deemed expedient to obviate the great evils, thus arising from the combination of the judicial and legislative functions existing in the same individual: under such peculiar circumstances, the exercise of the judicial powers of the Government were made distinctly separate from the legislative and executive authority thereof.

With the view, therefore, of carrying into immediate effect these judicious arrangements, the British Government came to the determination of entirely new modelling the constitution of the Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut in 1805, as will be perceived by a reference being made to the regulations, passed in that year; and in compliance with their provisions, the courts consisted of three judges denominated respectively chief, second, and third judges; the former of whom was a member of the Supreme Council, but not the Governor General, nor the Commander-in-Chief; and the two latter were selected and appointed from among the civil servants of the honorable Company.

This system, however defective, was upheld for the short period of five years only, when the various important and laborious duties of the members of the Supreme Council rendered it impracticable any longer for any member of that government to discharge the extensive and arduous duties, of chief judge the Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut; and it was deemed advisable, in the year 1805, to separate the judicial from the executive authority in all their respective branches and gradations, and to carry them into full and complete execution both in form and practice. The appointment of chief judge, was, consequently, made, from among the civil servants, not being members of the Supreme Council-††.

After a lapse of a space of two years, the provisions abovementioned, were subsequently repealed. Accordingly, in 1807 the constitution of the Courts of Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut were again modified, and the plan adopted in the year 1801, was revived with an augmented number of a third to the two former judges, who were now styled puisne judges ‡‡.

But notwithstanding this number of judges, which varied at the pleasure of the Government, and the limitation of appeals to the superior courts, yet their existed, since 1807, an increased number of trials, which, at this period, required a greater augmentation of judges, to effect a more prompt and efficient administration of justice, rendered available by the preceding arrangements. Under these circumstances, the provisions enacted in that year, namely 1807, limiting the number of puisne judges and appointing a member of the Supreme Council at the head of the superior courts, were abrogated; and in 1811, the courts of Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut consisted of a chief judge, and of an unlimited number of puisne judges, whom the Governor General in Council was declared competent from time to time to appoint.

This distinctive denomination of chief, as well as the official designation of second, third, fourth and fifth judges, continued both in form and practice for a period of eighteen years, until 1829, when it was found in many instances to be productive of great inconvenience§§; the discontinuance of it, was, therefore, considered necessary, and the Government have now abolished it accordingly. They are now styled judges of the courts of Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut of the presidency of Bengal.

The entire constitution of the courts originated in the manner described above, which has, from time to time, undergone many alterations and revisions, either as circumstances required or as the wisdom of those who presided over them, dictated.—Englishman, Dec. 14.

CALCUTTA.

PYROTECHNICAL EXHIBITION.—Mr Robert Fleming's pyrotechnical exhibition took place at Rajah Buddinath's garden on the night of the 25th of November. The fireworks were well designed, but in consequence of the artists having become exceedingly confused, through some cause to us inscrutable, the ignition was very ill managed, and the desired effect completely destroyed.

CRICKET MATCH.—On the evening of the 3rd of December eleven members of the Calcutta Cricket Club, played a match against the Civil Service. The club won the match by sixty-four runs.

NEW HINDEE POEM.—Maha Rajah Opoobhah Krishna, the fourth son of the late Rajah Raj Krishna Bahadur, has lately written and published a Hindee poetical work in the Persian character.

THE NOVENA.—The Novena was celebrated at the Catholic Church at Howrah on 10th of Dec., with a grand display of fireworks.

THE BAR.—The prospects held out to practitioners at the Bar here are very uninviting. Two gentlemen, Messrs. Blunt and Spivly, who recently arrived and were admitted to practise at the Bar, have left Bengal, much discouraged at the prospects held out to them.

NEW CLIPPER.—A new clipper, a sister vessel of the Sir Herbert Taylor, was launched from the building yard of Messrs. Ambrose and Co., on the 10th of Dec., and named the Anna Maria.

PILOT VESSELS FOR BENGAL.—The second of the three pilot vessels building for Bengal at Bombay, was launched on the 23d of November, and named the Saugor.

SALE OF FANCY ARTICLES.—A sale of fancy articles, for the benefit of the European Orphan Asylum, took place at the Town Hall on the 14th of Dec., and from the crowded attendance, it is expected that a large sum was realized.

THICKERY IN OPIUM.—Many complaints have arisen this year among the opium shippers, that chests, on being opened in China, have been found deficient in the number of balls which they are guaranteed to contain when sold at the Company's public sales—one package to the extent of 2 or 3 balls, another 4, 5 or 6—the weight being made up with tobacco, bricks, or any thing else of no value. Applications have been made to the Board, and the Board have answered, that every precaution is taken to prevent fraud in the packing of the opium, but Government cannot be responsible for deficiencies not discovered till after the opium has been removed from their godowns. The deficiencies have been traced only in the Patna opium, which was damaged by the sinking of boats on the river in coming down, and re-packed in the public warehouses here, which leads to a conviction that the fraud must have been committed before the goods left the Government godowns and by persons employed in the Opium Department, the more so as it is the practice of the merchants to slip the chests unopened, putting a tape round them and sealing it before the opium is taken out of the public godowns.

FORGED STAMPS.—Bishto Chunder Bose, on the 15th of June last, informed Mr. Houstoun, Superintendent of Stamps, that forged stamps were under preparation at a place in Chitpore. The Superintendent caused the police authorities to search a house pointed out by the informer, when dyes, paper, &c., for forging stamps, were found in one of the rooms. Three persons were seized in the house, whom the informer stated were the forgers, and handed over to the Magistrate; but the informer, after depositing to his charge before the Magistrate, suddenly disappeared. He was, however, captured a few days since at Nuddea, and brought down to give evidence. The trial of the accused came on, when it turned out, that the dyes, &c. belonged to the informer himself, and had been surreptitiously foisted into the residence of the accused, with a view of injuring them. The informer was, consequently, sentenced to six months hard labor in irons, and the accused were set at liberty.

DACOITS CAPTURED.—Muddun and Gopaul Roy, two desperate dacoits, were captured and brought before the Magistrate on the 15th of Dec., and bound too good behaviour.

SUICIDE.—A Hindoo, of the name of Sibboo, aged about 40 years, who was in the employ of Baboo Prosunno Coomar Tagore, committed suicide at Jorabagan, at his own house, about eleven o'clock in the forenoon of the 18th instant. It is stated, that a quarrel which took place between the unfortunate man and his mother that morning, is likely to have been the cause which actuated him to put an end to his existence. A coroner's inquest was held on the body, and a verdict of strangled himself returned.

MANSLAUGHTER.—Robert Harding, a publican, has been committed on an indictment of manslaughter, for killing his wife.

TRESPASS AND OUTRAGE.—Mr. Wm. Sturmer, a holder of a Sunderbun grant, on the 17th of Dec., prayed for relief from the Magistrate of the Twenty-four Pargunnahs against the outrageous conduct of a powerful Zemindar, Raj Bullub Roy Chowdry. The petition stated, that on the forenoon of the 13th of Dec., about thirty or forty men, servants, club men, and ryats, belonging to the said Raj Bullub, armed with sticks, hatchets and dows, attacked a settlement called Doletullah, belonging to Mr. Sturmer, intimidated his ryats, and servants, destroyed a cocoanut and cotton plantation, cut away several valuable trees, besides vegetables, &c.; and that on Wednesday, the 14th Dec., a similar attack was made by the same parties on a settlement called Taldee, also the property of the petitioner. The Magistrate has directed the Daroga to make enquiries respecting the affair.

HINDU COLLEGE.—Mr. Macaulay examined the first class of the Hindoo College on the 20th of Dec. This class is under the immediate care of Professor D. L. Richardson. Mr. Macaulay expressed himself highly gratified at the result of the examination, to which he devoted the whole of the day.

CUSTOMS AND POST OFFICE COMMITTEE'S REPORT.—The 3d report of the Customs and post office Committee, on the Post Office department, accompanied by a Draft Act and Draft Code of Post Office regulations, was yesterday forwarded to Government. The public, therefore, may shortly expect to learn the results of the Committee's recommendation.

ASSAULT ON CAPT. DORRETT.—The following is Capt. Dorrett's statement of an outrageous assault committed on him by the myrmidons of the Rangoon authorities:—

I, James Dorrett, a British born subject, commander and owner of the British schooner Louisa, of fifty tons, bound for Penang, do hereby state, that on the 26th day of May, I cleared the port of Rangoon, and proceeded down the river about five miles below Rangoon town; that about midnight of the 26th, I was boarded by two Burmah boats with about forty men, who seized me and beat me unmercifully, four or five men holding me and others kicking me with their knees on the breast and face, as also beating me on the back with their elbows. They then cut my vessel's rigging with which they bound me hand and foot, threw me into the boat, and tied me down to the side in a cruel manner, and then went down into the cabin, and broke open every box and trunk, and found about three hundred and twenty Rs. worth of silver, which I had on board for the vessel's expenses in case of accidents. They then took me up to town, where I was taken before a writer to whom I explained I had no more money on board, and that which they had taken was but a small sum I had for the above stated purpose. The next morning I was sent down with a guard to go to the vessel underweigh, and bring her off to town. It was told that the Woongey had detained the money, and had given orders that the whole of my cargo should be landed. On the vessels arrival off town, two government officers, with a great number of people, went on board, searched the vessel throughout, but found no more treasure; after which the Woongey gave me liberty to proceed on my voyage, but would not deliver back the money. My body is completely black and blue from the severe and brutal punishment I received from the government people belonging to the boats, under the orders of Jerome (king's linguist) accompanied by Peter Johnson.

SWINDLING.—Swindling is now very rife in the city of palaces. Scarcely a day passes without some person being brought up to the police for practising it, and in almost two cases out of three, recently, a woman has been concerned.

CATHOLIC SCHOOL EXAMINATION.—The examination of the pupils of the Catholic school, took place on the 21st Dec., and the scholars developed much improvement.

A HARD CASE.—A very singular exercise, by Sir John Grant, of the powers vested in him, as a Judge exercising an Admiralty jurisdiction, has recently occurred. The American ship Hindoo, Captain Bacon, was seized under the following circumstances:—Two sailors shipped themselves as Americans on board at New York, and signed articles for the outward and return voyage. One of them was found, on more than one occasion, about three times, asleep at the wheel! Captain Bacon caused the man to be flogged. On arriving in this port, the man quitted the ship, made an affidavit that he is an Englishman, and broke his articles, by refusing to work. The Judge, upon Captain Bacon refusing to pay the man his wages, permitted him to libel the ship, and she was detained, and could not proceed on her voyage, until the claim was settled. Captain Bacon presented a petition to Lord Auckland.

ROBBERY OF A DAWK BANGHY.—Brigadier and acting commandant of Artillery William Faithfull, forwarded on the 16th of Dec., the proceedings of a Court of inquiry assembled at Dum-Dum on that date, connected with the robbery of a dawkbanghy on the Calcutta road near Dum-Dum, on the night of the 15th instant, in which two European soldiers named Kennington and Harris, of the 1st troop, 2d Brigade Horse Artillery, appear to have been implicated. The two men appeared on the 20th instant, at the Allipore Magistrate's office, under a guard of Foot-Artillery; to answer the charge, but for want of sufficient evidence to substantiate their guilt, they were discharged.

APPRAY.—Seven individuals were tried at the Allipore Magistrate's Court, on the 21st Dec., for resisting the officers of the court, and their Zemindar, who had detained their corps for rent, and for assailing the parties. The prisoners were sentenced to pay a fine of fifty rupees each, and to be imprisoned for three months; on the fine not being paid to be imprisoned for three months more.

SHERIFF OF CALCUTTA.—Mr. Thomas Holroyd has been appointed Sheriff of Calcutta.

COMPANY'S ATTORNEY.—Mr. Thomas Bruce Swinhoe, has been appointed to the Office of Company's Attorney.

THE KIDDERPORE DOCKS.—It is remoued that a plan is about to be submitted to Government for the purchase of the Kidderpore Docks on the public account.

SURVEY OF CHANNEL CREEK.—A few days ago, Captain Lloyd, who is still engaged in the survey of Channel Creek, having landed at Sayer's point, on the south-east shore, for the purpose of taking angles, a tiger carried off the man who was standing near him with the sextant in hand. As far as the survey has been carried within the creek, the report is rather favorable, a channel being found sufficiently deep and straight for the navigation of large vessels.

JAMES TAYLOR.—Capt. Beach, of the True Beauty, which vessel lately sailed from this port on her return voyage to England, it appears, saw Mr. James Taylor, the gentleman who, it was supposed, had been murdered near Bagdad, on a journey overland, in the streets of London before his departure, and learned from him, that he had been for a long time in captivity with the Arabs and had at length been ransomed.

CHOLERA CURE AND PREVENTIVE.—A Mr. John Tweddie has recently made the discovery, that cocoanut oil being well rubbed into the body of a person afflicted with the cholera, has the power, by causing profuse perspiration, to effect an almost certain cure.

M. Thiers, the Chief Magistrate of Chander-nagore, has issued an order directing all the thanas to be provided with a bottle of the cholera specific, to administer immediately to any individual who might be seized with the destructive malady.

THE ANTI-BLACK ACT SUBSCRIPTIONS.—The subscriptions to the Anti-Black Act Petition, amount to upwards of 26,855 Rs. 5 annas and 3 pie.

FIRES.—Two fires occurred on the night of the 25th. ultimo, one at Buttachajee's Bagan and the other at Amrutollah, but, luckily, very little property was consumed.

CIVIL SERVICE PENSIONS.—It appears that the statement made recently, that the Board of Control had refused to grant the quarter payments of the Civil Service Pensions, is incorrect. The Hon'ble Mr. Meiville, on good authority, has contradicted the report.

CRIMINAL LAW.—It is understood that the code of criminal law is in a forward state of preparation, and will be laid before the Supreme Government in the course of next year.

GENERAL ALLARD.—The French corvette Aube has brought out General Allard. The General now comes in the character of an Ambassador from Louis Philippe to Lahore.

SINKING OF A BOAT.—On the evening of the 24th of November, a boat containing about thirty passengers, was proceeding through the Hooghly river, but owing to the violence of the stream opposite the Bhagat Bagan, the boat was swamped. This melancholy event caused the death of about four or five passengers.

BABOO DWARKANATH TAGORE'S FETE.—On the evening of the 28th of November the superb villa of Baboo Dwarkanath Tagore was thrown open to the Governor-General and a brilliant party of about 300 persons. The order of entertainment was music, vocal and instrumental, fireworks and quadrilles,—the whole concluded with an excellent supper of ice, champagne and other delicacies, including the finest fruit and most recherché confectionary which Calcutta artists could produce. The house has recently been embellished by an additional story, and the whole, having been newly furnished, was thrown open to the assembled guests.

THE SAVINGS BANK.—The usual half-yearly abstract report of the operations of the Savings Bank, has been published. The balance now exceeds ten lakhs of rupees, of which above seven lakhs are invested in the 4 per cent loan in the names of depositors. The amount and number of monthly deposits continue to be on the increase; the receipts of the past month amount to more than 65,000 rupees, which is several thousand rupees larger than the receipts of any former month.

ST. ANDREW'S DAY.—St. Andrew's day was celebrated by the sons of Scotia with the usual anniversary dinner. About one hundred and twenty individuals were present, and the evening passed off very pleasantly.

INVALID OFFICERS' PENSIONS.—It is said that the officers are on their way from the Home Authorities to obtain a confirmation of the extension of the pensions to the officers on the Invalid Establishment of the Armies at the three Presidencies. The officers have thus anticipated the probability of a reduction to their justice and generosity on this point.

FEVER HOSPITAL.—The Fever Hospital Committee have sent in their report to the Governor-General, and his Lordship has returned the document, desiring further information regarding several subjects, with respect to which he does not consider the report sufficiently explicit.

STEAM FUND MEETING.—MR. WAGHORN.—The following resolutions were adopted at a meeting of the subscribers to the New Bengal Steam Fund, held at the Town Hall, on the 16th instant:

1st.—That the sum of Co.'s rupees 4,000 be granted from the New Bengal Steam Fund to Mr. Waghorn, as a mark of the sense entertained by the Subscribers, of his zealous exertions and personal sacrifice, in proceeding in a buggallow with the July packets from Suez to Mocha, by which means the whole of India has benefitted in the receipt of letters and general intelligence from England much earlier than otherwise would have been the case.

2nd.—That the correspondence with Government on the subject of granting a remuneration to Mr. Waghorn be read, and it was read accordingly.

PARENTAL ACADEMY.—The pupils of this seminary, were examined on the 15th Dec., and the vast improvement they developed, speaks highly of the attention that has been devoted to them by their instructors and of their attention to their studies.

BANK OF BENGAL.—A warm contest took place on the 15th of Dec. for the Bank Direction. Three candidates started for the two seats vacant by rotation—Mr. W. F. Ferguson, Mr. Cragg and Mr. Thomas Leach, the last supported by the opposition interest. The result of the poll was in favor of Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Leach, who have been declared duly elected. A number of votes were lost by a rule adopted on this occasion, which many parties were not apprized of in time, that proxy votes would not be admitted unless personally given in by proprietors holding them. —Mr. William Prinsep, was elected a Director of the Bank of Bengal, on the 24th of Dec., in the place of Mr. Carr.

PULTHA GHAT.—The farmer of the Pultha Ghat ferry has been fined thirty rupees for extorting money from the boatmen plying at that ferry, and two chowkedars, who colluded with and connived at his doing so, have been dismissed the service. The Magistrate of the district, to prevent passengers from being imposed upon, has fixed the following rate of charges for the ferry, which is written in English and Bengallee on a board put up at the ghat:—For the passage of a native, one pan; a European, one pace; a goat and a sheep, ten gundaks; a horse, six annas; a pony, two annas; an elephant, three rupees; a camel, one rupee; a buggy and a horse, one rupee; a chariot and two horses, one rupee and eight annas; a chariot only, twelve annas; a buggy only, ten annas; a caranchy with fatoes, eight annas; a cow two annas; a bullock with load three annas; and a cart and bullocks, twelve annas.

EXCHANGE OF TERRITORY.—The Mogul, has brought out M. Bedier, charge du service des établissements Français du Bengale, who brings a special commission to treat with the Governor-General for an exchange of territory upon the principle of a cession of all the minor establishments of the French in India for an equivalent aggrandisement at Pondicherry.

BORING FOR WATER.—The obstruction that had been experienced in the boring operation in the fort, after a depth of 280 feet had been obtained, by the breaking of a mudshell, has been removed. The shell was brought up on the 3rd of December by a worm augur.

SHIP LAUNCH.—A fine little clipper of about 200 tons, was launched on the 7th of December from Mr. P. Foster's dock yard, at Sultana.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.—At a monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce on the 6th instant, it was resolved to address a letter of thanks to Mr. Larpent, as chairman of the East India and China Association in London, for the interest he and his colleagues had taken, and the exertions they had made, in getting the duties reduced on Bengal sugars.

BONDING WAREHOUSES.—The account opened at the Union Bank for the first instalment of ten per cent. on shares in the Bonding Warehouses, was closed on the 7th of December according to advertisements. The sum paid up is 97,600 rupees, corresponding with 1,952 shares, and leaving only 48 shares in default, which will consequently be disposed of among the applicants of the second supplementary list, whose demands embrace about 300 shares. It is said that already a premium of ten per cent. has been offered to a large subscriber for his shares.

DINNER TO SIR THOMAS ANBUREY.—The officers of the Engineer corps, on the 7th of December, entertained their late distinguished chief, Brigadier Sir Thomas Amburey, C. B., at a sumptuous dinner at the Town Hall.

STEAMERS FOR BOMBAY AND CALCUTTA.—The following is an extract from a letter from the Isle of France of the 22d October:—

"We expect two steamers here shortly from the England, one for Calcutta and the other for Bombay, to be employed in keeping up a communication with England through the Red Sea, two vessels loaded with coal have already arrived."

GOOMSOOR.—There has been some fighting in Goomsoor lately, and one Suwar and several Khonds have been put hors de combat. More resistance has been made than was expected, and in consequence another regiment has been ordered up the ghauts, and an indent for the immediate supply of 50,000 ball cartridges has been sent down by the Commissioner, Mr. Russell.

TWENTY-FOUR PERGUNNAH COURT.

POWDER MILL COURT, 19TH DEC.—Syed Moodie was convicted of the murder of a wood-seller at Kidderpore, but it appearing from evidence and the conduct of the man that he has been in a deranged state of mind for several years, he has been hauled over to the keeper of the Tollygunge Asylum.

The infant child of an humble pair, was recently taken from the side of the mother whilst she was asleep at night and thrown into a tank by some unknown person. The body of the unfortunate infant was found the next morning, and circumstance brought to the notice of the magistrate to-day.

Ameer Peekuttah, a notorious dacoit, was apprehended by order of the magistrate and brought to account as to his means of subsistence and his present occupation.

the magistrate having been informed that Ameer was again preparing for an expedition, and that he had collected several others for the purpose. Several of the inhabitants of the village in which Ameer was arrested, appeared and gave him a bad and suspicious character, and solicited his being removed to some other place, as all the villagers were in a state of apprehensive. Ameer was, therefore, ordered to find securities for his good conduct for two years, on failure of which to continue in the custody of the Nazir.

The Kalee Ghat Darogah reported, that a man named Ram Dhone Doss, was found cruelly murdered in an indigo factory at Kurree Burreah, in the district of the 24 Pergunnahs, and that he, (the darogah) on suspicion, took into custody two persons named Ramnarain Pooraket and Roopchand Mundal, who have acknowledged having committed the foul deed. He was ordered to send up the prisoners and all parties concerned immediately.

MOFUSSIL.

AGRA.—Mr. Kinloch, late collector of Customs at Furruckabad, has been appointed assistant to Mr. Blunt, collector of Customs, on a salary of 1,000 rupees a month.

Mr. Bird left the station on the 15th of December, and visits Futtehpore, Deeg, and Muttra, from whence he proceeded by the usual route to Aimalah.

Lieutenant A. Grant arrived at Butehur on the 17th, in charge of a detachment of the 36th Native Infantry, to protect the fair, which will continue until the end of the month.

Mr. J. G. Deedes c. s. has left Allahabad, in company with A. C. Jackson, Esq., c. s., and Mr. Pidcock, on his return to Europe via the Red Sea, Syria, Palestine and Constantinople. Mr. H. Lushington, c. s., also takes his furlough this season.

Mr. Elliott passed through Agra, on the 13th instant on his way to Allahabad, to join an appointment which he owes to the expression of the general voice of Upper India in his favour.

A special court of enquiry is directed to assemble at Agra. The subject matter to be laid before it, has reference to a dispute between two Medical officers, Messrs. Thomson and Clarke on a point of professional etiquette.

Major Shadwell of the 21 Cavalry, passed Agra on the 24th of Nov. under the protection of the notorious Mr. Fisher.

A melancholy accident occurred in this district recently. A Mr. H. Wright, a young man in the Revenue Survey Department, was in the act of raising a gun which had been placed against a tree, when the instrument exploded and lodged its contents in the breast and side of an unfortunate native, who was standing about 10 yards off. He expired immediately. The Magistrate before whom the case came, declared it one of pure accident, and recommended Mr. Wright to pay a maintenance of 3 rupees per month to the family of the deceased.

On the morning of the 20th of November, four privates of the European Regiment sought admission to a kulwar's shop, within the Akkab Gunj Thanna, which being refused by the shopkeeper, Duokchor, one of them fired a gun loaded with shot into the face of the unfortunate man. The loss of his right eye and dreadful laceration of the face were the consequences. The Europeans escaped, but the same morning, some time after, one man was apprehended but under mere suspicion.

The Bishop of Calcutta arrived at Agra on the 8th of Dec.

The Raja of Bikaner was expected to arrive at Agra on the morning of the 11th of Dec.

A robbery of gold and silver ornaments, to the amount of 800 rupees, belonging to Mrs. Cock, the wife of a merchant, took place on the 21st of Nov. No trace has as yet been found of the property.

The two persons apprehended in Juepore by Major Alves, as suspicious characters, have arrived at Agra under restraint. They are both to be brought to Calcutta for trial, one under a warrant from the Chief Magistrate of Calcutta for having falsely obtained 6,000 rupees from the Firm of Walker, Roussac and Co., the other under the authority of the Lieutenant-Governor. They are Armenians and Christians.

—It is rumoured in Allahabad, that Chin-—is immediately to be abolished as a Military station, —to be sold, and the troops to be removed —to be stationed at Allahabad, for whom accommodation is to be prepared.

The pilgrims to the "consecrated confluence of the Jumna and Ganges are already beginning to assemble in small numbers for the annual bathing ceremony. The junction of these rivers has completely turned out of the course which it took last year, and, moreover, their beds are so much dried up that the distance from the fort is considerably greater than it was then. It is reported that several native princes, accompanied by their retinues, will visit the fair this season.

MERUT.—It is said that Capt. Mackinlay is to be re-stored to the Assistant-Adjutant-Generalship.

GHUMKTESER.—Vast quantities of grain of every description are leaving this ghât almost every day for the lower provinces, where the price of wheat, &c., has risen so rapidly, that the bunnies of the Upper Doab, are induced to enter largely into speculations, which it is to be feared, however, will tend greatly to raise the prices in the Doab.

GOVERDHUN.—The Fair this year has been unusually attended, and business has been consequently brisk. The exertions of Mr. Tyler, the Magistrate of Muttra, to preserve order, were highly successful. But one accident occurred, that of a man who was trampled to death by the crowd who were hurrying with the most pious fervour to say their prayers at the great Mundee, and who were too eager to perform the holy act to think of what they trod on.

MALDA.—The crops of rice, &c. at Malda are abundant this year; but the prices rising every day, the people are subject to some hardship.

GOOWALPARAH.—During the month of November, no less than three earthquakes were felt in this place. The last, which took place on the 2th, was very severe, preceded by a rumbling noise like distant thunder. The cholera has made its appearance in the town and is now raging.

PALLEE.—The sickness in and about Pallée, is greatly on the decline.

NATIVE STATES,

HUEDURABAD ON THE INDUS.—Thirty thousand men have been stationed on the boundaries of the territory subject to this town, to watch and intimidate the Sikhs whose progress in the Punjab is exciting considerable attention among these people.

NEPAL.—The following is extracted from the Agro Ukhbar :—

The Raja has, it appears, called upon the Company for the fulfilment of that article in their mutual treaty, by which they are to uphold him against all opponents on the throne of Nepal. This step has been taken in consequence of the menacing appearance of the gallant Murtabar Singh, who is now at the head of a large army which is said to be in a state of the most steady and terror striking discipline. The genius of the daring rebel, with some hints he received from Brigadier — on his late tour and the assistance of a discharged Naik of the Company's service, have accomplished this great means of success. He contemplates a blockade of the capital, and with the cautiousness which distinguishes him, has commenced a demonstration within nearly five days march of it. The Raja, with corresponding activity, has ordered the gates to be shut, and sent an express to his British allies on the subject.

LUCKNOW. It is said that the debaucheries and follies of the King of Lucknow have terminated in confirmed insanity, hastened by the severe reproof from the Supreme Government of British India. He fancies he is ancient, and has devoted twelve chambers to his accommodation for a certain number of days, till the period of his achievement. He carefully studies apparances, and makes himself as ridiculous as it is possible for a madman to be. It is also said that the country is to be governed by a Regent, and that European officers of the Civil Service are to have the administration of revenue and fiscal matters.

JAYPORE.—A quantity of treasure has been discovered in the jungle bordering on Deosa, the property, it is supposed, of Jotha Ram. The Jyepoor authorities seized on it with alacrity.

LAHORE.—Runjeet still holds his Durbar at Amritsar.

Rajah Soochait Sing attended the Durbar, and reported the arrival of himself and army from Doorooboono.

Now Nehal Sing submitted, that he found it impossible to compound matters with the Scindians, whose councils were torn by faction and discords.

An arzee was received from the Ukhbar Nuvees of Multan, stating that the Dewan Sawun Mull was encamped at Kote Mutthun on his return to Multan, where he was expected in a few days.

A purwannah was despatched to Mistr Roop Loll, the Hakim of the Duwabah, desiring him to take a census of his jagheer, and to secure possession of Pugwara, which he must retain against all opposition.

Gomanie Loll and Sungut Sing were desired to co-operate with Shere Ally Khan the Nazim of Ferozepoor in settling the disputes which have risen with the British Government on this side the Sutledge.

The house of a buneah at Jullunder, who was possessed of enormous wealth, but no heirs to inherit it, and who had not even a single relation, was one night entered by a gang of robbers who stole away every thing in it and murdered the buneah. To convey a wrong clue, the perpetrators managed to lodge a portion of the stolen property in a part of the fort, where the sepoy's lived, so that all the odium has fallen upon them.

MULTAN.—The Dewan Suwun Mull, of Multan, has issued a proclamation throughout the territories, over which he has sway, stating that adultery, fornication and all uncleanness, will be severely punished by law, and enjoining all those who shall, at the period of the issue of the proclamation be living as man and wife, without the rites of marriage, forthwith to supply the deficiency, and as a further check he has deaired a list to be taken of all persons so situated.

The district is still in a very disturbed state, in consequence of the unabated hostility and depredations of the Bilochees and Mozaries. Dewan Sawun Mull applied to Runjeet to relieve him of a portion of his onerous duties, as he found it impossible to make arrangements for establishing order in one portion of Multan, when his utmost energies were required to repress the encroachments of the determined enemies of the Sikhs, in the other. Runjeet informed him that he must put forth his best exertions to meet the exigencies of the time, and not slacken in zeal or alacrity, for that his service would soon be put in requisition against Shikarpore.

BELOOCHISTAN.—The stormy aspect of Scinde has encouraged the wild and predatory hords of Beloochistan, to "unfurled the black banner," and carve out for themselves, before Runjeet can cast his "evil eye" upon it, a slice from the round which the Sikhs covet so much. A Chief of the Biloorches has been on a reconnoitring visit to the Town of Saitpore, and the Scindians knowing full well the value of such an Ally, have endeavoured to purchase his alliance by the offer of a number of villages; but he has laughed at their beards and told them, that no credit is due where a virtue is made of necessity.

SU-THNEEDOUR.—The Sikh official of this Town, which is in the Peshawur ilaqua, in the excess of his zeal decreed, that any Mussulman who should be found casting a leathern bucket, which is an abomination to Hindoos, into a well, would have his own house and the houses of his relatives given up to plunder. This innovation and sacrifice of the rites of hospitality to fanaticism, soon produced such results as induced the officious man of authority, gladly to allow matters to revert to the old way. A kafilah of merchants, proceeding to Hindoo-tan, having encamped near one of the holy wells, unwittingly or unheedingly, infringed the decree, when the Sikhs thought to have punished them for their contumacy, but they found to their cost, that the merchants showed no child's play and very gladly gave up the contest. The official seeing how matters stood, and that he had cast a bone of contention between the Mussulmans and Hindoos, immediately revoked his unwise decree.

KHYRPORE. The Chief of this place, which is in the Scinde ilaqua, and likely to be included in the fate impending over Shikarpore, has written to Dost Mahomed, inviting him to unite and make a common cause against the Shikhs; for it is notorious that Calool has been chalked out as the next victim after Shikarpore. He has submitted a proposal to Dost Mahomed to concentrate their forces on the banks of the Attock, and by making a simultaneous attack upon Peshawar, and the forts in the vicinity of the Attock, to divert Runjeet from his evil designs.

CABOOL.—Dost Mahomed has despatched an Envoy to the British Government, soliciting their friendship and good-will. The Envoy is also the bearer of a letter, in which the Government are urged to attend to any further matters that may be presented to them by the Envoy. A similar despatch has been sent to Persia!

MADRAS.

THE STAR.—The American ship Star has been condemned, and was sold by public auction on the 25th of November and realized seven thousand rupees. Her stores, also sold by auction, fetched very good prices.

DEATH OF MAJOR TAYLOR.—Major Taylor, of His Majesty 13th Dragoons, died suddenly on the 26th of November.

SIR E. GAMBIER.—Sir E. Gambier arrived at Madras in the Eliza Jane on the 27th Nov., and was sworn in Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Madras on the 28th.

BASE OF SIR T. MUNRO'S STATUE. Chantrey's plan for the base of Sir T. Munro's statue, has been received by the Committee.

SUICIDE.—A Private of H. M.'s 39th at Bangalore, shot himself while on the Fort Guard on the night of the 19th of November.

REVIEW.—H. M.'s 63d Regiment were reviewed by Brigadier-General Doveton, C. B., on the morning of the 2d of Dec. and gave satisfaction.

PLATE TO CAPT. CHADS.—At a numerous meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, held on the 30th of November, resolutions were passed voting the public thanks of that body to Captain Chads, c. n., H. M. ship Andromache, and to his officers and crew for their valuable services against the pirates. It was also resolved, that a subscription should be immediately entered into, among the mercantile community, for the purpose of presenting Captain Chads with a piece of plate, value 100 guineas.

COMPULSORY DRAWING OF RELIGIOUS CARS.—The Hindu inhabitants of Madras and its dependencies have petitioned the Government against the Government order of the 21st of May, 1836, which abolished the order by which labourers were liable to be seized and compelled to draw the religious cars of the Hindus. The Government have, very properly, refused to abrogate the order.

DEATH OF MAJOR-GENERAL SIR G. ELDER.—Major-General Sir George Elder, K. C. B., recently arrived from England and appointed to the Mysore Division of the Army, was thrown from his horse on the evening of the 3d Dec., with extreme violence, against a tree, and died almost immediately afterwards.

THE JOHN WILLIAM DARE.—The John William Dare, one of the vessels thought to have been lost in the gale of the 30th of October, has put in to Coringa dismasted.

THE MUNRO PICTURES.—The Munro Pictures have been restored to their former sites.

THE TENGRIAR QUESTION.—The celebrated Tengriar question, which has occupied much attention both among the Hindu community and at the Council Board, has at length been decided in favour of the view taken by Mr. Maclean, the Collector of Chingleput, who opposed the innovation attempted and maintained the ancient mamool.

CIVIL ANNUITY FUND.—The Honorable Mr. Russell, has refused, and Mr. Roberts has accepted, the Civil Annuity this year.

THE ANDROMACHE.—The Andromache, Capt. Chads, has returned to Madras and is to sail thence for Calcutta.

HORRIBLE MURDERS.—Two horrible murder-cases have been tried at Trichinopoly, the one is that of a pariah woman, who, with the help of her paramour, murdered her husband, cut off his head and disembowelled the body, sewed up the head in the place of the entrails. The other, that of a Braminy woman, who was surprised by her son, a boy about ten years of age, with a gallant; the boy threatened to tell his father, and she threatened to murder him if he did; the boy returned to school in the fort and told his schoolmaster what had taken place; an hour or two afterwards he was sent for home, before the usual time. The father of the lad on his return wondered that his son had not come home. The mother pretended to wonder likewise—when perceiving some droops of blood fall from a basket affixed to the ceiling, the father took it down, and found in it the poor child with his throat cut. While he was contemplating the piteous sight in the extremity of misery, the wretched woman, rushing out into the street, exclaimed that the father was murdering his child! The man was seized, but fortunately the schoolmaster cleared up the truth of the matter, and the mother, made a confession of her guilt.

COURT-MARTIAL.—The court-martial lately assembled for the trial of Captain Fitzgibbon is dissolved, and he has been found guilty on three of the ten instances of charge preferred against him, and sentenced to be discharged the service.

THE BANQUETING ROOM.—A large portion of the ceiling of the Banqueting Room fell on the evening of the 15th ultimo, and broke a portion of the table, a chair and a chandelier, but no person was injured.

GOONSOON.—A party of Nizam's Horse, under Captain Byam, and of the 46th N. I. under Lieutenant Coxwell, had surprised a village on the 26th of November, in which were two chiefs, Borovah Naick and Daddiah Naick. The first was killed with six of his followers and the last surrounded, and made prisoner, with two more followers. Hostile operations are now going on with great activity in the Goonsoor country. The whole district below the ghauts is at present under military occupation by the troops, and detachments have seized the passes, and are scouring the country in every direction, for the apprehension of Dora Bemoys and the other rebel chiefs.

BOMBAY.

SEIZURE OF PIECE GOODS.—A considerable quantity of the piece goods which had formed part of the cargo of the Hindoo—which vessel had been wrecked about some seventy miles down the coast, while in prosecution of her voyage from Liverpool to Bombay, about three months ago—has been seized by the Custom House officers, the same having been smuggled into Bombay. The goods have been identified.

While engaged in the search for these goods, about 2,000 bayonets, concealed in the same house, were discovered; but how they came there, or for what purpose they were intended, there appears no clue to ascertaining. An enquiry has been set on foot.

THE DEWAN OF SATTARA.—Letters from Sattara mention, that the close confinement in which the Dewan of His Highness had been placed while the Court of Enquiry was sitting there for the investigation of the late misunderstanding, has been relaxed since the termination of its labours, and the departure of Mr. Willoughby and Major Ovens for the Presidency. It is stated that he is still in the cantonments under a guard, but that he is permitted to receive any visitors and even transact business connected with his office. It is thought that he will be restored to his situation, when the decision of Government on the proceedings of the Court shall have been announced.

THE GUICOWAR AND HIS MINISTER.—A short time ago, Veneeram, the present Minister at Baroda, announced a determination of quitting the service of the Guicowar and proceeding to Benares. This step, it was understood, was adopted by him on account of some difference of opinion between him and his master; for which reason Sayajee Rao used every art, but in vain, to dissuade him from carrying his resolution into effect. A numerous meeting of the people, however, assembled at the house of Huree Bhugtee, the rich Banker, and there it was immediately resolved to present an address to the Guicowar, expressing the confidence of the meeting in the administration of Veneeram, and praying that His Highness would not accept his resignation. The address was immediately prepared, signed by upwards of a thousand people, and carried by a deputation to Sayajee Rao, with a request that he would allow his son to accompany the deputation to the residence of the angry Minister. This request was immediately complied with by his Highness, who, observing, "your will is my will, and it shall be done," went with them himself. The Dewan was soothed by good words, and was at last prevailed upon to return to the town, which he did soon after at a propitious hour.

THEFT.—A daring theft was committed in the country house of Messrs. Forbes and Co. recently. The miscreants, by means of false keys, opened the treasure chest and abstracted eight hundred rupees. The night peons and another individual, are suspected of having committed the theft, as four hundred rupees has been found in the house of the latter.

THE STEAM FUND.—Recent advices from England have induced the Steam Committee at Bombay to alter their views with regard to the Steam Fund; and a fresh proposition will be laid before the Subscribers in a short time, for the appropriation of the fund, which will accord in some respects with the object originally contemplated.

CEYLON.

ATTEMPT TO MURDER.—On the morning of the 24th of November, a most barbarous outrage was committed in the Artillery Barracks at Kandy. At 9½ a. m. on that day, in the absence of the Commanding Officer of the Artillery stationed there, Acting Sergeant Major Thomas Bell, paraded the Detachment of Gunners and read the proceedings of a court-martial lately held upon Gunner McTavish (who is a notorious drunkard) which sentenced him to corporal punishment and hard labor. The prisoner was then conducted to the guard room, with orders to be in readiness in half an hour to be removed to the octagon, there to be delivered for punishment. At 10 a. m. McTavish asked permission of the Malay Corporal of the guard to go into Sergeant Bill's quarters, which was granted, a sentry being directed to accompany him, the latter, however, loitered behind. On entering Bill's room he found him lying on a couch reading a newspaper, and said "Sergeant get my dinner from Joe the Cook, and send it down to me." The other had scarcely time to answer "very well," when McTavish made a jump upon him, pressed his head upon the couch, and made a cut with a razor at his throat, exclaiming at the same time "you'd—md, infernal rascal, your time is come." By a tremendous effort Sergeant Bill extricated himself from the other's grasp, the blood flowing in torrents from his throat. The Sergeant's little son, about six years old, seeing the scuffle, screamed out, which fortunately had the effect of bringing two Gunners, who seized, and secured McTavish. Sergeant Bill was immediately removed to the Military Hospital where the hemorrhage from his throat was soon stopped, as none of the large arteries of the neck, although very nearly, had been divided, and he is now doing well.

That by this means their services may be made immediately available, while, at the same time, they may be put in the way of learning the language for the purpose of fitting themselves to practice in parts of the country to which foreigners have not hitherto gained free access.

To receive and assist the medical men who shall be sent out by Societies formed for the purpose either in England or America, and to draw attention to the selection of men of suitable qualification.

Individuals subscribing fifty dollars, or upwards, in one payment, shall be considered members for life, or fifteen dollars annually, members during the period of their subscription.

TEA TRADE.—There is a dispute between the black tea growers and the Hong merchants about the advances and payments made by the latter, which, if it is not quickly adjusted, as now appears improbable, is calculated to ruin the Hong.

COMPANY'S TREASURY.—The Company's Treasury was re-opened on the 6th of October, for the receipt of cash bills on Bengal.

A total stagnation in trade had nearly taken place. No transactions in opium could be effected in consequence of the repeated edicts from the Hoppo and the Emperor having scared the traders away from Canton. The tea trade was at a stand, through the disagreement existing between the Hong merchants and the tea-growers and about fifty British vessels were consequently laying idle in the Harbour. Silk is unusually abundant, but transactions in that article are retarded, through the prohibition to export above stated quantity on each ship, without paying double duties. A petition against this inhibition has been rejected. A threat was also held out, of examining the foreign merchants and squeezing them.

PENANG.

DEATH OF THE GAZETTE.—In consequence of the death of Mr. W. Cox, the editor of the Prince of Wales Island Gazette, that paper has ceased to be published.

KING OF QUESAH.—The King of Quesah still continued at Bruas, but orders had been received at Penang from the Supreme Government, to take him, to Malacca by force if he did not immediately proceed to Delhi, and in the event of his refusal he was to be secured and placed under surveillance at Malacca so as to prevent his ever again becoming mischievous, or in other words, deprive the unfortunate man not only of every means of regaining those lawful rights in depriving him of which the British Government bore so distinguished a part, but now, in order to secure his crown and territory to his enemies, to restrain his personal liberty!

CHINA

OPIMUM.—The following edict from the Emperor, puts at rest the question of admitting opium into China as an authorized article of trade—

'The Censor Hou Kewtsien has presented a memorial, respecting the injury which will accrue to the people from the introduction of opium (literally foreign smoke) through the custom-house, and requesting that it may be interdicted, the memorial is most just, let not the drug be admitted. Respect this.'

THE BRIG FAIRY.—Authentic information has been received of the brig Fairy's loss, the manner in which she was lost has not, however, been ascertained. Many rumours are in circulation regarding this event, but the one most credited, is, that she had been cut off by eight Manilla men, who composed part of her crew, and who are supposed to have first murdered Capt. Mackay and officers, and then, after landing the remainder of the crew, who it is reported were more or less wounded, to have ran off with the brig and a large amount of treasure which she had on board.

MEDICAL MISSIONARY SOCIETY.—It is contemplated to establish a Medical Missionary Society in China. The objects of the projectors are—

That those who shall come out as Missionaries to China may find there those to whom they can apply for assistance and information, on their first arrival in the country.

REVIEW OF THE CALCUTTA MARKET.

(From Kuhn's Monthly Price Current, December 31, 1836.)

Freight we hear, that Sugar has been taken for London at £4 10 per 30 cwt and from, the great accession of Tonnage from all parts a further decline may be anticipated, the more so as the difficulties attending to the sale of private Bills in China may probably induce several ships to procure cargoes at this port.

EXCHANGE.—On London has not risen so rapidly as was expected some weeks ago, good private Bills at 6 months' sight, may be quoted from—2s. 4d. ½ to 2s. 1d. ¾. Bank Bills 2s. 2d. ½ per 8s. Rs.

INDIGO.—Speculative orders for the purchase of this article arrive with almost every ship, and the steadiness of consumption in Europe, and consequent diminution of the stocks point clearly to a progressive rise of prices.

RAW SILK.—The competition of buyers is so great, and the mulberry trees have suffered so much from the draught, that the prices have advanced and will probably continue to do so for some time to come, at all events until the accounts from London become less encouraging.

BRICK PRICK GOODS.—Corahs can scarcely be collected in sufficient quantity to meet the demand. Bandanoes and Ghoppahs are firm in consequence of the demand for Corahs. The following sales have been reported in the Bazar.

OPPIUM.—The recent discouraging accounts from China have thrown much doubt upon the future range of prices.

The general opinion is in favor of a decline, this will however be seen best during the progress of the Company's sale advertised for the 4th proximo, to consist of 7,000 chests, viz. 5,000 Patna, and 2,000 Benares. We have no sales to report, nothing remaining in the market.

SALT-PETRE.—Evidently rising. The exportation to France and America is considerably beyond that of former years and the decline in freight will naturally give an impulse to the trade with England.

SUGAR.—Shipments to England are proceeding with much spirit, the required certificates to enable the article to be imported at home at the reduced rate of duty having been granted in due form.

COTTON.—The only business doing is for China in Jassone and Cutchora for England nothing is reported. Our stocks are large and the market generally very flat.

RICE.—There has been a great demand for the table Rice for England, and the declining rate of freight will doubtless tend to enhance prices of rice generally.

LINSEED.—The imports from the interior for the season have terminated, and at present there is scarcely a maund in the market, the crop has fallen short by at least a Lac of maunds not more than 50,000 mds. having been imported against 150,000 mds. last year, no rain having fallen since October, the crops on the grounds of all seeds generally are any thing but a favorable aspect, a failure is almost certain.

LAC DYE AND SHELL LAC, continue to engage attention especially the former.

SELLS DRUGS AND OTHER MISCELLANEOUS PRODUCE.—The following sales shew the state of the market in regard to the articles under this head.

JUTE. A great demand has arisen for this article, the first qualities are rising and a considerable sale has been rarely made at 5s. Rs. 8 per screwed sale or 301 s. English, HIDES.—It will have been observed that notwithstanding the high rates of freight, the exportation to England has been large for several months past, it is therefore probable that the shipments will henceforward encrease with the decline in freights.

COPPER.—The great rise that has taken place here will doubtless prevent shipments to England. The Arabs have brought a very small supply this year.

METALS.—The Copper market is very heavy, the arrivals are rather increasing, sheathing Copper on the decline. Iron continues high. Our supplies from England of Baran less than last year. Swedish Iron has advanced considerably. Of Spetter, our stock continues to be moderate, we have only one sale of importance to record effected at Cy. Rs. 7 10 per facy. md.

TWIST.—The stock of White, although increasing from the late arrivals is still very moderate, and our market is in that state which renders the future range of prices entirely dependant on the succeeding supplies. The sales of this month have been below the average as to quantity.

TURKEY RED YARN.—Is dull of sales at present, the stock more than adequate to the demand.

ORANGE.—Also rather dull.

COTTON PRICK GOODS.—The market for all description of white (Shirtings excepted) is extremely unfavourable as to prices, the high rate of exchange induces holders to sell freely and the native demand at this season for many articles is not great.—Mull Mulls, Lappets, Lenoes and ordinary Jaconets can only be disposed of at a great sacrifice upon the invite prices. The sales of Book Muslins have been extensive and also Ghingams of good quality and assortments are somewhat in improved demand. The demand for printed Cottons is good and of Neutral Stripes and Pines: the sales go on freely as is customary at this season of the year. Bengal Stripes are also much enquired after and single Coloured Plates in fair demand, but at declining rates. In imitation Bandanoes an improvement is expected consequent upon the arrival of the Burmese merchants. Twilled Turkey red cloth continues to command a steady sale.

WOOLLENS.—Law Scarlets are in good demand, the stock being much reduced. Town and pelisse clothes selling in small lots for the local consumption.

ACTS OF THE SUPREME GOVERNMENT.

FORT WILLIAM, LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT,
JULY 6, 1835.

The following extract from the proceedings of Government in the Legislative Department, is published for general information :

Resolved, that the following Rules be adopted as standing Orders of the Council of India in its Legislative Department.

First.—When the Governor-General of India in Council shall approve of the Draft of a Law, the Draft shall be printed and published for general information.

Second.—No Draft of a Law shall be ordered to be published till at least one week shall be elapsed from the day on which it was first laid before the Council of India in its Legislative Department.

Third.—When a Draft of a Law shall be approved, a day shall be appointed for the re-consideration thereof, which day shall be at least six weeks later than the day of publication.

Fourth.—On the day appointed for the re-consideration of the Draft, it shall be competent to the Governor-General in Council to pass it into a Law with any amendments which he may deem necessary.

Fifth.—In case any Member of the Council shall represent that any amendments which may have been made appear to him to require longer consideration, the discussion shall be adjourned for a period of not less than one week.

Sixth.—In case any Member of the Council shall represent, in writing, that any amendments which may have been made appear to him to be of so new and important a nature that they ought not to be adopted without being previously published for general information, every other Member of the Council shall record his opinion on that point, with the reasons of that opinion; and if the majority shall then be of opinion that the amendments are of so new and important a nature that they ought not to be adopted without being previously published for general information, the amended Draft shall be published, and the further consideration thereof shall be adjourned to a day later by at least six weeks than the day of such second publication.

Seventh.—Every Member of the Council shall be entitled either on occasion of a Draft of a law being ordered to be published, or on occasion of its being passed or finally rejected to demand that every Member shall record his opinion, and the reasons thereof.

Eighth.—Any of the foregoing Standing Orders may be suspended by an unanimous resolution of the Council of India, but in every such case the reasons of that resolution shall be recorded.

Ninth.—If there be a majority of the Council of India for suspending any Standing Order, any Member may demand an adjournment of the discussion for at least twenty-four hours, and on the resumption of the discussion at the re-assembling of the Council, each Member shall deliver in his opinion, with the reasons thereof in writing, and if a majority, including the Governor-General or the President of the Council for the time being, shall still be for suspending the Standing Order, the Standing Order shall be suspended, and not otherwise.

RESPECTING ORDERS OF THE GOVERNOR OF MADRAS.

ACT No. I, DATED JANUARY 7.

Be it enacted, that from the day on which the Governor of the Presidency of Fort Saint George shall next enter within the limits of the said presidency till three months shall have elapsed, or till the said Governor shall arrive at the said Presidency, which ever shall first happen, all officers, civil and military, attached to the said Presidency, shall obey such orders as they may receive from the said Governor, and that the orders of the said Governor shall be as valid an authority for any act done by such officers as the orders of the said Governor in this Council would be.

RESPECTING FUNCTIONARIES AT ASSAM, ARACAN AND TENASSERIM.

ACT No. II, DATED JANUARY 12.

Be it enacted, that the Functionaries who are or may be appointed in the Provinces of Assam, Arracan, and Tenasserim, be henceforth placed under the control and superintendence, in civil cases, of the Court of Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, in criminal cases, of the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, and in revenue cases, of the Sudder Board of Revenue; and that such control and superintendence shall be exercised in conformity with such instructions as the said Functionaries may have received or may hereafter receive from the Government of Fort William in Bengal.

NO NEW CLAIMS ADMISSIBLE UNDER REGULATIONS I OF 1821, 1 OF 1823, &c.

ACT No. III, DATED FEBRUARY 19.

Be it enacted, that no new claims shall be admitted under the provisions of Regulation 1, 1821, Regulation 1, 1823, and clause 2, section 2, Regulation 1, 1829.

2. And be it enacted, that all such claims shall hereafter be cognizable only in the regular Courts of Justice, and shall be tried and determined in like manner with all other suits, in conformity with the provisions of the General Regulations, and without reference to the provisions of the Regulations referred to in the preceding section of this Act.

3. And be it enacted, that the Commissioners and the Sudder Board of Revenue shall investigate and decide, all cases pending before them respectively, and that the Sudder Board shall continue to admit and decide appeals from the decisions of the Commissioners, in the same manner as they were empowered to do before the passing of the Act; provided that it shall be competent to the Government of the Presidency, to transfer any part of the duties aforesaid to any Court or officers.

POWERS IN CRIMINAL CASES EXERCISED BY ONE INSTEAD OF TWO JUSTICES.

ACT No. IV, DATED MARCH 13.

Be it enacted, that from the fourteenth day of March, 1835, all powers whatever in criminal cases, which by virtue of any law now in force, may be exercised by two Justices of the Peace for the Town of Calcutta, shall be exercised by one such Justice.

ABOLISHING DISTRICT MOONSIFFS' FEE

ACT No. V, DATED MARCH 13.

Be it enacted, that such parts of any of the Regulations in force, as authorize the District Moonsiffs within the Presidency of Fort St. George to receive any fee or compensation for duties performed by them, are hereby rescinded; and District Moonsiffs within that Presidency, shall not be entitled to receive any emolument whatever, beyond their fixed monthly allowances.

FUNCTIONARIES IN CHARGE OF THE COS-

ACT No. VI, DATED MARCH 13.

Be it enacted, that the Functionaries who are or may be appointed to the political charge of the Cossyah Hills, or to the superintendence of the territory of Cachar, be henceforth placed under the control and superintendence, in civil cases, of the Court of Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, and in criminal cases of the Court of Nizamut Adawlut, and that the officers so appointed in the territory of Cachar be placed in revenue cases, under the control and superintendence of the Sudder Board of Revenue, and that such control and superintendence of the Sudder Court and Board shall be exercised in conformity with such instructions as the said Functionaries may have received or may hereafter receive from the Government of Fort William in Bengal.

GRANTING POWERS TO TRANSFER CRIMI-

ACT No. VII, DATED JUNE 8.

Be it enacted, that it shall be competent to the Governors of the Presidencies of Fort William in Bengal and of Agra respectively, by an order under the signature of the Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department, to transfer any part, or the whole of the duties connected with criminal justice from any Commissioner of Circuit to any Session Judge, and to define the powers, which shall be exercised by each respectively.

POWER TO SELL TALOOKS FOR ARREARS

ACT No. VIII, DATED JUNE 8.

Be it enacted, that such part of clause 7, section xv. Regulation VII. 1799, of the Bengal Code and other Regulations in force as vest the Judge of the Dewanny Adawlut with the power of bringing to sale in execution of summary decrees for rent the Talook or other tenure of the defaulter, and so much of clause 3, section xxiii. Regulation VII. of 1822, of the same Code as prohibits the Collectors from selling land in satisfaction of summary awards for arrears of rent which may have accrued thereon, are rescinded; and that the power heretofore vested in the Judges of the Dewanny Adawlut of selling land in satisfaction of summary decrees for rent, be transferred to the Collectors of land revenue.

II. And be it enacted, that all sales for the recovery of arrears of rent or revenue, held under clause 7, section xv. or clause 6, section xxiii, or section xxv. Regulation VII. of 1799, shall be public, and be conducted by the Collector, his Deputy, or duly authorized Assistant, and that ten days notice shall be given of such sales, by advertisement, to be struck up at the Cutcherry of the Zillah Court or local Adawlut, and that of the Collector.

POWER GRANTED TO APPOINT UNCO-VENANTED SUPERINTENDENTS.

ACT No. IX, DATED JULY 6.

I. Be it enacted, that it shall be competent to the Governor of Bengal, whenever he shall deem it expedient to vest the duty of superintending Salt Chokees in officers not being covenanted Civil Servants, to limit the powers to be exercised by them in such manner as he may be pleased to direct.

II. When the Governor of Bengal shall appoint superintending officers of Chokees without powers of adjudication in respect to cases of alleged violation of the laws for the protection of the Salt Revenue, which are declared to be vested in such officers by sections xcvi, cix, and other provisions of Regulation X, 1819, of the Bengal Code, it shall be competent to the Governor of Bengal to invest with those powers, any Judicial or Revenue officers of the Government, giving notice thereof in the Government Gazette, and every officer so invested with the said powers, shall exercise the said powers in all respects as prescribed in Regulation X, 1819, of the Bengal Code, for Salt Agents and Superintending officers of Chokees.

III. Nothing in this Act contained shall be construed to affect or interfere with the powers vested by the said Regulation or by any other Regulation of the Government of Bengal in superintending officers of Chokees being Covenanted Civil Servants.

IV. First.—In modification of the rule contained in section lxxxix. Regulation X, 1819, of the Bengal Code, the following scale of rewards is established for officers and others making seizures of Salt.

Second.—Upon the adjudication of a forfeiture of Salt, provided the parties concerned in the attempt to evade the law, be likewise convicted, the officers of the Salt Department under the grades of Agents and Superintendent, if they have made the seizure upon information laid, or under orders of their superiors, shall be entitled to a reward at the rate of 8 annas per maund of merchantable Salt so adjudged to be forfeited. If the parties concerned be not discovered and convicted, the reward to the Salt officers shall be only at the rate of 6 annas per maund.

Third. If Salt be seized by any subordinate officers of Government possessing authority to make seizures without information from others or orders from their superiors, the reward shall be at the rate of one rupee per maund if the offenders be convicted, and 8 annas if no offenders be convicted.

Fourth. Informers, whether officers of Government or not, shall, on the adjudication of Salt to forfeiture that may have been seized on the information, receive 8 annas per maund if the offenders be convicted, and 5 annas if there be no conviction.

PRODUCTION OF A GOVERNMENT GA-ZETTE TO BE DEEMED OFFICIAL AU-THORITY.

ACT No. X, DATED JULY 6.

Be it enacted that the production of a Government Gazette of any Presidency, containing an Act purporting to have been passed by the Governor-General in Council, shall be held in all Courts sufficient proof that such Act has been so passed.

LIBERATION OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

ACT No. XI, DATED AUGUST 3.

I. Be it enacted that from the fifteenth day of September, 1835, the four Regulations hereinafter specified, be repealed.

1st.—A Regulation for preventing the establishment of Printing Presses, without license, and for restraining under certain circumstances, the circulation of printed books and papers, passed by the Governor-General in Council on the 5th April, 1823.

2d.—A Rule, Ordinance, and Regulation for the good order and civil government of the Settlement of Fort William in Bengal, passed in Council, 14th March, registered in the Supreme Court of Judicature, 4th April, 1823.

3d.—A Rule, Ordinance, and Regulation for preventing the mischief arising from the printing and publishing Newspapers, and Periodical and other books and papers by persons unknown, passed by the Hon'ble the Governor in Council of Bombay, on the 2d of March, 1825, and registered in the Honorable the Supreme Court of Judicature at Bombay under date the 11th of May 1825.

4th.—A Regulation for restricting the establishment of Printing Presses and the circulation of printed books and papers, passed by the Governor of Bombay in Council on the 1st of January, 1827.

II. 1st.—And be it enacted, that after the said 15th day of September, 1835, no printed periodical work whatever, containing public news, or comments on public news, shall be published within the Territories of the East India Company except, in conformity with the rules hereinafter laid down.

2d.—The Printer and the Publisher of every such Periodical work shall appear before the Magistrate of the jurisdiction within which such work shall be published, and shall make and subscribe in duplicate the following declaration :

" I, A. B. declare that I am the Printer or Publisher, (or Printer and Publisher) of the periodical work entitled—_____ and printed (or published or printed and published) at—_____. And the last blank in this form of declaration, shall be filled up with a true and precise account of the premises where the printing or publication is conducted.

3d.—As often as the place of printing or publication is changed, a new declaration shall be necessary.

4th.—As often as the Printer or the Publisher who shall have made such declaration as is aforesaid, shall leave the Territories of the East India Company, a new declaration from a Printer or Publisher resident within the said Territories, shall be necessary.

III. And be it enacted, that whoever shall print or publish any such Periodical work as is hereinbefore described without conforming to the rules hereinbefore laid down, or whoever shall print or publish, or publish or shall cause to be printed or published any such Periodical work, knowing that the said rules have not been observed with respect to that work, shall, on conviction, be punished with fine to an amount not exceeding Five Thousand Rupees, and imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years.

IV. And be it enacted, that each of the two originals of every declaration so made and subscribed, as is aforesaid, shall be authenticated by the signature and official seal of the Magistrate before whom the said declaration shall have been made, and one of the said originals shall be deposited among the records of the office of the said Magistrate, and the other original shall be deposited among the records of the Supreme Court of Judicature, or other King's Court within the jurisdiction of which the said declaration shall have been made. V. And it is hereby enacted, that the rules and regulations now established for the levy of duties of Customs on Goods imported into or exported from Calcutta, and other Ports of the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal, shall continue to be in force and shall be observed and applied for the levy of the Import and Export duties imposed by this Act, unless repealed or altered or repugnant to the provisions thereof.

VI. And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for the Governor of the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal, by an Order printed in the Calcutta Gazette, to fix a place in any River or Port in Bengal or Orissa, beyond which place it shall not be lawful for any inward-bound Vessel, save and except such Dhonies and Country craft as are referred to in Section XXII of this Act to pass until the master or commander shall have delivered to the pilot on board for the purpose of being forwarded by the public dock or otherwise, as may be ordered by the Board of Customs, Salt and Opium, a manifest made out in the form prescribed by Section 45, Regulation IX. 1810.

And it is hereby enacted, that if the Manifest so delivered by the Master and Commander shall not contain a full and true specification of all the Goods imported in the Vessel, the Master or Person in charge thereof shall be liable to a fine of 1,000 Rs., and any Goods or Packages that may be found on board in excess of the Manifest so delivered or differing in quality or kind or in marks and numbers from the specification contained therein, shall be liable to be seized and confiscated, or to be charged with such increased duties, as may be determined by the Board of Customs, Salt and Opium.

and if any inward bound Vessel shall remain outside or below the place so fixed by the Governor of Bengal, the Master or Commander shall in like manner, deliver to the pilot so soon as the vessel shall anchor, a manifest as above prescribed, and if any such Vessels entering a Port for which there is a Custom shall be at anchor therein for the space of twenty four hours, the Master and Commander whereof shall neglect to deliver the said Manifest to the pilot on board, he shall for such neglect be liable to forfeit the sum of One thousand Rupees, and no Entry or Port Clearance shall be given for such Vessel until the fine is paid.

VII. And it is hereby enacted, that no Vessel shall be allowed to break bulk until the Manifest described in the preceding section of this Act, another copy thereof to be presented at the time of applying for entry inwards, shall have been received by the Collector of Customs, and order shall have been given by the said Collector for the discharge of the cargo, and the said Collector may further refuse to give such order if he shall see fit until any Port Clearances, Cockets, or other papers known to be granted at the places from which the Vessel is stated to have come shall likewise be delivered to him, according to the rules and practice now in force, and if an attempt be made to land or put on board Goods or VIII. And it is hereby enacted that it shall be competent to the Collector of Customs at any Port of Bengal or Orissa at his discretion to send one or more Officers of Customs one board of any Vessel at any time, and the Custom House Officer so sent, shall remain on board of such Vessel by day and by night, until the Vessel shall leave the Port or until it be otherwise ordered by the Collector of Customs.

IX. And it is hereby enacted, that any Master or Person in charge of such Vessel who shall refuse to receive a Custom House Officer on board when so deputed as above provided, or shall not afford such Officer suitable shelter and sleeping accommodation while on board, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred Rupees for every missing or deficient package of unknown value, and for twice the amount of Duty chargeable on the Goods deficient and unaccounted for, if capable of being assessed therewith. Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the Collector of Customs from permitting the Master or Commander of any Vessel to amend obvious errors or to supply omissions from accident or inadvertence by furnishing an amended or supplemental Manifest, but the receiving of such shall always be discretionary.

X. And it is hereby enacted, that whenever a Collector of Customs shall see cause to direct that any Vessel shall be searched he shall issue his warrant or written order for the same addressed to the Custom House Officer on board, or to any other Officer under his authority, and upon production of such order, the Officer bearing it shall be competent to require any Cabins, Lockers or Bulkheads to be opened in his presence, and if not opened upon his requisition to break the same open, and any Goods that may be found concealed, and that shall not be duly accounted for to the satisfaction of the Collector of Customs, shall be confiscated, and any Master or Person in charge of a Vessel, who shall resist such Officer, or refuse to allow the Vessel to be searched when so ordered by the Collector of Customs shall be liable upon conviction for every such offence to a Fine of 1000 Rupees, to be adjudged by any Magistrate or Justice of the Peace of the place.

XI. And it is hereby enacted, that no Goods shall be allowed to leave any Vessel, or to be put on board thereof until entry of the Vessel shall have been duly made in the Custom House of the Port, and Order shall have been given for discharge of the Cargo thereof as above provided, and it shall be the duty of the Custom House Officer on board, and of all Officers of Customs, to seize as contraband any Goods which shall have been removed or put off board of any Vessel in contravention of the above provision, or which any attempt shall have been made to remove from or to put on board of any Vessel in contravention of the above provision. And after entry of the Vessel at the Custom House in due form such part of the Cargo as may not be intended and declared for re-exportation in the same Vessel shall be sent to land. And Export Cargo shall be laden on board thereof that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the Governor of Bengal from ordering the release of goods seized, or from remitting any penalty whatsoever that may be incurred for contravention of the customs laws.

Twenty or thirty days allow to clear inwards according to tonnage.

XII. Provided however, and it is hereby enacted, that no Goods shall be allowed to leave any Vessel under the suit rules unless the same be duly manifested, and any Goods found on board in excess of the Manifest, or not corresponding with the specification and description therein contained, shall be seized by the Custom House Officer on board in order that they may be dealt with as prescribed in Section VI. of this Act; and if Goods entered in the Manifest shall not be found on board the Vessel, or if the quantity found be short and the deficiency be not duly accounted for, or if Goods sent out of the Vessel be not landed at the Custom House, or at such other place as the Collector of Customs shall have prescribed or permitted there to be passed in due form, the Master or Commander shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred Rupees for every missing or deficient package of unknown value, and for twice the amount of Duty chargeable on the Goods deficient and unaccounted for, if capable of being assessed therewith. Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the Collector of Customs from permitting the Master or Commander of any Vessel to amend obvious errors or to supply omissions from accident or inadvertence by furnishing an amended or supplemental Manifest, but the receiving of such shall always be discretionary.

XIII. And it is hereby enacted, that any Custom House Officer whatsoever who shall demand or accept any gratuity not authorized by any existing Regulation or Order of Government in consideration of doing, or of omitting to do any act in his Official capacity, shall forfeit for every such offence the sum of five hundred Rupees, and any person who shall offer a Bribe to any Custom House Officer in order to induce such Officer to act in a manner inconsistent with his duty shall forfeit a like sum, and these penalties shall be adjudged on conviction before any Magistrate or Justice of the Peace of the Town, District or Place where the Custom House may be established by such Magistrate, and in default of payment any person so convicted shall be committed to the Civil Jail of the City or District until the Fine be paid, or for a period not exceeding six months.

XIV. And it is hereby enacted that when Goods shall be seized as contraband and liable to confiscation, the Collector of Customs shall investigate the case, and according to his judgment shall either release the goods or adjudge them to confiscation, and whenever he shall declare goods to be confiscated he shall report his proceedings for confirmation and final adjudication by the Board of Customs, Salt and Opium. Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the Governor of Bengal from ordering the release of goods seized, or from remitting any penalty whatsoever that may be incurred for contravention of the customs laws.

XV. And it is hereby further enacted that twenty days, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, shall be allowed for the discharge of the import cargo of vessels not exceeding six hundred tons burthen, and thirty days, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, for the discharge of the import cargo of vessels exceeding that burden, and the said periods shall be calculated from the day of the Tide Waiter or other Custom House Officer first going on board. And if the whole cargo be not discharged by the expiration of the above stated periods respectively, the Master or Commander shall be charged with the Tide Waiter's or other Officer's Wages, and other expenses for any further period that he or they may be detained on board. And if the Owners, Importers or Consignees do not bring their Goods to land within the periods above fixed, it shall be the duty of the Master or Commander so to do. And if any Goods remain on board after the time fixed as above for the discharge of the Import Cargo, the Collector may order the same to be landed and warehoused for the security of the duties chargeable, and of any freight and primeage and other demands that may be due thereon, giving his receipt to the Master for the same. Provided always, that in all cases it shall be lawful for the Collector or other Officer in charge of the Custom House with the consent of the Master of the Vessel, to cause any packages to be brought on shore and to be deposited in the Government Warehouse for the security of the Duties and Charges thereon, although twenty days may not have expired from the entry of such Vessel, and in case Goods so landed and warehoused, or any Goods brought to land from any Vessel be not claimed and cleared from the Custom House within three months from the date of landing, it shall be competent to the Collector to sell the same on account of the Duties, Freight, and other Charges incurred and due thereon.

After which the Master to pay charges of the Custom House Officer be detained on board.

Master to land Goods if Consignees do not.

If these fail Collector may land and warehouse.

And may land packages before twenty days with consent of Master.

for the security of the Duties and Charges thereon, although twenty days may not have expired from the entry of such Vessel, and in case Goods so landed and warehoused, or any Goods brought to land from any Vessel be not claimed and cleared from the Custom House within three months from the date of landing, it shall be competent to the Collector to sell the same on account of the Duties, Freight, and other Charges incurred and due thereon.

Further period of 15 or 20 days for continuous lading for export.

and twenty days if exceeding that burthen when the lading and unlading thereof shall be continuous, and the Master or Commander shall in such case not be charged with the wages and expenses of the Custom House Officer on board until after the expiration of such additional period respectively. And if a Vessel having discharged its Import Cargo shall be laid up, the Custom House Officer on board shall be withdrawn so soon as he shall certify that no Goods remain on board excepting necessary Stores and Articles for use, and when a Vessel so laid up shall be entered at the Custom House for receipt of Export Cargo, a Custom House Officer shall be sent on board, and if the said last-mentioned Officer shall certify that no Goods are on board saving as above excepted, twenty days, exclusive of Sundays and holidays as above, shall be allowed from the date of such certificate for the lading outwards of a Vessel not exceeding 600 tons and thirty days for Vessel exceeding that burthen, after which periods respectively the Master and Commander shall be charged with the wages and expenses of the Custom House Officer on board, to the date of the Vessel's sailing from the Port.

If the Vessel be laid up, Tidewaiter to search and leave, certifying that it is empty.

certify that no Goods remain on board excepting necessary Stores and Articles for use, and when a Vessel so laid up shall be entered at the Custom House for receipt of Export Cargo, a Custom House Officer shall be sent on board, and if the said last-mentioned Officer shall certify that no Goods are on board saving as above excepted, twenty days, exclusive of Sundays and holidays as above, shall be allowed from the date of such certificate for the lading outwards of a Vessel not exceeding 600 tons and thirty days for Vessel exceeding that burthen, after which periods respectively the Master and Commander shall be charged with the wages and expenses of the Custom House Officer on board, to the date of the Vessel's sailing from the Port.

20 and 30 days according to tonnage allowed for lading a Vessel outwards after being laid up, but search certificate that nothing is on board necessary.

respectively the Master and Commander shall be charged with the wages and expenses of the Custom House Officer on board, to the date of the Vessel's sailing from the Port.

When penalty has been incurred by a Master—

ACT No. XXI., DATED SEPTEMBER 19.

It is hereby enacted, that from the 1st day of October, 1836, it shall be lawful for the Governor General in Council, by an Order in Council, to create new Zillahs in any part of the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal, and to alter the limits of existing Zillahs.

THE CANAL TOLLS.

ACT No. XXII., DATED SEPTEMBER 26.

I. It is hereby enacted, that from the first day of November, 1836, Regulation VII. of 1810 of the Bengal Code, and also such parts of Regulation XVIII. of 1806 of the Bengal Code, as relate to the eastern canal, commonly called "Tolly's Nullah," which connects the River Hooghly with the Sunderbunds, shall be repealed.

II. And it is hereby enacted, that from the said first day of November, 1836, the Governor of Bengal shall be competent to prescribe the amount of toll, and the mode of levying the same on boats, rafts and floats which shall enter on, or pass out of, or through, either of the two lines of navigation hereinafter described—that is to say:—

1st. The Eastern Canal aforesaid from its entry into the Sunderbunds to its junction with the River Hooghly.

2d. The line made up of the Channel across the Salt-water Lake to Baminghatta, of the Canal leading from the Salt-water Lake to the Boitakhana Road, and of the new Circular Canal which connects the last mentioned Canal with the River Hooghly.

III. Provided always, that the aggregate amount of toll levied on account of the whole passage along either of the two lines aforesaid, or on account of entering into, or passing out of, either of the two lines aforesaid, shall in no case exceed one rupee and a half for every hundred maunds burden on any boat, or two annas for every timber, on every raft of timber, or four annas for every hundred bamboos, on every float of bamboos.

IV. And it is hereby enacted, that the said Governor shall be competent to fix a rate of rent to be levied on every boat which shall remain in any part of either of the lines aforesaid longer than two days for every hundred maunds of burden, and on every raft of timber which shall so remain longer than one day for every ten timbers, and on every float of bamboos which shall so remain longer than one day, for every two hundred bamboos.

V. And it is hereby enacted, that the said Governor shall be competent to appoint Officers for the collection of the tolls and rent herein after mentioned, and to confer on such Officers, for the purpose of preventing acts whereby either of the said lines of navigation may be obstructed, or whereby the banks along either of the said lines of navigation may be damaged, any or all the powers possessed by Magistrates in respect to navigable streams and rivers.

VI. And it is hereby enacted, that whoever wilfully causes any obstruction of either of the said lines of navigation, or any damage to the banks along either of the said lines of navigation, shall be punishable, on the conviction before the Magistrate, with imprisonment for a term not exceeding fourteen days or fine to an amount not exceeding 50 rupees or both; and in default of payment of such fine, with additional imprisonment for fourteen days.

VII. And it is hereby enacted, that the notifications of the rates of toll and rent, and of the places of collection, and of all rules made by the said Governor under the authority given to him by this Act, shall be published in the Calcutta Gazette and exposed to public view of every toll-house, on either of the said lines in English, Persian and Bengallee tongues.

VIII. And it is hereby enacted, that if the toll or rent due in respect of any boat, raft, or float on either of the said lines, shall not be paid on demand, to an officer authorized by the said Governor to receive the same, it shall be lawful for such officer to seize such boat, raft or float, and the cargo thereof, and to detain the same, and if the said toll or rent shall have been paid upon any day before the tenth day after such seizure, then the said boat, raft, or float shall be released, or if not paid within the said ten days, it shall be lawful for such officer with the sanction, and under the directions of the Superintendent of Canals, to sell the property seized, or so much thereof as the said Superintendent shall direct for the purpose of satisfying the toll or rent which may be due, and also of defraying the expenses of seizure and detention; and in every such case, so much of the property seized which has not been sold, and so much of the price of the property sold, as is in excess of the sum necessary for satisfying the toll or rent which is due, and for defraying the expenses of seizure and detention, shall be returned to the owner of the boat, raft or float.

IX. And it is hereby enacted, that if any person in charge of any boat, raft or float, shall attempt to evade payment of the toll or rent due thereon, or shall resist a seizure made by the authority and under the circumstances hereinbefore described, such boat, raft or float and the cargo thereof, shall be forfeited to the Government under orders of the Superintendent, subject to appeal to the Commissioner of Revenue and police.

SUSPENDING FUNCTIONS OF CIVIL CRIMINAL, AND REVENUE AUTHORITIES AT GOOMSOOR AND SOORADA.

FORT WILLIAM, LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT, 10TH OCT. 1836.

Resolution.—The Zemindarees of Goomsur and Soorada, in the District of Ganjam, have long been in a state of the utmost disorder and confusion. The revenue due to Government has for many years past been paid with great irregularity. The Zemindars have frequently been in a state of actual rebellion. The authority of Government has been openly resisted, and the most atrocious acts of violence and outrage have been perpetrated by the Zemindars and their adherents. Although such measures as were consistent with the principles and provisions of the existing Regulations have, from time to time, been adopted by Government and by the local Authorities, with a view to the establishment of good order and permanent tranquillity in those Zemindarees, the attainment of that important object has been frustrated by peculiar obstacles arising from the nature of the country, the character of the inhabitants, and other special and local difficulties. The failure of all measures hitherto adopted under the existing laws to restore to tranquillity—the increasing prevalence of disorders which, if not speedily suppressed, may extend to the neighbouring estates, and the continued resistance opposed to the authority of Government have at length rendered it necessary that the ordinary functions of the Courts of Civil and Criminal Justice, and the operation of the general Regulations should, for the present, be suspended in that part of the Districts of Ganjam, commonly known under the denomination of the Zemindarees of Goomsur and Soorada, and that a Commissioner should be appointed for those Zemindarees for the purpose of exercising such powers, and discharging such duties, as may be especially entrusted to him, under the instructions of the Governor in Council of Fort St. George, with a view to the collection of the rents, the establishment of a Regular Police, and the restoration of public order and tranquillity—His Lordship in Council has therefore been pleased to direct that the following Act be passed, that it is hereby passed accordingly and promulgated for general information.

ACT NO. XXIII. DATED OCTOBER 10.

I. It is hereby enacted, that from the 15th day of November, 1836, the ordinary functions of the Courts of Civil and Criminal Justice, and of the constituted Revenue Authorities, as well as the operation of the whole of the existing Regulations, shall be suspended within the Zemindarees of Goomsur and Soorada, and shall continue to be so suspended until this Act shall be repealed, or until such time as the Governor in Council of Fort St. George shall, by an order in Council and proclamation, declare that the ordinary Regulations shall be again put in force within those Zemindarees.

II. And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for the Governor in Council of Fort St. George to appoint a Commissioner for the said Zemindarees who shall exercise such powers as may be entrusted to him by the said Governor in Council of Fort St. George, and shall be guided in the discharge of his duties and functions by such instructions as he from time to time, shall receive from the said Governor in Council.

III. And it is hereby enacted, that nothing in this Act shall be construed to affect the jurisdiction of the Court of Circuit, or Court of Sudder Foudaree Adawlut in any case which may be depending before either of these Courts on the 15th day of November, 1836.

IV. And it is hereby enacted, that the Court of Circuit and Court of Sudder Foudaree Adawlut shall have Criminal Jurisdiction over every person whom the Commissioner in Goomsur and Soorada, under the instructions of the Governor in Council of Fort St. George, may commit for trial, on the charge of any crime perpetrated before or during the operation of this act—and in all such cases, the Court of Circuit of Sudder Foudaree Adawlut shall be guided by the general Regulations in force.

CHANGING THE DESIGNATION OF NATIVE JUDICIAL OFFICERS.

ACT NO. XXIV. DATED OCTOBER 10.

I. It is hereby enacted, that the Officers who in the Regulations of the Presidency of Fort St. George are designated as Native Judges and Native Criminal Judges, shall from the 1st day of November, 1836, be designated as Principal Sudder Ameens.

II. And it is hereby enacted, that from the said 1st day of November, 1836, the Officers who in the Regulations of the Presidency of Bombay are designated as Native Judges, shall be designated as Principal Sudder Ameens; and the Officers who in the said last mentioned Regulations are designated as Principal Native Commissioners, shall be designated as Sudder Ameens, and the Officers who in the said last mentioned Regulations are designated as Junior Native Commissioners, shall be designated as Moonsiffs.

III. And it is hereby enacted, that from the said 1st day of November, 1836, no person whatever shall by reason of place of birth or by reason of descent, be incapable of being a Principal Sudder Ameen, Sudder Ameen, or Moonsiff, within the Territories subject to the Presidencies of Fort St. George and of Bombay.

IV. And it is hereby enacted, that every British-born subject of the King, or descendant of such British-born subject, who shall be appointed a Principal Sudder Ameen, Sudder Ameen or Moonsiff in the Territories subject to the Presidency of Fort St. George or of Bombay, shall in respect of all acts done by him as such Principal Sudder Ameen, Sudder Ameen, or Moonsiff be liable to the same proceedings as well Criminal as Civil, and shall be amenable to the jurisdiction of the same tribunals, as if he were not of British birth or descent.

V. And it is hereby enacted, that from the said 1st day of November, 1836, no person shall by reason of place of birth, or by reason of descent, be exempted in any Civil proceeding from the jurisdiction of the Assistant Judges in the Territories subject to the Presidency of Bombay.

WAREHOUSING PORTS.

IV. And it is hereby enacted, that when Goods shall be passed by tale or by package, every omission, or misdescription tending to injure the revenue, shall be an offence punishable with fine not exceeding ten times the greatest amount of duty which could have been lost to the Government in consequence of such omission or misdescription; and if Goods shall have been overstated in quantity or value, the error may be rectified prior to the lodging of the said Goods in such Warehouse as aforesaid, but not after the said Goods have been so lodged.

V. And it is hereby enacted, that no packages of Goods shall be admitted into any public or licensed Warehouse unless numbered and marked in plain and legible characters, with the initials of the Owner, Importer or Consignee, and with a description of them.

VI. And it is hereby enacted, that upon Goods Warehouse under the provisions of this Act, when the Import Duty chargeable shall exceed the sum of one hundred Rupres, the Importer or Consignee shall be allowed to execute a Bond for the amount of duty chargeable in the Form hereunto annexed marked B; and when such have been executed, the Goods shall be allowed to remain in Warehouse for a period not exceeding fifteen months without being liable to the demand of Import Duty thereon. And the Bond to be taken under this Section shall be for twice the amount of Import Duty assessed on the Goods, and shall stipulate for interest to be payable from the date of the demand of any sum due on account of the Goods at such rate not exceeding six per cent. as shall be fixed by the Board or other controlling authority of Customs: And the party executing the same shall be bound thereby for the payment of all Duties and Charges that shall be claimable on account of the Goods, and of any penalties that may be incurred for violation of the Custom Laws in respect to the same.

VII. Provided, always, that if any Owner, Importer, or Consignee shall omit to pay any duty or penalty that may fall due, on account of Goods Warehouse under this Act, it shall be lawful for the Collector of Customs at his option either to proceed upon the Bond, or to cause such portion of the Goods on account of which the duty or penalty may be demanded as to him may seem fit to be detained in satisfaction; and if the demand be not discharged within ten days from the date of such detention (due notice thereof being given to the Importer, Owner or Consignee) the Goods so detained shall be liable to be sold in satisfaction of the demand. And the proceeds of any sale so made of Goods so detained shall be written off upon the Bond in discharge thereof to the amount received less the charges of the sale; and if there be any surplus obtained from such sale beyond the amount demanded, such surplus shall be paid over to the Owner or Consignee of the Goods, and no transfer or assignment of Goods shall prevent the Collector from proceeding against the Goods in the manner above provided for, any demand of Custom Duties or Penalty claimed thereon.

ACT No. XXVI. DATED NOVEMBER 7.

I. It is hereby enacted, that as often as the Governor General of India, or the Commander in Chief of all the Forces in India, or the Lieutenant Governor of the N. W. P., shall pass through any part of the Territories of the East India Company attended by a Camp, it shall be lawful for the Governor General of India in Council, by an Order in Council, to appoint a Superintendent of the Police of such Camp.

II. And it is hereby enacted, that with respect to all Offences committed in any such Camp, or on the line of march between the Stations of any such Camp, such Superintendent shall have concurrent Criminal jurisdiction with the Magistrate of the Zillah or City within which such Offence shall have been committed.

III. And it is hereby enacted, that as often as the said Superintendent shall by virtue of the powers conferred on him by the preceding Clause, commit any person for trial before the Sessions Court, or sentence any person to imprisonment, it shall be lawful for the said Superintendent to transmit such person, to the Magistrate of the Zillah or City where the Camp shall then be, with a copy of the commitment or sentence, under the hand of him the said Superintendent, and the said Magistrate shall give effect to such commitment or sentence.

IV. And it is hereby enacted, that all Officers subordinate to the Magistrate of the Zillah or City where such Camp shall be, shall be assisting to the said Superintendent in the exercise of the powers conferred on him by this Act, in the same manner as they are bound to be assisting to the said Magistrate.

ACT No. XXVII. DATED NOVEMBER 7.

I. It is hereby enacted, that Regulation V. of 1817, of the Madras Code, entitled a Regulation for providing a succession of Hindoos and Mahomedans duly qualified to be employed as Law Officers and as Vakeels in the Courts of Adawlut under the Presidency of Fort St. George, be repealed.

II. And it is hereby enacted, that Candidates for the situation of Vakeel in the Courts of Adawlut under the Presidency of Fort St. George, shall in future be appointed under the Provisions of Section III. Regulation XIV. of 1816, and that the qualifications of Candidates for the situation of Law Officers be ascertained by examination before the Law Officers of the Court of Sudder and Foujdaree Adawlut, with reference to the Provisions of Section III. Regulation VI. of 1802, and Clause 2, Section III. Regulation VII. of 1822.

ACT No. XXVIII. DATED NOVEMBER 7.

I. It is hereby enacted, that from the 1st day of December 1836, no Assessment made by the Justices of the Peace for the Presidency of Fort St. George under the authority of the Act of Parliament of the 33 Geo. III. Cap. 52, shall be levied until the same shall have been approved by the Governor in Council of Fort St. George.

II. And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said Governor in Council of Fort St. George, by an Order in Council, to exempt any District, or portion of a District, from payment of any such Assessment.

ACT No. XXIX. DATED NOVEMBER, 14.

I. It is hereby enacted, that from the 1st day of December 1836, it shall be competent to the Court of Sudder Adawlut of Fort St. George, with the sanction of the Governor in Council, to augment or diminish at discretion, the number of Sudder Ameens within that Presidency.

II. And it is hereby enacted, that such parts of any of the Regulations in force as authorize the Registers of the Zillah Courts and Sudder Ameens within the Presidency of Fort St. George, to receive any fee or commission for judicial duties performed by them, be repealed. Provided always, that this rule shall not be construed to prohibit the receipt of fees for the Registry of Deeds.

ACT No. XXX. DATED NOVEMBER 14.

I. It is hereby enacted, that whoever shall be proved to have belonged, either before or after the passing of this Act, to any gang of Thugs either within or without the Territories of the East India Company, shall be punished with imprisonment for life with hard labor.

II. And it is hereby enacted, that every person accused of the offence made punishable by this Act, may be tried by any Court which would have been competent to try him if his offence had been committed within the Zillah where that Court sits, any thing to the contrary in any Regulation contained notwithstanding.

III. And it is hereby enacted, that no Court shall, on a trial of any person accused of the offence made punishable by this Act, require any Futwa from any Law Officer.

ACT No. XXXI. DATED NOVEMBER 28.

It is hereby enacted, that the provisions of Regulation IV. of 1831, of the Madras Code, relating to Grants of Money or Land Revenue made by the British Government, shall be extended to all similar grants within the Territories subject to the Presidency of Fort St. George, which having been made by any Native Government, have been confirmed or continued by the British Government.

ACT No. XXXII. DATED NOVEMBER 28.

I.—It is hereby enacted, that if any person after the first day of December 1836, lands or attempts to land in any part of the Territories subject to the Government of the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal any Sugar which is not the growth of a British possession into which Foreign Sugar cannot be legally imported, such Sugar shall be seized and confiscated by the Collector of the Customs or by any other Officer thereunto authorized by the Governor of the said Presidency, unless the district in which such Sugar is landed or in which an attempt has been made to land such Sugar be a district in which the Governor General of India in Council has authorised the importation of such Sugar.

II.—And it is hereby enacted, that if any Owner of Sugar the produce of any Territories, or duly authorized Agent of such Owner, desires to obtain a Certificate of origin from the Collector or Assistant Collector of the Land or Custom Revenue of any district within the said Territories, or from any other Officer appointed by the Governor General of India in Council, to give such Certificates, such Owner or Agent shall, in the presence of the Officer from whom he desires to obtain such Certificate, make and subscribe a Declaration in the form contained in the Schedule hereunto annexed marked A.

III.—And it is hereby enacted, that if the district be one into which the Governor-General of India in Council has not by any order authorized the importation of Foreign Sugar or of Sugar the growth of any British Possession into which Foreign Sugar can be legally imported, the Officer before whom such a Declaration as is aforesaid shall have been made, shall grant under his hand and seal to the Declarant a Certificate in the form contained in the Schedule hereunto annexed marked B.

IV.—And it is hereby enacted, that every person who intends to ship Sugar from any place within the said Territories for any part of the United Kingdom, shall be entitled to produce to the Collector of Customs at that place, or to any other Officer who may have been appointed by the Governor General of India in Council to act on such occasions in place of the Collector of Customs, a Certificate such as is above described, and also in the presence of the Officer to whom he has so produced such Certificate to make and subscribe a Declaration in the form contained in the Schedule hereunto annexed marked C.

V.—And it is hereby enacted, that the Officer to whom such a Certificate shall have been so produced, and before whom a Declaration in the last mentioned form shall have been so made and subscribed, shall grant to the person who has made the last mentioned Declaration a Certificate in the form contained in the Schedule hereunto annexed marked D.

VI.—And it is hereby enacted, that any person who shall in making any Declaration under the authority of this Act, knowingly affirm an untruth, shall on conviction thereof before such Court as would be competent to try such person for perjury, be punished by fine to an amount not exceeding Five Thousand Rupees, and imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years.

The period from the 21st September to the 20th of November 1835, for which Lieutenant Colonel D. Pregrave obtained leave of absence in General Orders of the 23d October last, having been occupied by the detention of that officer in winding up the concerns of the late Mint at Saugor, His Excellency the Commander in Chief is pleased to direct, that the subsequent leave granted in General Orders of the 4th December last, to Lieutenant Colonel Pregrave, for eight months, to visit the Presidency, on his private affairs, shall be considered as commencing on the 1st of December, and not as an "extension" of the preceding leave.

Head-Quarters, Calcutta, 27th April.

The Dum Dum station order of the 22d instant, directing Assistant Surgeon A. Bryce, M. D. of the 1st Troop 3d Brigade Horse Artillery, to afford medical aid to the 1st and 2d companies of the 4th battalion artillery, and to the regimental band, as well as to the troop to which he stands posted, is confirmed.

The leave of absence, for nine months, granted to Captain P. C. Anderson, 2d in command of the Mubairwah local battalion in General Orders of the 8th ultimo, to visit the hills north of Dehra Dhoon, on medical certificate, is to commence from the 12th of February last, instead of the date therein specified.

The leave of absence, for six months, granted to Lieutenant and Adjutant F. W. Burroughs, of the 17th regiment N. I., in General Orders of the 21st of January last, to visit the Presidency, on private affairs, is to continue to visit Fettehgarh, from the 2d ultimo to the 7th instant, on the same account.

Ensign Lowther Thomas Forrest is removed from the 41st to the 48th regiment of N. I. and will rank next below Ensign C. E. Burton.

The undermentioned Officers have leave of absence;

28th regiment N. I.—Major C. D. Wilkinson, from 13th May to 1st November, to visit Mussoorie in the hills, on private affairs.

23d regiment N. I.—Ensign S. W. R. Tulloch, from 13th May to 15th July, in extension, to remain at Alhwa, on private affairs.

Head-Quarters, Calcutta, 29th April.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief is pleased to make following postings and removals:

Colonel Thomas Murray, new promotion, (on furlough) to the 59th Regiment N. I.

Lieutenant Colonel Steele Hawthorne, (on furlough) from the 52d to the 53d Regiment N. I.

Lieutenant Colonel George William Aylmer Lloyd, new promotion, the 52d Regiment N. I.

Head-Quarters, Calcutta, 30th April.

The leave of absence granted to Assistant Surgeon D. McQueen Gray, of the Simoon battalion, in General Orders of the 21st ultimo, is cancelled at his own request.

Sergeant Henry Butcher, of the 1st Company 1st Battalion of Artillery, is transferred to the Town Major's list, appointed Quarter Master Sergeant to the 6th Regiment of N. I. at Saugor, vice Brown appointed Sergeant Major to the corps, and directed to join.

The undermentioned officers have leave of absence:

45th Regiment N. I.—Lieutenant and Adjutant W. Bliddolph from 15th April to 1st March 1837, to visit Simla, on medical certificate.

48th Regiment N. I.—Lieutenant Interpreter and Quarter Master H. Palmer, from 15th May to 15th June, in extension, to enable him to rejoin his corps.

47th Regiment N. I.—Ensign C. C. Skelton, from 15th May to 15th July, to proceed to Cawnpore and Allahabad, on private affairs.

4th Regiment Light Cavalry—Cornet R. T. Knox, from 25th June to 25th December, to visit Cawnpore and the Presidency, preparatory to applying for furlough.
